CHASE FOR JOBS IN WASHINGTON; FOR PORK ALSO

Thousands of G.O.P. to Get the Gate.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 21.—[Special.]—The big rush was on today for pork and jobs. Representatives and senators deluged the offices of Donald H. Sawyer, federal public works administrator, who has before him the task of doling out 3 billion 300 million dollars for a thousand types of public construction.

The pork hungry congressmen plagued Mr. Sawyer and his aids, in person, by telephones and by letter, until he and his staff were hard pressed to it to find any time to devote to consideration of projects.

Over on another side of town was another beleagured official who had brought on his own head an unseeming rush of aplicants for jobs and of congressional sponsors for applicants for jobs.

Farley Opens the Gates.

This was Big Jim Farley, postmaster general, who made the mistake early this morning of announcing that the big dam of jobs, held fast, or nearly so, while congress was still voting on parts of the Roosevelt program, was ready to be broken.

Thousands of Republican postmasters, hundreds of district attorneys, marshals, collectors, prohibition agents, and others will finally feel the ax, and the Democrats, having waited impatiently for months, will start eating plums.

Mr. Farley also gave out an estimate that the new schemes set afoot under the Roosevelt program which are just now stretching out in positive action will provide additional jobs for from 25,000 to 30,000 of the Democratic faithful ones.

Under Many Designations.

These new jobs come under the public works administration, the farm credit administration, which is setting up branch offices all over the country; the home loan board, which will have a nationwide setup, also, with at least two employés in every county in the United States; the department of agriculture, with agents watching the wheat and cotton fields and paying bounties to farmers everywhere, and the new industrial control board, with investigators, inspectors and other employés to exert control over industries.

It promises to be a great Democratic harvest, Mr. Farley opines.

There is a rush on, too, at the office of Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of the industrial recovery administration, but this is composed of business men, executive secretaries of trade organizations and labor representatives, hurrying in with proposals for trade agreements, with complaints of cutthroat competitive practices and complaints of low wage payments.

The politicians haven't found much promise of pie as yet in the industry control plan.

Sawyer Makes Many Jobs.

The organization at the public works office of Mr. Sawyer promises to outdo all the others, at least during the first year or two of the emergency plan conceived by the President to give jobs to a million men.

Mr. Sawyer plans to have one deputy administrator in every state and at least one engineer to oversee the task of spending the government's money on roads, bridges, city halls and county buildings, canals, dams, forests, schools, sewers, docks and levees, grade crossings, sewage plants, power plants, rivers and harbors and any of a thousand other projects which, for decades, have been the warp and woof of the congressman's dreams for endearing himself in the hearts of his voting constituents.

A visit today to Mr. Sawyer's office showed hundreds of persons filing in and out, including senators and representatives, two national committeemen, contractors and builders, architects and engineers.

Some of them, it was learned, carried tokens showing they had contributed to the Democratic war chest during the campaign. All of them wanted to impress on Mr. Sawyer and his assistant, Ross Caldwell, the fact that the project they were proposing was the one really essential job without which the President's relief program just couldn't get along.

Sabath Pleads for Sanitary District.

Among the visitors was a Democratic son of Illinois, Congressman Adolph J. Sabath, who reached the ear of Mr. Sawyer with a plea for the inclusion in his plans of the sanitary district works at Chicago. Mr. Sabath said that the engineering plans

JURY PONDERS MITCHELL TAX DODGING CASE

New York, June 21.—[Special.]—The jury in the trial of Banker Charles E. Mitchell for income tax evasion was locked up at 10:30 o'clock tonight, apparently in a hopeless deadlock.

After waiting ten hours for a verdict, Judge Henry W. Goddard, in the federal court, decided he would go home. Accordingly he ordered that the jury be sent to a hotel for the night and be returned to the courtroom at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning, with or without a verdict.

Before ordering the jury locked up for the night, Judge Goddard conferred briefly with George Z. Medalie, United States district attorney, and Max Steuer, attorney for Mr. Mitchell.

Program Agreed Upon.

Without any word from the jury since early in the evening, and with no indication that a verdict might possibly be reached later in the night, the judge and counsel agreed on the program as adopted.

The jury was given the case at 12:30 o'clock. They went into a room upon the third floor of the federal building and began their deliberations.

While the jury was deliberating, across the corridor, in an anteroom of the courtroom in which he had been on trial for six weeks, the banker paced nervously, smoking one cigaret after another, and endlessly discussing the evidence with his counsel, Max D. Steuer. Sharing his suspense were some of his close friends and business associates, including Hugh Baker, banker, who resigned as president of the National City company at the same time Mr. Mitchell resigned as chairman.

U. S. Attorneys Wait.

United States Attorney George Z. Medalie and his assistants waited in the crowded courtroom, along with newspaper men with telephone and telegraph wires near at hand ready to flash the news of the verdict which would send the once powerful financial leader forth a free man or would subject him to the possibility of a maximum ten year prison sentence or $20,000 fine.

At 6:25 o'clock tonight the jury sent a note to Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard asking for another reading of that section of the judge's charge dealing with Mr. Mitchell's failure to report as income $666,666.67 he received from the management fund of the National City company in July, 1929.

With the jurors, defendant, and counsel all in their places, Judge Goddard read from this part of his charge for fifteen minutes. James K. Campbell, the foreman, interrupted him, saying that he had covered the section about which the jurors wished further enlightenment. The jury then returned to their room.

Makes Charge to Jury.

Judge Goddard delivered his charge to the jury in the morning, speaking for an hour and three-quarters.

The judge explained that the indictment contained two counts. The first charged Mr. Mitchell with two illegal acts whereby he paid no tax for 1929, although, according to the government, a tax of $728,000 was due. One of these acts was the sale of 18,300 shares of National City bank stock to his wife to register a tax loss of $2,800,000; the other was the omission of a $666,666.67 management fund item from his return. The second count accused him of evading a $121,000 tax due for 1930 by selling 8,500 shares of Anaconda stock to W. D. Thornton, a friend, to register a tax loss of $758,000.

Judge Goddard told the jury that it was their duty to reach a verdict if they conscientiously could, and that they should do so "without fear or favor, without sympathy for or malice against." He reminded them that the defendant in a criminal case is entitled to a reasonable doubt, but explained that this meant a doubt founded upon reason, and not a "capricious" doubt, or one based upon reluctance to perform an unpleasant duty.

On Establishing Intent.

Pointing out the difficulty of establishing intent in a case of this kind, Judge Goddard told the jury it was not necessary for the prosecution to

GETTING ROUGHER AND ROUGHER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 21.—[Special.]—Bowing to the plans of President Roosevelt, railroad management and railroad labor tonight settled their current wage cut dispute.

They agreed, through concessions on the part of each, to follow the suggestion of Federal Railroad Coordinator Joseph B. Eastman and postpone the issue until the President's program for industrial rejuvenation has had opportunity to function.

Under the agreement announced by Mr. Eastman after two days of conferences with rail executives and labor representatives, the brotherhoods consent to an eight month continuation of the 10 per cent wage reductions accepted at Chicago in December, 1932. Instead of expiring on Oct. 31, 1933, as it normally would have under the original Chicago agreement, the 10 per cent cut is to continue in effect without protest from labor until June 30, 1934.

Roads Make Concession.

The railroad managements, on the other hand, relinquish completely the right to seek a further reduction in pay rolls during the eight month period. The notice already filed by them of an intention to impose a new 12½ per cent cut on the existing 10 per cent will be canceled.

The early settlement of the dispute spelled a signal victory for the administration in its efforts to hold private industry in line with its program for the rehabilitation of economic conditions.

It was the influence of the President, Mr. Eastman's statement revealed, which was responsible actually for the agreement.

Text of Eastman Statement.

Mr. Eastman's statement of the agreement was as follows:

"The railroad managers and the railroad labor executives have entered into an agreement, under which the arrangement by which 10 per cent is being deducted from the pay checks of employés, will be extended from Oct. 31, 1933, until June 30, 1934, and under which the date on which either party can submit a notice in accordance with the provisions of the railway labor act, indicating a desire to change the basic rates of pay, will be extended from June 15, 1933, to Feb. 15, 1934.

"Under this agreement, the railroads will surrender for a period of 8 months their right to seek a further reduction in employé compensation, and the employés will surrender for an equal period of time their opportunity to secure an elimination of the present 10 per cent deduction. The notice given by the railroads on June 15 of an intention to seek a 22½ per cent reduction in the basic rates of pay will be canceled."

CITY OF WHITING PAYS DEBTS AND HAS CASH LEFT

There is no wolf at the door of the city hall of Whiting, Ind.

The city has reduced its bonded indebtedness to $1,000. It is paying all its bills in cash as they come due and has $90,000 in the bank. According to Controller John Tokarz, only $40,000 of this will be needed to cover expenses for the remainder of 1933. The other $50,000 will be sufficient, he added, to carry on until 1934 tax collections are made.

Two reasons were given for the excellent financial statement. The first, the controller said, was a program of rigid economy. The second was the fact that the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, the major industry, has paid its taxes and kept employment steady through the depression.

1,200 Drys Will Lose Jobs to Slash Costs

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 21.—[Special.]—Attorney General Homer S. Cummings will fire forty per cent of the federal dry agents on July 1, taking the last step in scaling down the huge liquor control machine built up under dry administration.

Maj. A. V. Dalrymple, director of prohibition, announced the move today. It is a part of the general economy program and of the plan for combining the bureaus of prohibition and investigation. About 1,200 of the 3,000 agents now on the pay rolls will be dropped.

Reductions will be less drastic in New York, Chicago and other large centers, where enforcement always has been most difficult, Dalrymple said.

Drys' Last Stronghold.

Cutting of the field agents reduces the last stronghold of dry forces. Medicinal liquor control already has been relaxed, until, Dalrymple said today, there is not enough liquor in the country to meet the demands. Supervision of medicinal liquor will be still further relaxed when the bureau of industrial alcohol, which administers it, is combined with the bureau of internal revenue, Guy T. Helvering, commissioner of internal revenue, said today. Agents of the alcohol bureau will be dropped, along with about 500 or 600 employés of the revenue bureau, as part of the economy program.

Three other lines of economizing will be followed by the prohibition bureau, according to Dalrymple. Some branches will be abolished, some southern enforcement districts will be rearranged, and the whole bureau of prohibition will be absorbed by a new division of investigation as directed in the President's reorganization orders.

Tells of Liquor Shortage.

Dalrymple explained today that he is opposed to the immediate repeal of the 18th amendment because of the shortage of liquor in this country. He had previously declared before a congressional committee that he opposed repeal and had been criticized in high administration circles.

Immediate repeal would throw the country open to a flood of liquors from England, Germany, Italy and France, according to Dalrymple. He points out that medicinal demands already are straining the liquor supply without the addition of beverage traffic.

Hunt Spanish Plane on Slope of Mountain

MEXICO CITY, June 21.—(AP)—Advices that the Spanish trans-Atlantic aviators, Capt. Mariano Barberan and Lieut. Joaquin Collar, missing more than a day on a flight from Havana, Cuba, had crashed in the mountains 100 miles southeast of here, sent scores of searchers to that region today, but those returning tonight said they were unable to find any trace of the airmen.

Earlier an official in the department of communications said he had confirmed reports that their plane, Cuatro Vientos [Four Winds] had crashed on La Malinche mountain, that Lieut. Collar had been killed and that his companion was in a coma from serious injury. The official said the government had ordered that the injured flyer and the body of Lieut. Collar be sent here immediately.

Search Proves Fruitless.

Newspaper men and others who rushed to the nearby towns of Apizaco and Tlaxcala returned here saying that they had been unable to find any trace of wreckage and that they could find no one who had definite information concerning the reports. The Spanish embassy insisted that the reports were unconfirmed and said the governor of Tlaxcala had no verification of them.

Gen. Juan F. Azcarte, chief of staff for President Abelardo Rodriguez, said a widespread search which had been instituted in the region had revealed no trace of wreckage.

Capt. Barberan and Lieut. Collar, who recently flew from Seville, Spain, to Cuba, took off early yesterday on the projected Havana-Mexico flight of approximately 1,175 miles. After visiting the Mexican capital they had planned to fly to A Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago.

Seen Over Tabasco.

The last report from the flyers had placed them over the state of Tabasco yesterday. A commercial pilot who reported sighting them said they were headed at the time toward a storm area.

The report that the wreckage of the plane had been found was telephoned here by Mayor Antonio de la Lanza of Apizaco. Mayor Lanza said an Indian had found the plane on the slopes of the mountain at an altitude of more than 11,000 feet. The mountain is 14,000 feet high.

WERE COMING TO CHICAGO.

Capt. Barberan and Lieut. Collar, whose fate in Mexico is surrounded by mystery, were on their way to Chicago to visit A Century of Progress Exposition by way of Mexico City. The Spanish government had accepted an invitation from Mayor Kelly, President Dawes of the World's Fair, and The Chicago Tribune for the airmen to come here after their scheduled flight to Mexico City from Havana. The flyers had planned to be here in time for the American air races, July 1, 2, 3, 4, which are sponsored by The Tribune.

The aviators had planned to blaze in a new way the trail of De Soto and other Spanish explorers up the Mississippi river as a fitting reminder of the Chicago World's Fair forty years ago in honor of Columbus.

Midwest to Join in Dedication.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Chicago's most historic spot, the vicinity of the Michigan avenue bridge, will be the scene at noon today of the dedication of the new Illinois waterway. With water pageantry, the roaring of guns, and addresses by notables, the Chicago river will be in gala array to celebrate the linking of the great lakes and their ports with southern salt water.

Secretary of War George H. Dern and Speaker Henry T. Rainey arrived by plane from Washington yesterday for the ceremonials. Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley of New Orleans is here to join Mayor Edward J. Kelly in a ceremony in which salt water brought from the Gulf of Mexico will be blended with fresh water from Lake Michigan.

Day of Rejoicing for Valley.

A main feature of the dedicatory ceremonies will be the arrival of a flotilla of Mississippi river barges carrying the first commercial cargo over the new lakes-to-gulf inland water route from New Orleans to Chicago. Besides officials of New Orleans who have arrived to participate, other cities on the water route have sent representatives and the day is to be one of rejoicing up and down the valley.

The dedication celebrates a dream of two and a half centuries now come true. The new trade route, which has been open to barge commerce for three months, affects some 22 states in the Mississippi valley. Through the Chicago gateway, which lies about midway of the continental valley, it connects the great lakes and the Gulf of Mexico with 3,300 miles of water routes in the great Mississippi valley.

Opens Salt Water to City.

Commercially the celebration has deep import, for it heralds to the world that in terms of traffic the heart of the continent has been placed on salt water. It opens a new trade route to Central and South America and is expected to lift the industrial compression placed on the middle west by the Panama canal, which has given transportation advantages to seaboard industries.

On Feb. 27 The Tribune informally opened the Illinois waterway by taking over the completed course the first boat, the first passengers and the first cargo. The boat, the Sea King, was a small one, a 30 foot motor launch, but its voyage was hailed by cities along the route as demonstrating that the 9 foot channel, on which $102,500,000 has been spent, was at last open to navigation.

Just east of the Michigan avenue bridge the training ship Wilmette is to be docked, with Secretary of War Dern, Mayor Kelly and other dignitaries aboard. A historical pageant depicting the days of the early French explorers and a great parade of water craft is to be part of the spectacle.

Indian Canoes Return.

In the midst of skyscrapers a flotilla of birch bark canoes paddled by Indians is to bring up the river actors impersonating Joliet, the fur trader; Father Marquette, La Salle and his Italian lieutenant, Tonty. Passing this way 260 years ago, Joliet and Marquette, in 1673, discovered the water outlet over the Chicago divide into the Illinois and Mississippi rivers.

With war whoops the Indian war canoes are to dash up to the ship Wilmette, where the impersonators of La Salle, Tonty, Joliet and Marquette are to go aboard with messages to Secretary Dern. The impersonator of La Salle will dwell upon the realization of the vision of La Salle, one of the greatest of the early French explorers, who dreamed of a vast inland empire now come to pass.

The Wilmette is to be docked at a historic spot on the north bank of the river, on the site of John Kinzie's home, the first house built in Chicago. Here was born, in 1803, the first white child in Chicago. R. G. Lydy is clearing the site, now a parking lot, without charge, for the ceremonials.

Program Starts About Noon.

The program of speakers is to start about noon, after the arrival of the barges with spices, sugar and coffee from New Orleans. Ald. William A. Rowan [10th], as chairman of Mayor Kelly's civic committee, will preside. Mayor Kelly will make the welcoming address. Mayor Walmsley of New Orleans will respond. Lieutenant Governor Thomas Donovan will represent Gov. Henry Horner. George W. Ros-

The program will be broadcast over W-G-N starting at 11:50 a. m. Quin Ryan will describe the events from the deck of the Wilmette, and the public officials who will speak also will be heard over the radio.

Secretary Dern and Speaker Rainey will make addresses, followed by Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of engineers, United States army, and Maj. Gen. Thomas G. Ashburn, head of the federal barge lines, who brought the tow up river from New Orleans.

Army and navy officials will participate and so will delegations from many outside cities. Capt. E. A. Evers of the naval reserve unit, is in charge of the water craft program. Among the guests of honor will be Col. Dan I. Sultan, United States district engineer, who rushed through the completion of the Illinois waterway months ahead of schedule, and Maj. L. D. Cornish, state waterway engineer, who had charge of the construction work done by the state of Illinois.

Tribune Site Once Wood Lot.

The dedication exercises are frescoed and landscaped with historical settings. The Wilmette will be moored in front of what was the Kinzie front yard. In what was the Kinzie woodlot rises THE TRIBUNE tower. Across the avenue the Wrigley tower stands on the site of Kinzie's old wooden plank sidewalk to the ferry. On the south side of the bridge another skyscraper stands where stood old Fort Dearborn, built in 1803. Others towers nearby are on land where the Indians once put up their tepees.

The Illinois waterway itself extends from Joliet to Starved Rock on the Illinois river, some 60 miles. It connects at Lockport with the Chicago sanitary and ship canal, and at Utica with slack water on the Illinois. The state of Illinois has spent $20,000,000 on the project, while the sanitary district has expended $75,000,000 on the ship canal to Lockport, a total of $95,000,000 of Chicago and Illinois money. Three years ago, when the state ran out of funds, the federal government took over completion of the waterway at a cost of $7,500,000. Thus the project to be dedicated has cost $102,500,000. It links Chicago with New Orleans, Pittsburgh, Minneapolis, and St. Paul, and Kansas City by a barge route.

At the Congress hotel tonight, the Propeller club of Chicago will give a dinner to Secretary Dern, Speaker Rainey and others.

The governor said this will do more than anything else to help agriculture, industry and unemployment in California.

Springfield, Ill., June 21.—[Special.]—Beer can be sold at $14.50 per barrel, as opposed to the current price of from $17 to $19, and the brewers will still make money, a legislative committee reported today.

The report came from the house group which held several hearings in Chicago which were colored, occasionally, by stormy episodes, and ended its session by grand sweep subpoenaing of all books and records of a dozen breweries in the attempt to learn why a pre-war schooner can't sell now for a nickel.

Nothing much came of the decision, but the committee feels that its researches show $14.50 a fair and reasonable price for the brewers. The latter probably won't agree, for they insisted on the witness stand that the advent of the new brew has resulted in such furious production that normal costs cannot yet be determined.

Accountant Is Employed.

Just how the committee arrived at its "fair" price is somewhat enshrouded in mystery. The brewers gave little information; they claimed they couldn't. So the committee employed an accountant, Joseph B. Costello of Chicago, and he visited five breweries—the Prima, Atlas, Atlantic, Monarch, and United States Brewing companies.

But his expert advice was not illuminating. "In general," he reported, "my conclusion is that over so short a period of time it is impossible to gather the necessary information which will truthfully portray to your committee the cost of production of beer."

Nevertheless, the committee chairman, Representative George Garry Noonan [Dem., Chicago], explained today that the $14.50 price represented the "average" demanded by most brewers. "Some sell it higher, some lower," he said. The majority of beer manufacturers appearing before the committee had adopted the $17 price.

Commission Recommended.

In its final conclusions and recommendations the committee admits that it is impossible now to determine the "exact costs" of manufacturing and distributing beer and suggests that its life—or the life of a similar group—be extended after adjournment of the assembly in a commission.

Signing the report, besides Chairman Noonan, were the following representatives: Mason S. Sullivan, Peter P. Jezierny, and William J. Connors, Chicago Democrats; Albert J. Mancin and Michael A. Ruddy, Chicago Republicans, and I. H. Streeper, Republican, of Alton.

MRS. WILLEBRANDT IS ACQUITTED OF LIBEL IN MAGAZINE STORY

New York, June 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, former assistant United States attorney general, was acquitted by a jury in the Federal District court here today of a charge of having libeled Gus O. Nations, Anti-Saloon league official and one time prohibition administrator of St. Louis.

Nations had sued for $200,000. The jury was out only twenty-six minutes.

The action, on trial here since last Monday, grew out of a magazine article under Mrs. Willebrandt's signature charging Nations with attempting to obstruct justice in the case of his brother, Heber Nations, who was indicted for conspiring to violate the Volstead act.

In the article, which was published in 1929, Mrs. Willebrandt asserted Heber Nations had pleaded guilty. In court in the present trial, however, she admitted that she had erred slightly.

Before the jury today her counsel argued that she had been "fair and accurate" in her magazine charges—"not only kind but generous."

1,600 TEAMSTERS ACT TO DIVORCE RACKETEER TIES

Protected by fifty policemen, 1,600 members of locals 726 and 731 of the City, Sanitary, Cinder, Sprinklers', Teamsters', Chauffeurs' and Helpers' union, held a joint mass meeting at 1340 Washington boulevard last night in the first move to separate from the outlaw Chicago Teamsters' union.

It is hoped to withdraw the two locals from the outlaw union influence, and affiliate them as a consolidated local, No. 25, with the American Federation of Labor. Last night's meeting was inspired by John Tobin of Indianapolis, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers' union.

L. G. Goudie, president of the Joint Teamsters' Council of Chicago, presided. The meeting lasted only an hour, and there was no disturbance. Locals 726 and 731 each nominated a slate of new officers who will be elected at some future date after the union members are paid back wages by the city. The election of new officers, it is said, is one of the reorganization requirements preparatory to membership in the American Federation.

Locals 726 and 731 are now involved in a strike on city wagons. However, the city refuses to recognize the strike because of their affiliations with the Chicago Teamsters' union.

MICHIGAN JUDGE DECIDES AGAINST BEER ON CAMPUS

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 21.—[Special.]—A decision denying the petition of Winifred and Ralph Monk, proprietors of a restaurant located in the campus area of the University of Michigan, to compel the common council of the city to grant a license for the sale of 3.2 beer was filed this morning by Judge George W. Sample of the Circuit court. J. Edgar Dwyer, attorney for the petitioners, said that an appeal would immediately be made to the Supreme court.

Judge Sample maintained in his lengthy decision that the state act legalizing beer does not declare unconstitutional nor repeal the local ordinance enacted in 1903, which prohibits the sale of intoxicating beverages in the campus area.

The present case is a test one, which is to determine whether the 9,000 university students must continue a "downtown trek" after beer, or be permitted to purchase the beverage in establishments located near the campus.

2 HUSBANDS SUE SAME WIFE; SEEK THEIR CHILDREN

Petitions by her husband and her former huband were filed in the Superior court yesterday against Mrs. Lillian Foerster, 5238½ Winthrop avenue. Her present husband, Otto Foerster, 4747 Magnolia avenue, filed suit for divorce, charging cruelty and infidelity, and asked for the custody of a daughter, Dolores, 9 years old. The first husband, Bruna Grabowski, 1910 North Harding avenue, asked for the custody of his daughter, Elaine, 12 years old, who was awarded to Mrs. Foerster when she divorced Grabowski in 1923. Both petitions were filed by Attorney Harry X. Cole, who said the men would testify for each other.

3 NEW VICTORIES RAISE HOPE FOR REPEAL THIS YEAR

Iowa Vote High Point for Foes of Prohibition.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Repealist groups yesterday viewed Tuesday's repeal sweep in Iowa, Connecticut, and New Hampshire, making an unbroken line of 14 states which in the last ten weeks have voted to wipe out national prohibition, as indicating that the 18th amendment may be expunged from the federal constitution before the end of the year.

Complete unofficial returns from the Iowa election tabulated yesterday showed that 377,275 voted for repeal and 249,943 against it. The Connecticut vote was 236,915 for repeal and 35,349 opposed. Gov. Wilbur L. Cross has set July 11 as the date for the state's constitutional convention on repeal. New Hampshire's convention also will ratify repeal on July 11. The complete vote in New Hampshire was 75,999 for repeal and 30,340 opposed.

Vote on Repeal This Month.

Two more states are still to vote this month, California and West Virginia casting their verdict next Tuesday. Both are accounted by the repealists as more than likely to join the repeal parade. California is the chief wine producing state of the country.

West Virginia, a border state, is regarded with interest as an indicator of sentiment in states south of the Ohio river. It adopted state constitutional prohibition in 1912, twenty-one years ago, and under national prohibition it has made a reputation for the quality of its mountain dew. The drys are campaigning actively throughout the state. The repealists predict that it will fall into the anti-prohibition procession by a comfortable margin.

Vote in South Next Month.

July will bring elections of delegates in three southern states, and it is to these that main attention of the repealists is now being directed. Alabama and Arkansas will vote on July 18 and Tennessee on July 20. They are regarded as offering the first test of sentiment in the south, which went dry years before national prohibition, but which in the last two years has been showing anti-prohibition tendencies in elections.

The professional drys are now concentrating on the south as they did on Indiana and Iowa. In Montgomery, Ala., the repealists have organized a state-wide campaign, and they declare that with a vigorous campaign repeal may win by a good majority.

About the last time the Alabama electorate had a chance to express itself directly on the liquor question was in 1909, when the voters smothered a proposal to put prohibition into the state constitution. The state has had statutory prohibition since 1909. It even prohibited near beer or any substitute. The prohibitionists have worked through the legislature, and since the voters walloped the move to put the dry law into the state constitution the drys have been wary of the electorate.

Drys Count on Arkansas.

Arkansas is held by the drys to be one of the states in which they have greatest chance to put a stumbling block in the way of repeal. They rate it as they did Indiana and Iowa, where they made a desperate campaign, but where the voters at the polls seem to have kicked the stumbling blocks out of the way.

In 1912 the people of Arkansas defeated state-wide prohibition. The legislature three years later enacted a state prohibitory law and the drys carried a referendum to keep it on the books. In 1917 the legislature passed a bone dry act. The repealists declare that indications are that Arkansas in recent years has changed its viewpoints, just as have other former dry states in other parts of the country.

The rural vote cast for repeal in the agricultural areas of Iowa, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin, a compact group of central states, the rural regions of which have been predominantly dry in years past, with a possible exception of Wisconsin, is regarded by the repealists as being of great import. The drys, who in Iowa urged voters not to go to the polls unless they intended to vote dry, have been crying that the vote does not represent the bulk of the electorate.

Huge Vote Cast in Iowa.

Repealists, however, pointed to the Iowa vote, which in size is regarded as almost astonishing in size for a poll on a proposal election. The total vote cast in Iowa, where the repealists had little organization outside the larger cities, ran three to two for repeal, the ratio forecast by many of the political old timers. The total vote of more than 627,000 was about 61 per cent of the vote cast for President last November. The comparative size of this vote may be seen from the fact that in New York and Illinois the full vote on the repeal proposition ran about 47 per cent of the presidential vote.

In other words, the Iowa vote was proportionately about a third larger than in Illinois and New York. In Michigan and Wisconsin the vote ran about 70 per cent of that cast for President.

As viewed by repealists, the corn belt vote and its size was an outpouring of the voters evoked by interest in the issue. They are conjecturing that the same agricultural sentiment shown in the corn belt will later be displayed in the cotton belt in the elections of the southern states.

As it stands, 37 per cent of the population of the United States is in the 14 states which have voted in unbroken line for repeal. They have a population of 45,315,137, as follows, in order of their voting:

Wisconsin	2,939,006
Rhode Island	687,947
Wyoming	225,565
New Jersey	4,041,334
New York	12,588,066
Delaware	238,380
Nevada	91,058
Illinois	7,630,654
Indiana	3,238,503
Massachusetts	4,249,614
Iowa	2,470,939
Connecticut	1,606,903
New Hampshire	465,293
Total	45,315,137

In addition to the 14 states which have voted for repeal, 19 other states have set elections for this year, while four other states are expected to hold elections this year, making a total of 37. To ratify repeal 36 states are necessary.

Chance of Four Other Elections.

In addition there are four other states where repealists believe there is a possibility of elections being set for this year, making a total of 41.

The calendar of elections already set is:

June 27—California, West Virginia.
Aug. 26—Texas.
Aug. 29—Washington.
Sept. 5—Vermont.
Sept. 11—Maine.
Sept. 12—Maryland, Minnesota.
Sept. 19—Idaho, New Mexico.
Oct. 3—Arizona.
Nov. 7—North Carolina, South Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania.

States which the repealists expect will also hold elections this year are Florida, Missouri, Montana, and Utah. They hold that there is also a possible chance of getting elections this year in Colorado, Mississippi, North Dakota, and Oklahoma.

RUSSIA RENEWS BAN ON GRAIN SALES BY PEASANTS AND FARMS

MOSCOW, June 21.—(AP)—The soviet authorities today put teeth into the grain quota system outlined in January. Joseph V. Stalin, head of the communist party, and President V. M. Kolotoff issued a decree suspending the permission granted last year to collective farms and individual peasants to engage in open market transactions in grain and bread. The suspension remains effective until they have completed the required grain deliveries to the government.

The decree warns every one to adhere rigidly to the government's plan and to exert the most strenuous efforts to fulfill deliveries at the earliest possible moment under penalty of being tried for criminal neglect.

Official reports published today asserted that the 1933 sowing campaign has been fulfilled 95.4 per cent, and asserted that the increase over last year was 5.4 per cent. Individual peasants have made the poorest showing, the figures showed.

WISCONSIN G. O. P. CHIEFTAIN'S SON KILLS HIMSELF

Salt Lake City, Utah, June 21.—(AP)—A man identified by police detectives as George Vits Jr., aluminum salesman of Manitowoc, Wis., shot and killed himself in a rooming house here tonight.

The body was identified by Detectives Jack Brown and D. F. Duncan from the man's motor car and his sample cases and cards found among his effects in a hotel room. He had registered there June 13. The officers could assign no motive for the suicide.

The detectives said they had learned Vits had been drinking heavily. He shot himself with a revolver, they said.

George Vits Jr. is a son of George Vits of Manitowoc, Wis., national Republican committeeman for Wisconsin. The elder Mr. Vits is head of the Aluminum Goods Manufacturing company. He is well known in Wisconsin and national Republican politics and prominent in midwest industrial circles.

NAZIS OPEN WAR ON NATIONALISTS AND CATHOLICS

Offices Raided; Fighting Units Dissolved.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 21.—Chancellor Adolf Hitler's régime today swung hard on the few remaining non-Nazi elements in German life. The blows fell with particularly damaging effect on the Nationalist party, nominal ally of the Nazis, and the Bavarian Catholic People's party.

Nazi police smashed by dissolution the Nationalist party's semi-military "fighting rings," raided Nationalist party offices throughout the nation, dissolved all Rhineland posts of the Steel Helmets, a Nationalist war veterans' organization, and raided headquarters of the Bavarian People's party in Munich and local offices elsewhere in Bavaria. Many arrests were also made.

Three Killed, 2 Injured.

Simultaneously an end was proclaimed to lesser groups such as Gen. Erich von Ludendorff's Tannenberg league in Brunswick, the Nationalist Young German order, the Nationalist Werewolf body in Brunswick and Baden and the German Populist Freedom party in Baden.

Three men were killed and two were seriously injured during the day, one fatality occuring in the course of a raid on a Nationalist office at Frankfort-on-the-Oder.

The official explanation given for the Nazi activity was that it is designed "to complete the task of exterminating Marxism and bolshevism, representatives of which have smuggled themselves into the ranks of Nationalist fighting units."

Fulfills Hitler Pledge.

Today's action virtually fulfilled Hitler's old campaign promise that "the National Socialist party will one day become the German state itself." Practically the only prominent non-Nazi officials who survived the day were the Nationalist ministers in the cabinet, the chief of which is Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, minister of economics and agriculture, leader of the Nationalist party. Following a conference with Hitler tonight, it was reported that his days, too, are numbered.

Tonight Herbert von Bismarck, grand nephew of Germany's "iron chancellor," was taken into custody by storm troops and questioned on the activities of Nationalist "fighting rings" under his leadership.

Raids on offices of the Bavarian Catholic People's party were launched early today. They extended to the rooms of members of the People's party in the Bavarian diet and to the party's newspapers.

Charge Plot with Austria.

Many documents were seized. Some arrests were made. Munich police explained that the raids were made to clear up the relations of the Bavarian People's party with the Austrian Christian Socialists and Heimwehr. The Nazis charged that leaders of the Bavarian People's party were linked with the prohibition of the Nazi party in Austria yesterday.

Raids against the green shirted Nationalist fighting units were carried out by storm troopers, police, and "Black Hussars," a special secret police group. Promptly at 9 o'clock Nationalist party headquarters, Nationalist "Fighting Ring" offices, and homes of their suspected friends were occupied in Prussia and other German states.

When seized documents indicated treasonable actions arrests were made. Two nephews of Dr. Hugenberg were arrested, but one of them was released tonight. Approximately 100 persons were arrested in Berlin.

Enter Homes of Deputies.

Homes of Nationalist deputies were also entered, which resulted in the filing of protests against violation of parliamentary immunity.

The Steel Helmet veterans' organization will be reorganized as a Nazi body, according to orders issued today. Young Steel Helmeters and other allied groups will now join the storm troopers and Hitler guards.

The Catholic hierarchy in a communique tonight took issue with Hitler on the latter's statement that the youth of Germany belongs to the state and must be reared primarily for the state and not for the church. The statement warned Hitler that it expected the state to recognize property rights and possessions of church youth organizations as well as youths' homes and sports fields.

ASSOCIATES FETE PROF. DODD, NEW GERMAN ENVOY

He Makes Appeal for Academic Freedom.

Prof. William E. Dodd, newly appointed ambassador to Germany, was the guest of honor last night at a dinner given by the University of Chicago faculty in Judson court on the campus. Prof. Dodd resigned as chairman of the university's department of history to accept his new post.

Long an advocate of academic freedom, the ambassador made that the theme of a short speech. He complimented the University of Chicago on the support it had given him when outsiders sometimes criticized him for being too outspoken. Again he advocated unrestricted thought and expression for teachers.

Calls Restrictions Dangerous.

"When you limit a man's thoughts and actions," he said, "you destroy his ability as a teacher. To expel him from his position in society because he exercises his judgment to the best of his abilities is dangerous.

"Many scholars were deemed heretical in 1928 when they called attention to economic policies that were leading us into danger. We have a right to make the truth available to the masses of what we hope will be the greatest democracy in the world."

Ambassador Dodd said there was a great lack of truthful teaching in high schools particularly. He said he was not sure his historical researches would be of much value to him in Germany because "it is much more difficult to handle men of the present than of the past."

Hutchins Presides at Dinner.

President Robert Maynard Hutchins of the university presided at the dinner, which was attended by about 165. Among the guests was the German consul, Dr. Hugo Simon.

One of the speakers, Dr. Bernadotte Schmitt, who succeeded Prof. Dodd as head of the history department, told the gathering that the appointment was one of the most astute of the acts of President Roosevelt. Also, he said, he expected that the new ambassador would restore American prestige in European diplomacy.

Piperno, who has been in this country 17 years, is a foreign exchange broker and himself is widely known in polo circles. The bride's brother, Earle A. S. Hopping, is rated an eight goal polo player.

FATAL QUARREL OVER CORN.

Pontiac, Ill., June 21.—(AP)—Fred Carlson, 38, died today of gunshot wounds, and his father-in-law, Charles Breese, was held in jail, following a shooting. Breese, a farmer, allegedly shot Carlson twice after an argument over ownership of corn.

Hop Delayed

ORBETELLO, Italy, June 21.—(AP)—Difficulties in landing supplies in Cartwright Bay, Labrador, tonight still were holding up the departure of the Italian squadron of 24 planes which plans to fly to A Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago by stages. Although the weather was clearing over the Alps, Gen. Italo Balbo, air minister, who will lead the flight, made an appointment with newspapermen for noon tomorrow, when he hoped to have more favorable reports.

130 ENTERED IN MODEL AIRPLANE SPEED CONTEST

More than 130 entries have been received for the American Model Airplane Speed Tournament, to be held at the Chicago airport, July 1, 2, 3 and 4, in connection with the American Air Races. The model airplane speed trials will be held in the mornings of those dates, while the air races will be held in the afternoons, it was announced by Donald Hatmaker, chairman of the model contest.

The model tournament is sponsored by the Junior Association of Commerce, 1 North La Salle street, where all entries must be made. Tickets for the model meet are also on sale at the association offices. They will permit the bearer to see both the model contest and the air races. The closing date for entries has been extended to June 28 in order to allow all young model builders to enter their craft.

"Twenty-four trophies and awards will be given to the winners in the two divisions at the model racing meet," Mr. Hatmaker said. "These small planes, built of a few sticks, rubber bands, glue and thin paper, attain surprisingly high speeds, reaching 60 and 70 miles an hour."

FIND THOUSANDS OF TONS OF DUST FALLING ON CITY

Smoke abatement engineers in convention at the La Salle hotel, were told yesterday that the monthly dustfall in Chicago varies from about 150 tons per square mile in residential neighborhoods to as much as 400 tons in certain areas. The information was prepared by A. E. Grunert, Commonwealth Edison company engineer.

"It has been estimated," said Mr. Grunert in his paper that was read by a fellow delegate due to his illness, "that the normal yearly coal consumption within the cosmopolitan area of Chicago is about 35,000,000 tons. If this coal were all Illinois coal burned under the best conditions and if the discharge all settled within the area there would be an average dustfall of 112 tons per square mile per month." The paper added that a group of experts organized as the "Pure Air Committee" has been unable to determine the effects on health of the dust in the air.

Mr. Grunert asserted that there is no sure way at present of preventing pollution of the air by noxious gas discharges. He based his conclusion on a study of methods being employed to purify atmosphere over metropolitan areas, but tempered it with a declaration that definite progress is being made by research groups.

Anthony Czarnecki, collector of customs, has been notified by the treasury department that the official name of the federal building has been changed to the United States courthouse, and switchboard operators so answer when the building is called. RELIEF CHAIRMEN TOLD TO SUPPORT NEW 2% SALES TAX

Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, yesterday wired chairmen of county relief committees in the state urging them to support the 2 per cent retail sales tax bill now pending in the state house of representatives. Mr. Reynolds said that under the policy announced by the federal relief administrator Illinois must take steps to raise additional relief funds if its relief needs are to be met. He said the sales tax is necessary to produce these funds. Federal funds will be withheld, he said, unless the state passes some such revenue measure.

REPORT KINNEY $175,000 SHORT IN HIS ACCOUNTS

Examine Former State Officer's Books.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Springfield, Ill., June 21.—[Special.]—A cash deficiency of almost $175,000 was charged today in an audit of the accounts of Garrett De Forrest Kinney of Peoria, state director of finance under former Gov. Emmerson.

The document was submitted by State Auditor Barrett to Kinney's successor, Joseph J. Rice, Gov. Horner's appointee. It was made by the Springfield firm of Ralph Turnbull & Co., and covers the period from Nov. 1, 1931, to Jan. 31, 1933, when the deficiency totaled $88,996.14. A previous audit showed "differences" aggregating $85,194.01.

Director Rice would not discuss the deficiency.

"The auditor's report is lengthy and complicated," he said, "and I prefer to refrain from commenting upon it until I have had an opportunity to analyze it."

$352,000 in Closed Banks.

In addition to the alleged shortage disclosed by the audit, Kinney deposited $352,000 of state funds which were tied up by the closing of two large banks in this region—the Ridgley-Farmers' bank, Springfield, of which Mr. Emmerson was a director, and the Ayers National of Jacksonville. Andrew Russel, member of the parole board under Emmerson, was closely associated with this bank through his business partner, M. F. Dunlap, its former president.

Gov. Horner has been seeking to talk with Kinney about these matters for several weeks, according to attachés of his office, but the former director has not come here for conference.

Of principal interest in the audit was an item labeled "irregular cash withdrawals" totaling $69,881.48.

Credited to Stove Company.

This sum found its way from two downstate banks to the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, Chicago, where it was credited to the account of the Culter & Proctor Stove company. Kinney, according to the official state blue book for 1931-'32, was president of this Peoria concern. As far as could be learned here today he still holds that post.

Of the total withdrawal about half was withdrawn from the Commercial Merchants National Bank and Trust company of Peoria and half from the Ridgley-Farmers' bank of Springfield.

The audit follows the transaction through the drawing of several drafts making up the total and their indorsement, "deposited [in the Chicago bank] to the credit of Culter & Proctor Stove company." The "department of finance" was indicated as purchaser of the drafts. The withdrawals were made on various dates in 1932, the audit stated.

In addition to the "irregular withdrawals," the remainder of the deficiency noted in the Turnbull audit is represented by "receipts entered in cash received book, but not deposited." They total $19,114.66.

"Our examination," the audit reads, "consisted of a detailed check of the monthly reports, which were on file and submitted under oath by the various distributors of motor fuel, with the corresponding entries as recorded in the cash received book. A number of the recorded reports had been withdrawn from the files and were not available for our inspection.

"In addition, we find that partial payments by distributors were not represented by regular reports and the accompanying sworn statements. Cash receipts were traced in detail through duplicate deposit slips, prepared by us from the originals on file with the correspondent banks, to the depositors, and by this procedure we were able to discover the deficiency from that source."

HOOVER VISITS PUBLISHER AT CORONADO, CAL.

Coronado, Cal., June 21.—(AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover, Mrs. Hoover and their son, Herbert Jr., visited at the home of Col. Ira C. Copley, publisher, here today. They motored to Coronado from Los Angeles and drove back tonight.

Mr. Hoover said he was enjoying "the longest holiday" since he was graduated from college and "just decided to pay a call to Col. Copley, an old neighbor."

Goes to Hospital to Visit Sister; Dies There Herself

Taylorville, Ill., June 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. John Rassmussen, 30, Owaneco, went to visit her sick sister, Mary Sigley, in a Springfield hospital Sunday. She was herself hospitalized for pneumonia and died early today.

5 ACRE FLOWER GARDEN AT FAIR AN OUTDOOR IDYL

Sandy Waste Converted Into Poem in 8 Weeks.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Lord Bacon called gardens "the purest of human pleasures."

Those five words make the slogan of the 100,000 flower gardening families—the estimate is from the ledgers of local seed merchants—who, now with aching backs but glowing eyes, are bending over their front yard and back yard patches of color and perfume.

The slogan comes in Bacon's essay "Of Gardens," where also is that pretty sentence in which the judge speaks of . . . "the breath of flowers in the air when it comes and goes like the warbling of music."

Perfume for Your Thoughts.

You ought to reread "Of Gardens"—'tis only half a dozen pages, you recall—before you go to the garden show at the World's Fair. That essay will perfume your mind for the actuality on Northerly island.

The show extends over five acres, indoors and out, including a horticultural building that covers 100,000 square feet and contains fourteen huge dioramas that talk to you like actors in a play. In front of them a score of happy canaries are singing like all possessed. I guess they must be fooled by the scenes of Lake Como and New Orleans and the Gary dunes and Miss Boydston's fernery. They must think they are making a world tour of gardens.

An Open Air Idyl.

The outdoors part is a dreamy place—tall poplars whispering to you as they sway above the veritable antiques in the stately Italian garden, and water laughing over the slow turning wheel of a water mill, the gray warped split shingles on which were brought from afar and are nearly a century old, and a rose garden that contains 6,175 bushes of 104 varieties and that requires more fussing over by laconic gardeners—gardeners are almost always laconic men—than a pretty woman gives to her toilet.

It has not taken the birds long to find this place, which shows that it is a good place and in three weeks they have become very peremptory and possessive.

Sometimes a yacht, white and virginal, sails across the end of the Italian garden's long vista and fleetingly is framed by it. Viewing that pastel from the terrace of the building—where there should be chairs for the foot weary visitors—you feel miles away from the crowds and the clamor, and on even the oppressive days you are caressed by a breeze from the lake.

At every turn of the garden paths there is a new vista of what the "landscape architects" like Italian Fiore call "a new thought," and all the thoughts are of peace, harmony and beauty.

Nature Works Her Magic.

The basis of the outdoor part of the horticultural exhibition is 18 inches of black earth lately laid over the lake shore's sand. Eight weeks ago the gardens were only a barren waste. Today they are a poem.

A poem, however, that is no idle fantasy but that is fraught with instruction.

For this show tellingly illustrates "a century of progress" in flower garden seeds.

Offhand the apartment prisoned laymen in these matters would say, "But how can there be more kinds of native garden plants now than there were a hundred years ago?"

Well, there are.

There are four times as many. Then there were 500. Now there are 2,000.

Great Experiments at Museum.

And when Dr. Simms and his staff at the Field museum finish their current experiments, and when such extensive commercial houses as the Vaughns complete their investigations, then many more wild flowers will have been tamed and trained to be happy in gardens.

Among them will be the fringed gentian—do you remember who wrote the lovely "To a Fringed Gentian"?—I cannot—the Lupin of the dunes, a pea-like flower, and the trailing arbutus. The seeds of many so desirable wild flowers you cannot get from merchants, nor plant with success, because botanists have not yet learned how to handle them. That is why the Field museum's experiments in the germination and propagation of them, and the finding out how they like to grow, are highly important to the trade and to beauty lovers.

A Century of Progress.

The quadrupling in a century of the number of flowers suitable for planting in Chicagoland is due in part to the organization of seed merchandising and in part to the patient collection of indigenous wild types and the taming of them by breeding and cultivation.

A hundred years ago English botanists traveled through the United States and collected seeds of much of our wild flora. Returning to England, they first planted them in botanical gardens to see what they were and how they looked; second, into the nursery with them for propagation by cuttings, and, third, in the form of seeds to the merchants for distribution to garden lovers.

Thus at this show does the layman more pleasantly learn more things he will like to know—and does not—than in any other section of the Fair.

Especially will he learn with zest when he has lured James H. Burdett, press man of the exhibition and one of its lecturers, into giving one of his informal talks amid the cool shadows cast by the building in the afternoon. You must be insistent about getting Mr. Burdett—son of the good journalist now gone, Samuel Burdett—because he not only knows things but also the reasons behind them.

Get him and none other and he will point out to you some of the awful warnings in the show.

Those warnings are conveyed emphatically by the beds which illustrate the difference between gardens as planted in the days of the Columbian World's Fair and the days of this one. In '93 people thought glaring colors in a garden were bad taste.

When Pattern Dominated.

"But today," said Mr. Burdett, "we do not because now we know how to use vivid colors harmoniously. We attain harmony by contrast because we use in the garden colors which, though emphatically different, are complementary.

"In the typical '93 beds—there is a reproduction of one right down there in front of this terrace—the pattern dominated the flower, which was cruelly subordinated and distorted. But most people liked that and would exclaim, 'Isn't it wonderful! It looks just like a carpet!' But about a decade and a half after the old Fair they began to feel that it might be better to be able to say, 'Isn't it lovely! It looks just like a flower garden!'

A Quarter Century of Progress.

"The long and short of it—and it has been pretty long—is that the garden where the color, and not the pattern, is the dominant note has been a development of the last twenty-five years."

Mr. Burdett said flower garden planning is an art—"one of the fine arts," he added—and that the essential point is to avoid spoiling your effects by overzeal and overloading. From the terrace he pointed out a garden planted to illustrate those mistakes. He said it was as ineffective as o'er elaborate decoration of the dinner table.

"Now sometimes you hear talk," he continued, "about modernistic gardens. [He grinned cynical-like when he said that.] Well, about all the modernists have done in flower gardens is to cut beds in triangles. There can be no such thing as a modernistic garden—there's an attempt at one over yonder—because you haven't the modernistic material to plant. The trees and the flowers don't go modernistic. They too long have made a success of being themselves."

He defined a flower garden as "an effort to effect harmony between flora and man—a kindly sort of link between them."

Into the Italian Garden.

This gifted lecturer led us to the best point from which to look down the long vista of Charles Fiore's Italian garden and said:

"Gardens, like most things, originated in hot countries. Italy is hot. Hence Mr. Fiore's beautiful reproduction is an example of beauty of design, coolness of water, and shade of trees, and not of the beauty of flowers because the Italian summer would burn them up. His principal theme is Lake Michigan seen through a vista framed by poplars, embroidered with arbor vitae, and developed with pools and avenues. But in Italy these poplars would be cypresses and three times as tall. The terminal pieces on top of the gate pillars were brought from an ancient Italian villa."

Mr. Burdett drew a moral from the reproduction of the bare dooryard around the copy of Abraham Lincoln's boyhood home in Spencer county, Indiana, saying:

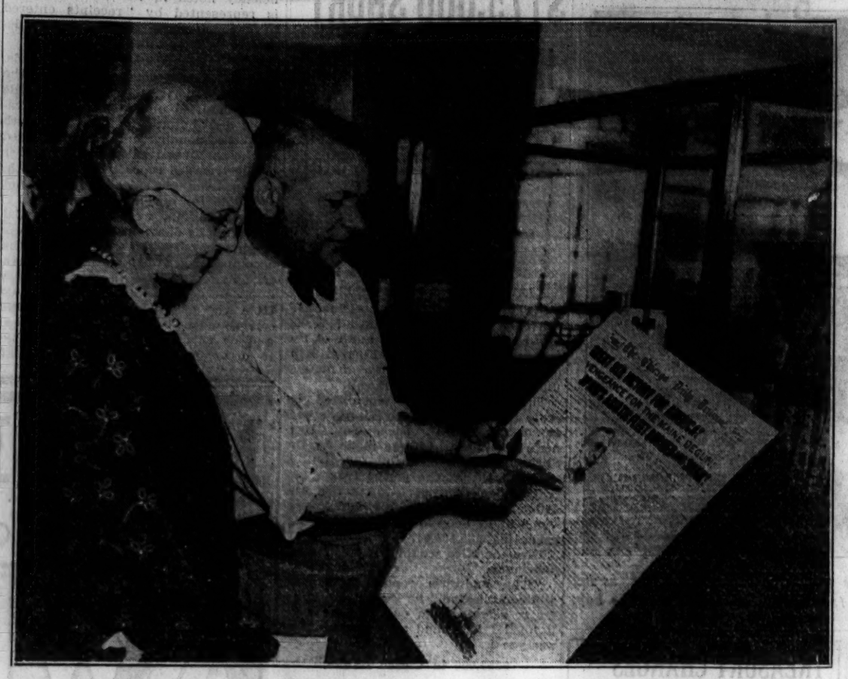
"You see how the pioneers began by destroying beauty. Then their grandchildren and we, their great-grandchildren, started to recover beauty. First, we concentrated our systematic effort largely in parks, and after that we began to see the ugliness around our homes, and now we are concentrating on creating floral beauty there."

The Contraption for Lye.

Note, by the way, the soap boiling kettle in the Lincoln dooryard and the curious contraption just behind it—a crude arrangement of slanting wooden slabs set in a groved log. They made a kind of bin into which wood ashes were poured and then the rains falling into the bin slowly made lye for soap. There should be an explanatory placard on that device. In rural parts of southern states they still use the contraptions, and call them "ash hoppers."

One more point for the present: When you enter Horticultural hall, pause at the welcoming fountain for a good look at Emmery P. Sydell's lovely bronze of the nude girl—'tis but a child—that commands the fountain. Most virginal thing you ever saw, and instinct with grace and laughter. Anybody would give ten dollars for a good plaster copy of it—but there are none.

German Residents Meet While Visiting Tribune Museum



Julian Ziebarth of Bitterfeld, Germany, and Minna Danneman of Helmstedt, Germany, towns about fifty miles apart, after chance meeting yesterday in Tribune museum. They had come to Chicago to visit relatives and the World Fair.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Travel Far to Meet

To the Tribune's historical museum, in room 2033 of the Tribune tower, yesterday afternoon came Herr Julian Ziebarth of Bitterfeld, Germany, a village near Leipsig. He signed his name on the register—the only entrance requirement—and began to examine the exhibits.

Hardly was the ink dry on his signature when Frau Minna Dannemann of Helmstedt, Germany, near Brunswick, and hardly 50 miles from Bitterfeld, arrived. While writing her own name she spied Ziebarth's. A scene which resembled a reunion resulted when she addressed him in German.

Both are living at the homes of friends here while visiting A Century of Progress Exposition. THE TRIBUNE'S register now has signatures of visitors from 45 states and from 17 foreign countries.

RUNAWAY BOYS, HERE FOR FAIR, FIND A HAVEN

Shelter Is Established by Relief Commission.

A shelter for boys who have run away from home to see the World's Fair has been established under supervision of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission at 16 West 36th street, in the old Provident hospital. Last night there were 189 boys between the ages of 15 and 18 in the shelter. The shelter has a staff of 17 employés and the wandering boys get their lodging and three meals a day, according to Peter Begley, assistant to P. H. Butler, an official of the relief commission. The capacity is 200 lodgers.

"These boys come from all over the country—New York, Texas, Oklahoma, almost any state in the union you could name," said Mr. Begley. "The boys come here to see the Fair, thinking they can pick up jobs."

The number of hitch hikers between the ages of 14 and 21 who apply to the Travelers' Aid society of Chicago in the society's office on A Century of Progress grounds at 23d street is increasing daily, according to Miss Ruth Bartlett, day supervisor.

"They are nice boys," said Miss Bartlett. "Many are high school graduates. We've had two from San Antonio, one from Georgia, one going from Oklahoma to Massachusetts, one from Massachusetts, and so on.

"We don't like to have them sleeping in the parks. So while we're investigating their cases we have them escorted to the new shelter. One of our case workers is there all day, too. Some boys get jobs here. We get in touch with their home towns, and learn whether their parents will take them back. If they will, we send them back. Of course we prefer it if the parents can send all or part of the railway fare."

BAIL IS REFUSED 3 HELD IN RACKET UNION SLAYING

Judge Rudolph F. Desort, in the Criminal court yesterday, refused to admit to bail John Rooney, secretary of the Circular Distributors' union; his sweetheart, Miss Rosalie Rizzo, 24 years old, 2844 South Cuyler avenue, Berwyn, and Henry Berry, business agent of the union, who are charged with the murder of a guard employed by the Goldblatt department store, 1609 West Chicago avenue.

Rooney, Miss Rizzo, and Berry, with two fugitive defendants, John Jilson, president, and Herbert Arnold, vice president of the union, were indicted for the murder of Stanley Gross, 21 years old, 1320 North Kedzie avenue, who was killed in front of the store on May 23. The state charged that the slaying climaxed a campaign of terrorism to force the store to employ union distributors.

Defense Attorneys William Scott Stewart and James M. Burke termed the ruling "arbitrary and unjudicial" and announced that they would appeal.

Commander Evangeline Booth of the Salvation Army arrived in Chicago yesterday to participate in the religious program of A Century of Progress. She was welcomed last night at a special meeting at Trinity Lutheran church, Barry avenue and Osgood street. Commander Booth will participate in an officers' council this morning led by Commissioner W. A. McIntyre of the central states territory, and tonight she will be decorated with a medal from the king of Sweden at the Swedish Mission tabernacle, by Count Folke Bernadotte.

LIBERTIES UNION GROUP ESCORTED OUT OF DUQUOIN

St. Louis, Mo., June 21.—(AP)—A group of representatives of the American Civil Liberties union returned here tonight from a tour of the southern Illinois coal country, where a union "war" is in progress, and declared they had been detained at Duquoin by deputy sheriffs, then escorted from town and warned not to return.

The delegation was led by Roger E. Baldwin of New York, director of the Civil Liberties union.

Mr. Baldwin said his committee was taken into custody when their motor car was halted on a downtown street in Duquoin. He said the officers "with high handed tactics" searched the car, its occupants, and then detained the party for an hour.

Other members of the party were Prof. James M. Yard, recently of Northwestern university, Chicago; the Rev. Raymond Sanford, Chicago minister; Thomas McKenna, executive of the Chicago Civil Liberties committee, and Walter Burch, St. Louis attorney.

It's News to Sheriff.

Duquoin, Ill., June 21.—(AP)—Chief of Police Lloyd Pyle said here tonight that he knew nothing of a report that a delegation from the American Civil Liberties union had been escorted from Duquoin late today by deputy sheriffs. The sheriff's office at Pickneyville said no report of such action on the part of deputies had been made there.

STORE ROBBERS BEAT VICTIM.

On the way the delegates will advertise the Fair with huge banners strung along the sides of the coaches. The train has been officially named the World's Fair Special.

Sergt. Thomas Alcock of the jewelry detail of the Chicago police was 30 minutes getting into the exposition grounds yesterday with a million dollars' worth of cut and uncut diamonds for the jewelers' exhibit in the general exhibits group. "Where's your pass?" he was asked when he arrived with a squad car. He had none and some busy minutes were spent on the telephone before an official O. K. was given for admitting the car.

The model mail car of the Burlington railroad, at the Travel and Transport building, is doing a rushing business in sending post cards to every part of the country. The mail rack is filled every day with cards addressed by visitors. More than 258,000 have gone through the train.

W. R. Moulds, manager of the World's Fair official parking station, which covers the area from 16th to 26th street, reported last night that automobiles representing thirty-six different states were parked there. Cars from the Panama Canal Zone, Mexico, Hawaii and Quebec also were among approximately 4,000 machines parked there at 8:30 p. m.

DANISH GROUPS GIVE COLORFUL PROGRAM AT FAIR

BY EARL MULLIN.

Denmark day was observed at the Fair yesterday with foreign diplomats, city and Fair officials, and more than four hundred drill and song team members participating in the colorful ceremonies, part of which originated in Aalberg, approximately 4,300 miles away. The foreign program was carried to the 3,000 Danish-Americans in the court of the Hall of Science by a radio hookup to a score of public address loud speakers.

Representing one of the largest single groups yet to participate in an Exposition program, the Danish-Americans swelled the total attendance to a figure in keeping with the record breaking throngs of the past two weeks. At 11:30 p. m. official attendance figures showed 94,523 visitors had passed through the gates.

Envoy's Entry Is Climax.

The high light of the Danish program was the entrance of Theodore Wadsted, minister from the kingdom of Denmark to the United States. The arrival of the ambassador was carried out with all the panoply and ceremony of a royal presentation, and was participated in by the United States army, Fair officials and a score of Danish-American societies.

The official car, occupied by the minister and Reimund Baumann, Danish consul general in Chicago, was met in the Court of Honor north of Soldiers' field by a band and an honor guard from the 6th infantry, stationed at Camp Whistler. The official party was greeted with a minister's salute and taken to the court of the Hall of Science to be greeted by President Rufus C. Dawes of the Fair.

Drill teams of the Danish-American societies preceeded the envoy's arrival with intricate and colorful drills, and formed an avenue of color down which the official party marched to be greeted by President Dawes. The national anthem of Denmark was presented by the People's Symphony orchestra and sung by a chorus of three hundred voices, to greet the minister and his party.

Dawes Pays Tribute to Danes.

Under the direction of Jens Eriksen, chairman of the day, a program participated in by drill teams, singing societies, and Danish athletes, was presented on the large stage at the head of the court. The visitors were welcomed by President Dawes.

Minister Wadsted assured the Fair of the coöperation of Denmark and pointed to the two exhibits of that country as evidence of the interest shown in the Exposition. Two major exhibits are presented. A scientific exhibition, showing the first known thermometer, early sextants, and scientific inventions and discoveries o Danish scientists, is presented in the Hall of Science. In the Travel and Transport building an exhibition of beautiful laces, manufacturies, and the native products of Denmark are shown.

The first international radio hookup of the Fair carried the greetings of Theodore Stgaming, prime minister of Denmark, and Ruth Bryan Owen, the United States minister to Denmark. As a part of the foreign program choruses and bands, giving a presentation in Aalberg, Denmark, as their contribution to Danish day at the Fair, was broadcast.

Prime Minister Voices Greeting.

Speaking in Danish, the prime minister greeted the Danish-Americans and assured them of the hearty good wishes of their countrymen. He congratulated America and Chicago on the Fair and said that the Danish people felt themselves a part of the great presentation of mankind's advance in the last century. Mrs. Owen voiced a greeting and thanked the Danish-Americans, as descendants of the Danes, for the courteous and understanding treatment she had received in their native land.

In the evening a special dinner and program was given at the Palmer house, with about seven hundred persons attending. A reception was held by the envoy and among the honor guests was Miss Elise Brems, mezzo soprano of the Royal Opera company of Copenhagen. She came to America especially for last night's program and will return to Copenhagen within the next few days.

Today Is Wisconsin Day.

Two other special events, closely related to the Scandinavian series, were the dedication of the Minnesota state exhibit in the afternoon, and the arrival of the official Wisconsin party in the evening. Today will jointly be Wisconsin day and Scandinavian day at the Fair, with a massed program of Swedes, Danes, Finns and Norwegians in Soldiers' field.

At the Minnesota dedication in the Hall of States John R. Foley, chairman of the Minnesota conservation committee, represented Gov. Floyd B. Olson, who was unable to attend. Dr. Allen D. Albert, representing President Dawes, answered on behalf of the Fair. The dedication ceremony, attended by approximately 500 persons, was held in the beautiful small scale model of Itasca state park in the rear of the exhibit.

The state exhibit forms a north woods setting with replicas of hunting lodges and sylvan pools representing a cool and colorful atmosphere. Moving panoramas show the state's principal resources and industries.

Welcome Badger Delegation.

The official Wisconsin party, composed o a 500 automobile caravan, arrived last night, and was met by a delegation of Chicago motorcycle police at Austin and Washington boulevards. The caravan started at the north end of the state, picking up delegations on its way south and joining with Gov. Albert G. Schmedeman and his official party at Madison. Also participating in the day's ceremonies will be the band from the University of Wisconsin, which arrived yesterday.

W-G-N will broadcast the Wisconsin program beginning at 10:30 a. m.

NORWAY'S CROWN PRINCE TO BRING PRINCESS TO FAIR

King Sends Word Couple Will Come in September

Crown Prince Olaf and Crown Princess Martha of Norway will visit A Century of Progress in September. Their coming was assured yesterday in a letter received by Christian Olsen, president of the Memorial for Leif Ericson in America, from the private secretary to King Haakon VII. of Norway.

The letter announced that the crown prince and princess would visit the Fair as representatives of the crown and officiate at the laying of the corner stone of the Leif Ericson memorial in Grant park. Invitations were extended to the king and queen by the sculptor of the memorial, Oskar J. W. Hansen, who traveled to Oslo for that purpose.

The letter received yesterday by Mr. Olsen said in part:

"I have the honor by command of his majesty to communicate that the royal family has received and does cherish highly the invitations so delivered, but that the king and queen unfortunately by many reasons are prevented from undertaking the desired visit. On the other hand, the crown prince and princess intend to journey to Chicago during September this year. Through a conference with the sculptor, it is understood that the laying of the corner stone will be deferred until that month."

KILLS HUSBAND'S WOMAN FRIEND AND SHOOTS HIM

Portsmouth, O., June 21.—(AP)—Mrs. Ethe Pusateri, who police said admitted she shot and killed another woman and critically wounded her husband when she found them together, pleaded not guilty today to a charge of second degree murder.

With her daughter, Nancy, 18, Mrs. Pusateri then returned home, where the double shooting occured last night.

Relatives identified the body of the slain woman as Mrs. Armatude Batterson McCoy, 28, pretty wife of Edward McCoy. She was shot in the head.

Lets Contract for Viaduct for World Fair Car Line

Commissioner of Public Works Hewitt yesterday awarded to the Keller-Elliott construction company the contract to build a viaduct for street cars over the Illinois Central tracks at Roosevelt road. The work will cost approximately $95,000, of which the city will pay $83,000 and the surface lines $12,000. The car line will furnish another means of access to the World's Fair. The work is expected to be finished within a month.

C. H. Morse's North Shore Home Damaged by Fire

Fire, believed started by spontaneous combustion, caused $10,000 damage yesterday to a country residence on Town Line road, four miles southwest of Lake Forest, owned by C. H. Morse, wealthy manufacturer. The house is occupied for the summer by Ryan B. Reed, official of an oil company, but he and his family were away when the fire was discovered by a caretaker.

Wind Off Lake Routs Heat; Cool Weather Due to Stay

Chicago obtained relief from its extended heat wave yesterday morning when the wind shifted from the southwest to the northeast and poured in air that had been cooled by Lake Michigan.

The mercury at 11 o'clock stood at 88. By noon the reading was 72 degrees, and the highest during the afternoon was 74. Shortly after 3 p. m. there was an intermittent misting rain, but the precipitation was not measurable.

Forecaster W. P. Day said that today should be fair and cool, adding that there was no extreme heat in prospect for several days.

Fair Gets Early Relief.

Visitors at A Century of Progress Exposition noticed yesterday's change in temperature nearly an hour before it was recorded at the observatory on the University of Chicago campus. It was 70 on the Fair grounds by 11:30 a. m. North shore suburbs felt the effect of the cooling winds even earlier.

The effect of the lake as a cooling system was demonstrated during the afternon. At 1 p. m., while it was 72 in the city, Elgin had 86, Aurora 89, Joliet 88, Flossmoor 90, and Wheaton 90. Later the general winds that swept down from the north struck the western suburbs and they cooled off also.

Longest Day of Year.

Yesterday was the longest day of the year in the northern hemisphere, measured in terms of daylight. The summer solstice occurred at 4:12 p. m. At that time the wind was blowing lazily from the lake and several amateur weather observers hastened to inform THE TRIBUNE that this meant a cool summer from this day on.

"It is practically infallible," said one informant. "If the wind had been from the west or southwest today the next three months would have been blistering. I can also foretell the wind of winter by observing the winds on the winter solstice."

This expert admitted that he had been slightly mistaken when he predicted a zeroless winter last December on the strength of a southwest breeze. Still, he added, January was quite mild, and he ought to be allowed a little percentage of error.

This "Prophet" Is Gloomy.

Another amateur forecaster said the first one was all wrong and that the wind had to be noted for three days, that of the solstice and the two previous ones. This gentleman was gloomy about the prospects for summer in view of the fact that the wind was west and southwest more than two-thirds of the time.

Forecaster Day smiled at these rule of thumb methods and pointed out that both experts would be puzzled by the weather map, which showed wind directions from all points of the compass in different cities only a hundred miles or so apart.

Farmers and gardeners continued to hope yesterday that a measurable quantity of rain would fall and help save their growing plants. It was still hot in Michigan yesterday and fears were expressed for small grains and potatoes. Corn planted early is doing well in Illinois, it was said, but the late planting is having a difficult time surviving.

Final competitions in the national peony show at the Horticultural building at the Fair were announced yesterday. A new beauty variety was chosen as the most beautiful flower. The variety, Hansena Brand, an American product originating on the peony farm of A. M. Brand, Faribault, Minn., won the Farr gold medal as the best peony in the show. The new variety defeated blossome of Le Cynge, Solange, and Therese, French originations which had taken first honors for many years.

The largest single prize winner was C. W. Bunn, vice president of the Northern Pacific railroad, of St. Paul, Minn. Judge Bunn entered the prize winning blossoms of Hansena Brand, and took prizes in many other classes. He entered several hundred blossoms.

Another large prize winner was R. A. Napier of Blue Island, who received a gold medal, three first prizes, five seconds, and three third prizes. Other large prize winners included A. B. Franklin, Minneapolis; L. W. Lundgren, St. Paul; Max Kanowski, Grand Forks, S. D., and Lyman D. Glasscock, Elwood, Ill.

The new champion peony is a full rounded flower of true rose type of a creamy pink. The flower which received the gold medal was eight inches in diameter and declared by the judges to be without a flaw.

POLICEMAN'S WIDOW ROBBED.

Mrs. Virginia Doolan, widow of Policeman James Doolan, was robbed of $44 yesterday by a gunman who invaded the rental office which she maintains in her home at 4355 South Sawyer avenue.

DEATH PLOTTER ADMITS KILLING AUTOIST ON DARE

Two Year Mystery Solved by Confession.

A two year old murder, which was committed because the slayer "couldn't be dared," was solved last night with the confessions of two youths, one of whom was arrested several days ago in connection with the alleged plot of Mrs. Bessie Opas against her husband. The murder victim was Homer R. Barnhart, 24 years old, of 4310 Crystal street. He was shot to death on March 31, 1931.

The prisoners are Angelo Masso, 21 years old, 518 South Central Park avenue, father of a 3 year old child, and his cousin, Joseph Devito, 22, of 4346 Van Buren street, board of trade messenger, whose wife expects to become a mother in two weeks. Masso, who is held in the Opas case [which was no murder at all], confessed the actual killing of Barnhart. Devito admitted his gun was used.

Trapped Into Confession.

Sergt. Michael Naughton of the Scotland Yard detail obtained the confessions of Masso and Devito. He suspected Masso of the Barnhart slaying, and trapped him into an admission by telling him that his three companions, seized with him for the Opas plot, had incriminated him. Somewhat remorseful, Masso talked. He named Devito. Devito was seized at his home last night. The gun used in slaying Barnhart was hung over his bed.

Barnhart lost his life because of a trivial automobile collision. Masso, Devito, and a third youth, whose arrest is expected soon, were in one car and Barnhart in another. The automobiles scraped fenders on a west side street. Words followed, and the youths followed him to in front of 317 South Winchester avenue. Barnhart got out of his car, the cousins related.

Slayer Tells His Story.

"I threatened to shoot him," said Masso, "and he said: 'O, so you think you're a tough guy. Well, go ahead and shoot. You haven't got nerve enough. I dare you.' I pressed the trigger twice. We got away. I felt sorry the next day when I learned he had a wife. You see, I'm married too."

Devito's story of the shooting was somewhat similar. He added that "Masso couldn't take a dare." Devito, in revealing that the revolver used by Masso was his, said he had stolen it from a prominent man. He refused to name the man, for fear, he declared, of "being killed."

"I had the gun in my pocket at the time of the auto accident and I gave it to Masso when Barnhart got out of the car," said Devito.

Held as Murder Plotters.

Just before Masso's confession was obtained by Sergt. Naughton, Masso and three other youths in the Opas case, and Mrs. Opas herself, were held to the grand jury by Judge John Gutknecht on charges of conspiracy to murder her husband, Marion Opas, owner of the Opas Motor Sales company, 5114 South Racine avenue. In court Opas, who had caused his wife's arrest, had a change of heart, and said he believed her innocent.

"I think the boys are to blame," he said. The boys are Masso, Dominic Zullo, 19 years old, 3226 Polk street; John De Salvo, 17, of 3103 Congress street, and Jerry Lehman, 18, of 1959 Washburne avenue. Mrs. Opas, Masso and Lehman were held in bonds of $15,000 each, and De Salvo and Zullo, described as minor figures, in bonds of $3,500 each.

Judge Hears Story of Plot.

Judge Gutknecht was told that Mrs. Opas had hired the four youths to take her husband for a ride so that she could collect his $30,000 insurance. The youths charged she had agreed to pay them $5,000 for the job and give them an automobile.

Mrs. Opas first confessed that she had plotted with the youths to have her husband killed, but later she repudiated her confession. Yesterday she charged that she was being "framed."

When Opas unexpectedly stood by his wife, Assistant State's Attorney John L. Murphy suggested that his change of heart was due to the fact that his wife had deposited $3,000 of his money in her name in a south side bank and that he hoped to get it back.

MYSTERY VEILS FATE OF FLYERS

Map indicates where Capt. Mariano Barberan and Lieut. Joaquin Collar, Spanish trans-Atlantic flyers, are reported to have met disaster on their flight from Havana for Mexico City. Searching parties were unable last night to locate the wreckage of their plane, which unconfirmed reports had said crashed into La Malinche mountain, 100 miles from Mexico City.

HOUSE, DOUGLAS ARE VISITORS ON ROOSEVELT BOAT

Three Talk in Cockpit of Amberjack II.

BY JOHN HERRICK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Aboard Motor Ketch Mary Alice, Little Harbor, Portsmouth, N. H., Jnue 21.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt rested aboard the Amberjack II. snugly harbored here tonight following a leisurely sail across Ipswich bay from Gloucester.

The President earned his afternoon's sport, for once more the cares of office intruded upon the holiday. As he lay, inside Gloucester breakwater this morning he was visited by Col. Edward M. House, one time confidential adviser to President Wilson and political counselor to the present Democratic executive. A few moments later Budget Director Lewis W. Douglas was put aboard.

President Bareheaded.

It was a conference of state probably unique in presidential history as the three men sat in the cockpit of the little schooner talking. Most of the population of Gloucester, it seemed, toured about in any sort of craft they could lay hand on. For the occasion President Roosevelt was bareheaded and wore a white shirt, collar open and without a tie, and a gray knit jacket.

The visit of Col. House, who has a summer home at Manchester-by-the-Sea, was described as a friendly call; but it was considered certain that he talked with the President concerning the progress of the London conference. The chief topic with Budget Director Douglas was the new schedule of veterans' allowance under the independent offices bill which congress finally passed after days of battle.

Meanwhile another conference was taking place, for the wives of the schooner's crew also came out for a visit. They were Mrs. James Roosevelt, Mrs. George Briggs, Mrs. Paul Rust, and Mrs. John Cutter.

Receives Fishing Captains.

Before the arrival of Col. House and Mr. Lewis, President Roosevelt fulfilled the real purpose of his visit to Gloucester by receiving Capt. Ben Pine and his company of fishing captains who called on him at Washington in the spring.

"Cap'n" Pine and his company of hardy sailors presented to the President an oil painting of the schooner Gertrude L. Thebaud, which carried them to Washington and is famous as the American contender for the Fishermen's cup.

The President appeared well rested after his midnight arrival at Gloucester following a sail through the darkness of Massachusetts bay.

The start from Gloucester was made at noon. Instead of making the rough passage around Cape Ann, the Amberjack II. slid through the winding channel of Annisquam canal, which cuts behind the cape. At Annisquam village the Amberjack anchored for a brief lunch hour, then set off across Ipswich bay.

A light breeze blew out of the southwest, pushing the schoner along at a steady jog. She soon broke out a spinnaker and so picked at knot or two.

The President, having gained a day by last night's run, is right on schedule and should easily make Portland, Me., on Friday, when he is due to pick up his two younger sons, Franklin Jr. and John.

DEFER JUSTICE PARK CASE THAT STARTED SPEED TRAP INQUIRY

Charges of speeding and disorderly conduct against James Cropp, 50 years old, 4536 South Turner avenue, and his son, Stanley, whose arrest in Justice Park brought an investigation of the village speed trap by the state's attorney, were continued yesterday until Saturday by Justice of the Peace Frank O'Brien of Oak Lawn. The contiuance was asked by Village Attorney Harold Jackson of Justice Park, who said that he had witnesses who would testify that the Cropps had been drinking at the time of their arrest.

Justice of the Peace Si Lindeman, his clerk, John C. Richards, and Constable Albert Webster of Justice Park resigned at the suggestion of the state's attorney after an investigation was started into the arrest of the Cropps. They charged that they were arrested, held without bond, and left in the Justice Park jail until the elder Cropp was overcome by the heat. A lively argument between Attorney Joseph H. Braun of the Chicago Motor club, who defended the Cropps, and Attorney Jackson marked the hearing yesterday.

COURT REFUSES PLEA TO ESCAPE MILITARY DRILL

Annapolis, Md., June 21.—(AP)—The Maryland court of appeals held today that a student at the University of Maryland cannot legally be exempted from the military training course through a plea of conscientious objection.

In an opinion handed down in the case of Ennis H. Coale, a 20 year old freshman, who sought court intervention after his suspension from the university because of a refusal to take military training, Associate Judge John Pattison wrote:

"It is difficult to conceive how the constitution can, in this case, afford any protection to the appellee [Coale] as a conscientious objector in his refusal to take military training at the university, where he had registered as a student.

"Not only was he without constitutional support in refusing to take such training, but he was likewise, so far as we have been able to discover, without any law, federal or state, in support of his contention."

Coale said membership in the Methodist Episcopal church made him a conscientious objector to war.

Case Against Five Taken Under Advisement.

The night of terror which she spent locked in the same cell with a demented woman after police had refused to book her when she had injured a small boy with an automobile was described to the civil service commission yesterday by Miss Lilyan Zagel, 18 years old, 1357 North Rockwell street.

She was a witness against four policemen and a police matron against whom charges were made because of their conduct in her case. They are: Sergt. Joseph J. Purcell and Patrolmen Eugene Piggott, Patrick Griffin, and Walter Green of the West North avenue station and Margaret Jones, matron at the Racine avenue women's quarters.

The commission took the cases under advisement at the close of the hearing. Matron Jones, Purcell, Piggott, and Griffin are charged with conduct unbecoming police employés. Green is charged with making a false official report.

Tells of Taking Child Home.

Miss Zagel testified that she struck Hyman Muslin, 4 years old, 2621 Evergreen street, on May 19. She was about half a block from her home and the car she was driving was in low gear, she testified. She stopped her car immediately, went to the child's home with his mother, and stayed there for an hour, she said. Before leaving she gave her name, address, and license number to a man whose name she did not know, she testified.

She went home and later in the evening was arrested by Green, Griffin, and Piggott and taken to the West North avenue station. There, she said, Sergt. Purcell refused to book her so that her father might post bail for her and had her taken to the Racine avenue station and locked up for the night. Matron Jones placed her in a cell with a woman being held for an examination of her sanity.

"She spent the night praying and pacing the floor," said Miss Zagel. "I was afraid and asked the matron if I couldn't sit in her office. She refused, but the day matron placed me in another cell when she came on duty."

Charge Against Her Dismissed.

Miss Zagel was not booked until the afternoon of the next day. The charge of reckless driving against her was dismissed when Harry Muslin, father of the injured boy, did not appear in court.

The charge against Green was based upon the fact that he reported that Abe Lirtzman, who lives in the same building with the Muslins, had told him that Miss Zagel attempted to flee from the scene of the accident and was stopped by men who jumped on her running board. Lirtzman also testified that he made such a statement to Green, although he did not see the accident. Assistant City Prosecutor Earle Downes, who prosecuted the cases, did not bring out that Lirtzman denied making any such statement when he was questioned by Col. Philip Crippen, police inspector.

Matron Jones testified that it was her custom to place the first two woman prisoners she received in the same cell, "to console each other." First offenders, when placed in a cell alone, frequently try to do themselves harm, she asserted.

Asserts Special Interests Rule Newspapers of Europe

An unflattering estimate of European journalism was presented yesterday before the tenth institute of the Norman Wait Harris Foundation at the University of Chicago. The speaker was a French journalist, Jules Sauerwein of the staff of the Paris Soir, regarded as among the foremost of his profession abroad. The institute, in which a score of journalists and publicists are participating, is considering the topic, "The Formation of Public Opinion in World Pictures."

Mr. Sauerwein pictured the newspaper of his own and other continental countries as largely under domination of men who used both the news organs and news agencies to play on public opinion for private gain or personal prestige. He cited as examples certain newspaper syndicates of Germany and France.

Compares Pamphlets and Tribune.

Mr. Sauerwein traced the history of continental journalism back to the pamphlets of the old French régime.

"The men compiling those pamphlets," he said had nothing in common with the proprietors of those great newspaper plants of today, where a New York Times or CHICAGO TRIBUNE is prepared for publication by a staff of thousands of people.

"In my own country, we have an unofficial newspaper trust, which is probably almost entirely in control of the advertising business. In connection with this trust, I recall how foreign personalities such as President Coolidge, President Hoover, and President Roosevelt complained that these newspapers are much to nationalistic and have no true understanding of great foreign countries, especially the United States.

Provincial Papers Different.

"To this criticism, I invariably answered that these syndicate newspapers are not the real makers of French public opinion, but that many smaller papers in the provinces have a greater influence and better represent the average French citizen. The point was proved, I think, in the election when the powerful syndicate was defeated by a great wave from the left, which brought into power statesmen such as Herriot, Paul-Boncour, and Daladier.

"Printed opinion does not enjoy the same prestige in France as in some other countries. What the French syndicate tried to do resembled the famous enterprise of Hugenberg in Germany, who tried to instill nationalism and conservatism through his newspapers, and saw the people pass over his conception and embrace a system which will soon be little different from sovietism, except that its ideal will be national instead of international."

Anybody Can Subsidize a Paper.

The trouble with continental journalism, as Mr. Sauerwein interpreted it, was at "any druggist, vintner, wheat trader, or industrialist can subsidize a newspaper and use it to exploit his personal interests." He cited the example of M. Coty, the Parisian perfumer, who acquired several papers and founded others to defend the perfumery interests and to foist his own social and political ideas on the readers.

Not long ago, he said, a group of the syndicate writers, in concern over their lack of influence, met in Paris and proposed to embark on a campaign to "spread confidence" in their writings. The proposal was hailed with acclaim, he said, until one of the older writers pointed out that "confidence had to be earned."

Refers to War Profits.

"Unfortunately," said Sauerwein, "in more than one country, a certain group of interests, secretly or openly, become the real masters of great agencies and papers. Some of these controlling industries make immense profits out of preparations for war. I do not go so far as to say that they want to see their own people going to war. They certainly prefer to see other nations actually fighting."

Mr. Sauerwein will deliver two more lectures here. Before joining the Paris Soir he was for eight years with the New York Times and later was chief of the foreign staff of Le Matin.

FRENCH ORGANIZE 'GOLD LEAGUE' TO WAR ON U. S.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 21.—The French answer to the breakdown of negotiations for stabilization of the dollar today was to begin sounding out a way for the creation of a monetary and tariff union of gold standard countries.

According to reports current tonight, the four principal gold standard countries—France, Belgium, Switzerland and Holland—would enter into a close agreement for the protection of their currencies and would accord preferential customs privileges to all members of the group.

Aim Pressure at U. S.

The purpose of this ostensibly is to protect all gold standard countries against prejudice to their trade through continued depreciation of the dollar. However, this united gold front would also be able to exert considerable pressure on the United States by a threat of concerted action to block American exports.

The French are making strong efforts, it is learned, to lure Great Britain into the combination, but the chances for success are uncertain. Britain's entrance into the league would be made possible by adoption of an international silver currency which would have the effect of attaching the pound to gold by an indirect link.

While some conference circles think the scheme is largely a French bluff, it undoubtedly reflects the uneasiness of the French over their ability to maintain the gold standard in the face of a depreciating dollar.

Bonnet Threatens to Quit.

This danger was openly recognized in Finance Minister Georges Bonnet's speech today before the monetary and finance commission. Bonnet served notice that "honest nations with stable currencies" could not submit to having the economy upset by other nations who played around with fluctuating currencies.

He intimated that if the United States did not consent to return at once to the gold standard France would quit the conference. Bonnet in his speech said:

"How can capital flow and confidence be restored if a country with sound finances and a balanced budget can be hard hit because near or distant countries have embarked on a perilous course of inflation or currency devaluation? So long as this situation persists, each country must consider first of all how to develop itself against resultant pressing dangers of exploitation and speculation.

"Stable Money Essential."

"Stable money is essential. Currency depreciation may undermine the foundation on which our society rests. There is unanimous agreement on these points. But eloquent speeches are not enough. Paper undertakings that will be scattered to the winds are not sufficient. Concrete measures, with all their requisite technical details, must be worked out and applied. On these lines and for these ends the hearty coöperation of France is assured."

It had been stated that the French would bring up the matter of adjourning the conference pending a settlement of the stabilization quarrel at the morning meeting between Prime Minister MacDonald, president of the conference, and the heads of committees. The meeting took place, but the French remained silent.

German Envoys Booed.

British anti-Hitlerites gave the conference a touch of color today when Baron von Neurath, German foreign minister, and eight members of his delegation left for Berlin. The anti-Hitlerites said farewell to the Germans with boos and hisses and by flaunting banners inscribed "Down with Fascism" and "murderers." When asked if he would return to London, Baron von Neurath said: "I hope so, when the conference begins to reach decisions."

United States Senator Key Pittman's resolution proposing the remonetization of silver disappeared today in the recesses of a subcommittee, which sat privately and whose deliberations may never become public.

The proposal of Maxim Litvinov, Russian commissar of foreign affairs, for a pact of economic nonaggression, which was designed to put the British in a hole over their boycott of Russian goods, was also sent to a subcommittee, but the Russians, who are past masters in the art of conference procedure, did not seem worried and it is not impossible that they will manage to get an open discussion of their plan before long.

Calls Gold Unstable.

An important memorandum of stabilization was submitted by Prof. K. G. Cassel, famous Swedish economist. The burden of it was that gold is not a stable standard but has, as a matter of fact, fluctuated widely in value in reference to commodity values.

"In this sense gold is not a stable currency," he said.

Fluctuations of exchanges he declared to be equally deceiving and he called for a definition of terms as necessary before helpful discussion could take place.

Central Europe May Form Union.

LONDON, June 21.—(AP)—Important steps toward the creation of a solid central European economic bloc was understood tonight in informed quarters to have been taken in London by little entente—Czechoslovakia, Jugo-Slavia, and Rumania.

The little entente wants to wean Austria and Hungary away from a possible customs union with Germany and to add them to tariff treaties with Czechslovakia, Rumania, and Jugo-Slavia.

Edouard Benes, Czechoslovakian foreign minister; Nicholas Titulescu, Rumanian foreign minister, and Bosko Jeftitch, who holds a similar position in Jugo-Slavia, conferred privately yesterday about the realization of this long talked about Danubian customs union. Jeftitch left today and Benes will leave tomorrow for Paris to discuss the matter with Premier Daladier and Foreign Minister Paul-Boncour.

See Franco-Italian Pact.

Solution of the Franco-Italian political differences, it was said quarters close to the little entente, must come before a Danubian union is possible.

Little entente statesmen, it was said, believe France and Italy are more friendly since signing Premier Mussolini's four power peace pact, and rivally in central Europe between France and Italy was predicted as about to be clarified. Premier Mussolini, these circles said, was pushing the frequently rumored meeting with Premier Daladier.

Benes and Jeftitch were understood to have been mandated to tell Premier Daladier and Paul Boncour that the little entente approves a Franco-Italian accord, providing the integrity of the little entente is not molested.

They also were mandated, it was said, to tell the French officials that the little entente disapproves a reported Franco-Italian plan to place France Otto of the Hapsburgs on the throne at Vienna and maintain Nicholas Horthy at Budapest as regent, thus creating a "personal monarchy."

The discussions of representatives of the Big Four wheat growing countries on methods of controling marketing and lifting prices were discontinued today when Australian delegates asked more time to consult their home governments.

The conferees, representing the United States, Canada, Argentina, and Australia, appeared blocked temporarily by the inability of representatives of Australia to adhere to crop restriction plans, advocated chiefly by the North Americans.

Henry Morgenthau Sr., head of the American group, held informal talks, meanwhile, with Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinov of Russia. While the soviet union has not been brought formally into the discussions yet, important American quarters were inclined to the view that no enduring solution to the wheat problem is possible without that country, despite its short crop this year.

Moley Departs for London on Mission for President

New York, June 21.—[Special.]—Raymond Moley, assistant secretary of state and member of the Roosevelt brain trust, sailed today for Europe where he will serve as a contact man between the administration and the American delegation to the world economic conference in London, from which, he said, he expects definite results.

On the deck of the United States lines cabin ship Manhattan, before she left her pier, he issued a formal statement and answered a few hurried questions in an interview of less than ten minutes.

Makes Formal Statement.

The formal statement, which he read for newsreel men, was this:

"I am looking forward with pleasure to seeing Secretary Hull and the other members of the American delegation. I feel that the two weeks of preliminaries at the conference have been useful in the direction of exploring the possibilities of action. The delegation is ready to pursue vigorously the plans which they developed in the week before they sailed, and America may look forward to definite results from their efforts.

"I am, as the President stated yesterday, serving as a means of contact between the administration here and the delegation."

After distributing copies of these words, Mr. Moley answered a few questions.

He said that he and the President had canvassed the whole matter yesterday, that his instructions "were not in the nature of specific orders," and that he hoped to be valuable in furnishing background for the delegation.

Tactics May Be Altered.

He also said that tactics might change quickly as the situation altered, remarking that there had been many changes in the last few weeks.

He declined to say anything about the possibility of America's retreating into economic isolation if Europe should present too united and hostile a front.

His going to London had been planned long in advance, he said, and his departure after the start of the conference was not to be taken as a sign of changed plans due to developments. Conversely, he said that the return from Europe of Gov. Harrison of the federal reserve bank had no significance except that Mr. Harrison was adhering to plans he had made some time before.

In Mr. Moley's party were Herbert Bayard Swope, former newspaper executive, going as a special adviser and taking his son, Herbert Bayard Swope Jr., as secretary; Arthur F. Mullen Jr., Mr. Moley's assistant, and Edmund Day, a technical adviser to the delegation.

U.S. ENVOYS FIGHT BRITISH CHARGES OF 'OBSTRUCTION'

Americans Plan Reply to Attacks by Press.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 22.—[Thursday.]—From 5 o'clock last evening until nearly midnight, with two hours out for dinner, the American delegation was engaged in what appeared to be its most important session since its arrival at the world economic conference.

Mystery was added to the session by reports that Secretary of State Hull had received fresh instructions from President Roosevelt regarding the course the delegation is to pursue in the future. Mr. Hull, however, and other members of the delegation emphatically denied that any communication had been received from the President.

May Issue Statement Today.

Throughout the five hours of the meeting, there was a great coming and going of technical advisers, experts, stenographers, press liaison officers and other supernumeraries. It was given out that there would be an important statement for the press at the close of the meeting.

At last the session adjourned and the weary delegates filed out. There would be no statement after all, they said. At least not then; later today, maybe.

Then the whole story came out. The American delegation had been upset by stories in London newspapers that its members are divided on policies and unable to agree among themselves or with President Roosevelt, and are marking time until Prof. Raymond Moley, head of the Roosevelt brain trust, shall arrive to take charge. Prof. Moley sailed from the United States for England today.

Unable to Frame Reply.

The Americans had been particularly nettled by British newspaper views that the delegation is blocking agreements on the stabilization of currencies and the reduction of tariffs and other trade barriers because President Roosevelt has found such objectives inconsistent with inflationary and economic isolation policies embraced in his domestic program for recovery.

The delegation set out to frame a statement to explain away these British misconceptions, but after five hours of labor gave up the effort for the night. No two delegates were able to agree on a phraseology adequate to establish the untruth of the charges that no two American delegates can agree on anything.

The Americans were relieved by the news that Prof. Moley is to stay here only a week. With Assistant Secretary of State Moley overshadowing Secretary of State Hull, it had been thought likely that Mr. Hull would return to Washington. With the embarrassment of such a situation limited to a week, it is now deemed probable that Mr. Hull will remain in London.

Wives of U. S. Envoys to Pay Homage to British Royalty

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 21.—With the last court of the season taking place at Buckingham palace Friday night, the entries of the United States in the ladies' open curtsey finals for the world economic and monetary colonial cup are training hard at headquarters of the American delegation to the economic conference here and when inspected by this correspondent today seemed to be rounding into championship form.

While there is the usual array of young talent in the amateur list—altogether 13 Americans are scheduled for presentation—the delegation team will be composed of Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the secretary of state, as captain; Mrs. Paul Hays, her niece, and Miss Margaret McReynolds, daughter of Congressman Samuel D. McReynolds.

Practice Before Mirrors.

At the moment of going to press, this trio constitutes America's best hope for winning back the cherished trophy which was lost in 1776 through the unsportsmanlike attitude of Americans on the question of bodyline bowling at Concord, Mass.

The American delegation's men's team, while they made a satisfactory showing in the early rounds of the bowing and scraping competition, have not entirely lived up to expectations and it appears doubtful that they have the stuff to outclass the Canadian, Australian, South African, Indian, and Portuguese delegations.

The ladies' team, however, exhibits a lot of natural talent and is taking daily serious workouts in front of mirrors. In fact, it looked to this correspondent as if they are in some danger of showing up Friday night overtrained, the more so as the American coach, Mrs. Robert W. Bingham, wife of the American ambassador, who will conduct her young hopes into the royal presence has had no major league experience herself.

Ladies Neglect Roadwork.

On the first visit to the training camp several days ago this correspondent had the impression that the ladies were concentrating too much on rehearsing the curtsey itself and other phases of the competition such as train lifting, and were neglecting rope skipping, shot putting and roadwork in Hyde Park, which experts concede to be an important part of the training program.

But at today's workout the entries went through their maneuvers with a snap and ease which gave weight to the report current in conference circles that they have called in a pro to help them. The training is expected to be concluded tomorrow with a general workout at the embassy, with Mrs. Bingham participating, and Mrs. Ray Atherton, wife of the embassy counselor, calling signals.

Make Good Showing.

The showing of the United States team at the royal garden party last Saturday in the eyes of objective observers amply justified the lineup.

Miss McReynolds particularly looks good and impressed the dopesters by her speed and grace in the workouts. Her footwork is not entirely orthodox and she is apt to be a little confused by her train, but her equilibrium equals anything ever seen in international competition and should convince foreign observers that stabilization is just around the corner.

The competition, as usual, will be run off under Windsor House rules, which disbar all those who are divorced.

The unofficial or second team whipped up by Coach Bingham is also distinctly above the average. The presence of Alexandra Bacon, daughter of Congressman Bacon, and Helen Robbins, daughter of Warren Delano Robbins, former chief of protocol in the state department, is sufficient to show the class of the rest of the field.

With the help of British dressmakers, the ladies are now getting their trousseaus ready for the big event and the resultant excitement has virtually paralyzed the official activities of the American delegates, who are so busy holding pins in their teeth and adjusting whatnots that they have not repudiated anything for two days.

A CHICAGO BOY DIES TRYING TO DO HOUDINI ACT

Kenosha, Wis., June 21.—[Special.]—His hobby of trying "Houdini" stunts was believed Wednesday to have brought death to Frank Edward Sebastian Jr., 13 years old, son of wealthy Chicago parents who have a summer home at Twin Lakes and who live at 731 Buckingham place, Chicago.

The boy had suffered from a heart ailment and asthma for several years. Tuesday he had spent the entire day swimming, boating, and playing. When he failed to appear for dinner a search was instituted for him. The boy was found in a corner of the boathouse, slumped forward with a narrow trousers belt tied loosely around his neck.

Physicians were called. They said he had died of strangulation, but not from hanging. While trying to work the stunt, they believed, the boy suffered a heart attack and an asthmatic attack at the same time.

Warrant for Policeman Who Hit Autoist Issued

A warrant charging Policeman Roy Trautmann of the North Shore park district with assault and battery was issued yesterday by Judge Thomas A. Green in the traffic court. The complainant, Adolph Braun, 4609 Monticello avenue, charged the policeman struck him in the face when he attempted to park his car in a restricted area at 6700 Sheridan road on Monday night. Trautmann told the court Braun poked him in the stomach with his elbow.

WHAT IS LIFE? WHAT IS DEATH? BALK SCIENCE

Their Difference Still Eludes the Searchers.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Life against death—the drama of a plant cell—was described by Dr. J. Dufrenoy, plant physiologist of Gironde, France, at the American Association for the Advancement of Science session in the Chicago Woman's club building yesterday. While life is in this ultimate body, and what death is, as near as the human eye has ever observed it, may be found here. But life itself ever eludes the searchers.

In another section of the vast gathering of scientists the new "celestial clock," by which geologic time is counted in ticks of millions of years, was explained by Prof. C. S. Piggott of the Geophysical laboratory, Washington, D. C., in a session in Field museum. This leads, among other things, to the suggestion that common lead as found in mines and observed in drain pipes was produced in the sun long before this earth came into being.

New Intelligence Test.

If these suggestions are not intriguing one may turn to the psychologists who met in Lincoln hall on McKinlock campus and here learn from Dr. Charles E. Spearman of the University of London of a new conception of intelligence testing known as Noe Genesis, which takes in something of the Gestalt school of Austria, and something else that may be called common sense.

Dr. Dufrenoy said in the course of his description of cellular life and death:

"We feel that the highest magnification available with the microscope fails to reveal what is the fundamental difference between living and dead cells, though the proper killing methods of modern cytology preserve the finest details of the cell arrangements, changing only the staining properties of the various cell constituents.

"The living parts of the cell, although chemically complex, are physically as homogeneous as perfectly clean water, being also optically empty.

From Invisible into Visible.

"Death breaks up that perfectly homogeneous living complex into a less fine material; death therefore is the change of the ultra microscopically invisible into the ultra microscopically visible. Even under the highest magnification the living cytoplasm [cell body] looks like a perfectly transparent material. Death is the change from a clearly visible, harmonious arrangement of homogeneous living parts of the cell into a crowding of microscopically heterogeneous material. In death a multitude of granules are illuminated on a dark field of substage illumination.

"Life builds up homogeneous materials into the complex architecture of the cell. Sudden death preserves that architecture but splits the materials. Slow death breaks down the architecture by sorting proteids and fats out of the cell constituents. Many die from different causes but they have only one way of dying. The cytoplasm alone in the cell can be considered living matter. Life is possible as long as the fundamental constituents each retain a certain physical structure, while all keep some definite inter-relations."

A CLOCK OF THE AGES

From the microscopic world to the macroscopic.

"The most reliable geologic clock that has been ticking steadily all these ages," said Dr. Piggott, "is the element uranium, the atoms of which have been exploding at regular intervals no matter how severe their treatment, whether plunged into boiling rocks or chilled by glacial cold.

"Just as the clock counts minutes by movement of the hand past a dial, so this geologic clock counts years by accumulation of atoms of lead, produced by regular explosions of atoms of uranium. By chemical analysis we can pick this geologic clock out of mineral imbedded in rock and count ticks. Then we know how long that clock has been in that place.

Eight Clocks, All Ticking.

"It is really a group of eight clocks all ticking at the same time, for there are eight kinds of uranium atoms or uranium isotopes, all producing lead at different speeds. Lead is composed of 16 kinds of lead atoms of isotopes and we can now recognize one lead atom from another. A clock composed of uranium isotope of mass 238 and accumulating lead isotope of mass 206 give very reliable measure.

"We have just found this celestial clock. Lead on earth is divided into two great classifications, depending on relative abundance of isotopes. One sort was produced since the earth was born from the sun. This was from uranium on this earth, a terrestrial clock. The ordinary lead of mines and pipes was produced from uranium in the sun, a celestial or sun clock which gives us vistas of time before even this earth was in existence. We have every confidence that we shall be able to count its ticks and read its messages sent from the vastness of astronomic time. It seems fair to assume that uranium, either in its present form or some earlier progenitor, existed in material of the sun before this earth was created and a considerable part had already disintegrated into lead."

Dr. W. D. Urry of Massachusetts Institute of Technology explained the new helium method as an earth time clock. The rate at which this is produced from radioactive rocks shows rocks in deep copper mines are 450 to 600 million years old. Eight experts probing the age of the earth in these ways find conclusions impossible, but indications are that the age is somewhere between one and three billion years.

NEW INTELLIGENCE TEST

In dealing with intelligence, Dr. Spearman explained, we have the ancient view of the intellect, that abstractions distinguish man from the lower animals, and the view that man is a bundle of sensations, with little or no room for the intellect. It was Herbert Spencer who introduced the new biology and made the intellect a means of adjustment to environment.

Then came the Gestalt school and the new psychology of behaviorism. The Austrians made a doctrine out of that act of the mind which produces a melody after notes are given. The newer Gestalt considers that all is one experience. Psychoanalysis, he said, does not take much account of the concept of intelligence. Popular opinion considers that men possess intelligence of different degrees.

Dr. Spearman's own point of view is embraced in the doctrine of Noe Genesis, which holds that certain processes or beliefs arise in themselves and produce a mental content. It embraces a part of the early Gestalt theory, that of perceiving things in relation. One hears two tones. If one is musical a relation is perceived. If not musical, there is no relation. One reads words. If there is a content of knowledge back of it the words mean something. If not there is little relation, it is all dismissed as high spun fancies.

Dr. Spearman's intelligence tests consist in putting down a group of figures labeled right, and a group labeled wrong, and a third group which the person tested is to designate as right or wrong. It looks like a Chinese billboard, but the professor says that it can be applied to children of tender years and is more reliable as a guide than the old I-Q methods.

MILLIKAN SEES ENERGY FLOWING FROM THE STARS

Finds Support for Theory on Universe.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Support for his stoutly held theory that nature—"call it God if you wish"—is not letting the universe run down into cold and darkness and desolation, but is constantly at work creating new light and energy by the synthetic atomic process, has been found by Dr. Robert A. Millikan of the California Institute of Technology in recent experiments in physical science.

Dr. Millikan lectured on "New Light on Nuclear Physics" at Thorne hall, McKinlock campus of Northwestern university, last night. Dr. F. W. Aston of the University of Cambridge told "The Story of Isotopes," a sort of chemical romance of the latest science. Dr. Niels Bohr, Danish physicist, presided. All three men are Nobel prize winners.

Find Support for Theory.

Recent confirmations of Einstein's mass-energy interrelationship by E. O. Lawrence of the University of California and K. T. Bainbridge of the Bartol Research foundation, together with experiments of Dr. Millikan and associates with cosmic rays, support the atomic synthesis.

"It seems to be becoming popular now," Dr. Millikan declared, "for the astronomers to use this synthesis hypothesis, instead of the annihilation hypothesis, to explain the evolution of the heat energy of the stars. Indeed, the annihilation hypothesis seems at present to be in a state of eclipse, and the question may then be raised whether synthesis can explain both the cosmic ray and the stellar energy. There is no reason why it may not be called upon for both purposes, but with a different mechanism.

Clusters of Hydrogen Atoms.

"The most essential element in the hypothesis as applied to cosmic rays is the formation of clusters of hydrogen atoms, which I call hydrogen dust. Such clusters could not be held together if formed at other than exceedingly low temperatures, where there are very few impacts to destroy them. This kind of atomic synthesis would then be one in which heavy nucleus might be formed out of hydrogen by one single clasping act. In Prof. Lawrence's experiments we find synthesis taking place when hydrogen atoms are thrown with enormous energy into the nuclei of other atoms. This kind of process may take place inside the stars.

"According to our estimates, the total cosmic ray energies falling into the earth is approximately one-half of the total energy coming in from the stars. From the astronomical estimates of the distribution of the elements we conclude that the total radiant energy in the universe existing in the form of cosmic ray is from 30 to 300 times greater than that existing in all other forms of radiant energy combined."

The Story of Isotopes.

Dr. Aston said that the story of isotopes is all comprised within the last quarter of a century and that it has many points of general interest. In 1910 Soddy proposed that new data on radioactivity led to the possibility of lead atoms occurring of different atomic weight but of identical chemical properties. This is what is called an isotope. This has been extended to the nonradioactive elements, through analysis of rays of charged atoms.

The first definite proof, he said, of the occurrence of complex elements of atoms of whole number mass was given by a mass spectograph in 1919. Chicago was associated with this in the researches of Harkins and Dempster, both of the University of Chicago. Then came the analysis of band spectra by application of the quantum theory.

"It was all Greek to me," he said. "I am not a quantum man."

The latest and most spectacular discovery, he declared, is that of the hydrogen isotope of mass 2. This, he said, was unique among isotopes, for results of electrolysis give every hope of separating it in quantities on a practical scale and so opening an entirely new field in chemistry.

Bureaus Keep Grinding Out Costly Jumble of Reports

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 21.—[Special.]—And still the mills of the bureaucrats grind and grind.

The desk of every newspaper correspondent in Washington is cluttered every day, even in this fourth month of the economic new deal, with gems from the fertile minds of a thousand press agents, the "hand-out" kings of officialdom.

Reports still come, gathered at great expense from all corners of the world. The most prolific of these mills of propaganda is the department of commerce, which every day sends enough material to fill any newspaper in the land.

Woodworking Bulletin.

A press bulletin issued today is headed: "Ancient woodworking problem solved," and the subhead tells us that "strengthening of joints will benefit wood users."

Another bulletin gives the stirring news that "Christmas island, one of the world's outposts, located approximately 800 miles south of Singapore and 1,000 miles northwest of Australia, will be placed in regular communication with the rest of the world soon through the installation of two wireless stations." This is according to a report received in the electrical equipment division of the commerce department from its Singapore office.

Housewives will be happy to know that the bureau of fisheries has developed an "electro-metric method for determining the relative freshness of haddock," a method developed by James M. Lemon and Maurice E. Stansby, technologists of the bureau. This test of haddock is made, the press memorandum relates, by taking a small quantity of fish flesh and grinding it, adding certain chemicals producing an electrical current. The amount of the chemicals added to produce a predetermined voltage indicates the condition of the fish flesh.

News from Sardine Market.

From Assistant Trade Commissioner D. J. Degolia, Singapore, the commerce department's foodstuffs division is further advised that "Japanese suppliers continue to gain in the Malayan canned sardine market."

Mr. Degolia also reports the significant discovery that at the theaters in Malaya "poor pictures play to empty houses, indifferent ones to small ones, and only the relatively few good pictures do anything like a satisfactory business," Balaban & Katz probably will agree that the world's a small place, after all.

Another item which citizens, whose taxes are spent for the information, will be glad to note is that "mangoes, avocados and other so-called exotic fruits are finding increasing favor with Londoners." This report is from Trade Commissioner Harry O. Mitchell at London.

The foodstuffs division, after an intensive study, has discovered that the "U. S. eats more candy in 1932 than in 1931, but pays less for it."

Assistant Trade Commissioner D. W. Smith, Singapore, Straits Settlements, reports that the municipal authorities have banned Singapore's "mosquito" buses, early models of an "American small car," and Mr. Smith fears that America's small parts trade will be injured by this action.

Gift coupons and the award of premiums in the form of cash or merchandise will be prohibited in Germany after Sept. 1, reports Consul J. H. Morgan at Berlin.

The trade commissioner at Singapore, Frank S. Williams, reports "the general business sentiment in British Malaya as being much better."

A well known British stainless steel has been tested at London to determine whether barnacles will attach themselves to it, reports James Somerville Jr., trade commissioner at London, to the department's iron and steel division.

"At the Beacons field studios of the British Lion company, Lily Morris, the popular music hall favorite, is making her first 'talkie,' entitled 'A Singing Kettle,' and at Elstree, Jack Buchanan, Arthur Riscoe and Nauton Wayne have been signed for a series of comedies to be made in various European capitals."

Movies in Czecho-Slovakia.

Czecho-Slovakia, the taxpayers will be interested to note, has 818 motion picture theaters wired for the production of sound films, and more than 1,200 silent cinemas, as reported by Don C. Bliss, commercial attaché at Prague.

The sad news from Hongkong, reported by David M. Maynard, assistant trade commissioner, is that in the last year there has been a heavy decrease in the percentage of American films exhibited.

The bureau of standards here in Washington, finding time hanging heavily on its hands, made a scientific study of its own correspondence files and found that except for some discoloration in some cases, 23 pieces of letter paper dating from 1901 to 1909 were in excellent condition and good for many more years of service.

From Consul General Irving N. Linnell, at Capetown, South Africa, comes the information that a plan put forward 15 years ago by a professor since gone to his final reward, for diverting rivers and streams to create lakes in the Kalahari desert, may be used some time because drought is with the land again. The professor thought the lakes would produce rainfall over approximately 1,092,000 acres of territory. Mr. Linnell reports helpfully.

C. C. Concannon, chief of the commerce department's chemical division, is a flutter because exports of the tung oil from Hankow, China, amounted to 10,904,000 pounds in April, compared with only 4,358,000 pounds during March.

DETECTIVE TELLS HOW LANG SHOT NITTI AND SELF

Detective Harry Lang shot Frank Nitti, Capone gangster, in the back while the hoodlum's arms were pinioned by other policemen, and then shot himself in the arm, the civil service commission was told yesterday by Detective Chris Callahan.

Callahan was the man who was holding Nitti. He appeared as a witness at the civil service trial of Detective Harry Miller, Lang's partner, on charges growing out of the shooting, which occurred on Dec. 19 during a police raid on Nitti's headquarters in a loop office. Miller is charged with making a false official report, conduct unbecoming a policeman, and violation of a criminal statute.

The trial board, after hearing the testimony, took the case under advisement. Similar charges are pending against Lang, but he will not be given his civil service hearing until he has been tried in the Criminal court upon an indictment charging him with assault with intent to kill upon Nitti.

Visits Lang in Hospital.

Miller, in signing a request for extra compensation because of the Nitti shooting, stated on Dec. 31 that Nitti shot Lang. On April 8 he made another report stating that when he visited Lang in the hospital she said to Lang: "Why don't you tell the truth. You shot him down in cold blood and then shot yourself, didn't you?" Lang, he stated, admitted the truth of the charge.

Miller did not see the shooting. He was in another room guarding other prisoners. He testified yesterday that when he made his first report he really believed that Nitti had shot Lang.

Policeman Accuses Lang.

"Lang, Nitti, and I, were in one room, while Miller and Mike Shannon, my partner, were guarding six other men in an adjoining one," said Detective Callahan. "I had searched Nitti, and knew he had no gun, but he had a piece of paper in his mouth. I grabbed his wrists and asked what it was.

"Lang came up behind Nitti and said, 'what are you doing, you ——,' and fired a shot at Nitti. I let go of Nitti and stepped back. Nitti staggered and Lang fired three more shots. The fourth shot went into his own arm."

MOTOR TRAFFIC TO FAIR SETTING ALL TIME RECORD

Survey Indicates Million Autos May Come Here.

BY HAL FOUST.

Traffic on main Illinois highways, stimulated by travelers en route to and from the World's Fair, is establishing a new all time record, exceeding even the heavy flow of the boom years. This statement is proved by calculations based on an actual count of passing vehicles.

If traffic continues to hold up at its volume of the first three and a half weeks of the World's Fair, 2,250,000 motorists in 1,000,000 automobiles will have arrived in the city from beyond Chicagoland before the Exposition closes in the fall.

Average Daily Expenditure $9.50.

With the flow of automobiles is coming a current of tourist dollars. The Michigan Tourist and Resort association, in a study with the United States bureau of public roads, found the average daily expenditure from a traveling automobile was $9.50. The million automobiles visiting in Chicagoland for an average of three days, on this basis, would bring $28,500,000 to the community, not including money spent on the Fair grounds.

The tally of the present flow of traffic was made on Illinois 4 and U. S. 66, the Chicago-St. Louis highway, just north of Dwight, Ill. The station was selected seventy miles from the loop so as not to include metropolitan area traffic.

In eight hours, mechanical counters operated by George Barton, engineer for the Chicago Motor club, recorded the passing of 580 automobiles with license plates of states other than Illinois and 639 passenger cars with Illinois licenses. A large number of the Illinois machines were loaded with baggage indicating they were the cars of tourists, with the bulk of them going to or from the Fair.

The passenger car travel indicated a 21 per cent increase over 1931 when the state highway department and federal government made a survey of Illinois traffic. The volume of foreign car travel is almost five times as great as in June two years ago. This accounts for the 21 per cent growth of all passenger car traffic, although the travel of Illinois cars is down 28 per cent.

The volume of present traffic as compared to 1929 travel makes an even better showing, when gasoline tax receipts are used as a basis for calculation. In the first two years of the depression, 1930 and 1931, the use of the highways was greater than in the boom era, due perhaps to folks finding their automobiles a more economical means of travel than railroads. Gasoline tax receipts in 1933 were 12 per cent higher than in 1929.

Best June in History.

The depression reduced gasoline consumption in 1932 and made a heavy cut in automobile travel in the first four months of 1933. But in the last thirty days the highways have been carrying more automobiles than in any June in history.

In the eight hour survey on U. S. 66 license tags were noted from thirty-six states and one from Mexico. Texas and Missouri were tied for first rank with 107 cars each. Oklahoma registered 65, Kansas 55, and California 46.

There were states to the east that also showed fair totals. It's reasonable to suppose none of these tourists drove through Chicago without visiting the Fair. There were 29 Michigan cars, 17 New York, and 15 Ohio.

Many of these tourists were driving new automobiles. Official figures from the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce already show that new car sales are on a rapid rise, but judging from the number of new cars seen during the survey it would seem that the boom is greater than it was in 1928 or 1929.

"Jillopies" Are with Us.

The "jillopies"—dilapidated old machines—are included in the rush of tourists, however. One car with a Texas license was noted as an outstanding example. It was of a popular make. Rear fenders were missing. A tent tied to a running board gave it an uneven keel. Cots and cooking utensils were tied here and there. It chugged along the road carrying a happy family that included two grown-ups and two children.

In addition to the increase in passenger car traffic, a growth in the number of trucks since 1931 was noted. In the eight hours 377 freight carriers passed, as compared to 334 for the same period two years ago. This is an increase of 13 per cent.

and preparatory work for two years' work on the sanitary district's sewage disposal works were all completed, and that work could be commenced as soon as approval, and money, was given by the government.

Mr. Sabath said that he had been encouraged by Mr. Sawyer's response to the request and that he felt sure the sanitary district job would be among the first to be granted among all the proposals from the 48 states.

The proposition advanced by the Illinois congressman was to have the government provide from $36,000,000 to $40,000,000 to carry on the work this year and next, with the federal treasury donating 30 per cent of the sum, and the sanitary district agreeing to repay the remaining 70 per cent.

The senators of the various states have been asked to submit names of men they consider qualified for the posts of deputy administrators of public works. James Hamilton Lewis, senior senator from Illinois, has come to no decision on an Illinois man, it was stated, but hoped to submit several names in a day or two.

The administration has suggested that the engineers nominated for state duties be nonresident, so that they will not be dominated by political or contracting rings in the states.

Part of the public works program is already under way, with the navy speeding construction under the 238 million dollar allotment for new battleships authorized by President Roosevelt.

Thirty-two new vessels are to be laid down immediately under this new program, while 17 ships now under construction and 5 previously authorized are to be pushed to completion with funds carried in the 1934 navy department appropriation bill. In all, the department expects to spend approximately $86,000,000 on ship construction in the next year.

On July 26, it was announced today, bids will be opened for the construction of 16 ships under the emergency program provided for in the public works bill.

On the same date bids also will be opened for four 1,500 ton destroyers, authorized by congress in 1916, and for one 8 inch gun cruiser of 10,000 tons authorized in 1929.

The emergency program ships to be submitted for bids are two aircraft carriers of 20,000 tons with a total cost of $29,320,000 each; one light cruiser of 10,000 tons with a cost of $16,770,000; four 1,850 ton destroyers to cost $5,115,000 each; seven 1,500 ton destroyers to cost $4,234,000 each, and two submarines of 1,400 tons to cost $4,025,000 each.

If satisfactory bids are received, Acting Secretary Henry L. Roosevelt said, all of these ships will be constructed in private shipyards.

ASSEMBLY WILL STAY IN SESSION INTO NEXT WEEK

Hope to Avoid Congestion in Last Days.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 21.—[Special.]—Plans for the 58th Illinois general assembly to finish its work this week were dropped today. The assembly will remain in session next week, possibly until Friday, which falls on June 30, the last day of the six months period during which legislation by majority vote can take effect without a delay until next year.

The decision to continue work and avoid some of the helter-skelter action that marks last minute stampedes for some bills and against others was made originally at a caucus of Democratic senators addressed by Mayor Kelly of Chicago.

The willingness of the Democratic senators, who constitute the majority of the upper chamber, to extend their labor for another week was unanimous after the Chicago executive had explained to them the necessity of passing one bill which even then was just in the drafting process. Enactment of the measure will require a minimum of five legislative days and that means meeting next week, starting either on Monday or Tuesday.

House Opposes Plan.

The action of the caucus met with approval not only in the upper chamber but also in the house of representatives, where the threat of a hasty adjournment threatened the loss of a large number of measures which interest scores of members.

The new measure which Mayor Kelly and the other members of the visiting Chicago delegations urge for passage is a simple amendment of the original [D. F.] Kelly bill, which will prevent future horizontal slashes of assessment rolls by the Cook county board of appeals such as the recent 15 per cent cut for certain classes of property. The amendment will prohibit such class reductions hereafter after an assessment has been spread.

The bill will not be retroactive and will not affect that cut now being put into effect, and, Mayor Kelly explained, is an absolute necessity if there is to be any market for future tax warrants.

Prevents Warrants Sale.

"Tax warrants cannot be sold," he said, "if the prospective purchaser faces a possibility that the amount of the tax levy may be reduced even after it has been spread. And the sale of warrants is vital to the continued financing of the governmental units in Cook county, including Chicago.

"We don't intend to affect the 15 per cent cut already ordered. That is water over the dam and I am glad for many home owners that they were granted a reduction in taxes; but hereafter such reductions must be limited to the period before the assessment is spread."

Mayor Kelly also announced that he and his associates will not ask for the passage of pending legislation to change the makeup of the Cook county tax board of appeals by giving the county assessor a vote on the board. A new bill on this subject was introduced yesterday.

Utilities Bill Delayed.

The effect of the decision to prolong the session was seen in the action of the senate committee on utilities in delaying action until tomorrow on the bill passed by the house yesterday. Efforts to advance the bill without reference were defeated by a vote of 20 to 23. Then it was planned to rush it through the committee this afternoon. With the outlook for more time for consideration the committee postponed its vote.

The sales tax bill was successful in a second test in the house. Last night, the Democratic majority lacked the votes to send it to second reading, but on second attempt today, they were successful by a vote of 78 to 54, one more than the constitutional majority required for passage.

Outside the caucus, Mayor Kelly spoke to several legislators in opposition to a bill in the house which would place taxicabs under the jurisdiction of the state commerce commission, thereby canceling all the municipal control over rates and similar subjects. The bill was aimed at trucks and buses, but inspection has disclosed it includes taxicabs.

'EVIL SPIRITS' OCCUPY HOUSE IN CANADA AND FIGHT; EXORCISM FAILS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

QUEBEC, Que., June 21.—A "haunted house," with nightly sounds of footsteps, a child's cries, quarrels and the striking of blows, is causing much excitement in Ste. Jeanne d'Arc d'Almaville, midway between Quebec and Montreal.

Mysterious noises were first heard about a month ago in an unoccupied flat of the house. Occupants of the building paid no attention at first, but when the noises became worse each night "evil spirits" were thought of. They called upon Father Dusablon, parish priest, who blessed the house and sprinkled holy water over the whole building to exorcise the devils; but the racket became worse than ever.

People living in the building state that it seemed as if a man, woman, and child walked up the stairs leading to the unoccupied flat at 11:40 o'clock each night. Then there would be the sound of voices, a child's crying, and finally violent quarrels, during which blows would be struck and furniture knocked around. The neighbors kept watch, but they never saw anybody enter the house. Nevertheless at 11:40 o'clock the mysterious noises would start.

Lawrenceville, Ill., June 21.—(AP)—John Herrin, 72, janitor of a grade school building, dropped dead today when officers went to his home to arrest him on charges preferred by three girls in the school. Herrin previously had denied the charges when brought before the school board. He was indicted yesterday with four other men more than 50 years old.

Why shouldn't I say nice things about Luckies?

I must confess that I enjoy smoking more and more. Maybe it's because I started with a cigarette that suits me right. Luckies are so very mild. I like the fine taste of their tobaccos—and because I'm so sensitive to personal daintiness—for, after all, my cigarette touches my lips—I particularly welcome the added assurance of purity which "Toasting" affords. Whenever I hear comments about cigarettes—I always say, "But Luckies are different." And then I would say some nice things about "Toasting". To hear me you'd think that I discovered "Toasting"—but that's just my way. I like to root for things that please me. And certainly—"Luckies Please!"

THE WATERWAY AT LAST.

The arrival in the Chicago harbor of the first standard tow of barges from New Orleans is an event of first importance in the economic history not only of Chicago but of the entire nation. If Chicago takes especial pride and satisfaction in the achievement, it is not because the benefits will be confined to this community but only because the project was planned by Chicago, built for much the most part with Chicago money, and carried to completion by the will of Chicago despite war, depression, and the active opposition of jealous communities.

This is not the place to recount the full history of the waterway. Suffice to say that in the '90s the pollution of Chicago's drinking water had become a problem which had to be solved. The city's wastes had to be kept out of the lake. The science of sewage treatment had not then progressed to the point where the erection of treatment works could be undertaken with confidence in the results. Accordingly it was determined to build a canal to carry the city's wastes away from the city. The drainage channel might have been constructed at a very considerable saving if it had not been foreseen that the canal would be useful for navigation as well as for health.

It is primarily to the commercial foresight of the solid men of Chicago of those days and to the daring of the engineering staff that the nation is indebted for the great public improvement now at its service. Government engineers might well have recommended the construction of a waterway to Chicago, but it is hardly to be believed that congress would have appropriated a sum approximating a hundred million dollars, practically all of it to be spent in one county. Chicago has its seaway because Chicago taxpayers footed the bill. If we had waited for congress to act we would still be waiting.

When the drainage channel was completed to Lockport, the possibilities of its use for commerce became evident to every one. The state thereupon undertook the relatively minor task of completing the channel from Lockport to Grafton, where the Illinois joins the Mississippi. An issue of 20 million dollars in waterway bonds was approved, approximately half of which are a charge upon Chicago. The money was exhausted before the work was completed, thanks in large part to maladministration of the funds under Gov. Small, and the federal government a few years ago was called upon to appropriate the last 7 million dollars required. Under the war department's engineers the work has progressed satisfactorily to completion. With the exception of the construction and remodeling of a few bridges and the dredging of the channel to its full width in a few places a 9 foot channel connects Lake Michigan and the Mississippi river.

For decades the government has been improving sections of the Mississippi system for commercial use. For much the most part the money has been misspent. The improved channels began nowhere and ended nowhere, commercially speaking. Now at last the Mississippi waterway has been brought into the concentrating point of the nation's traffic. Here, at the focus of one of the most productive industrial regions in the world and the richest of agricultural areas, the possibilities of a revival of river transportation with modern equipment will be given its first real test. If the inward and outward flow of raw materials and finished products at Chicago will not provide sufficient traffic to justify the expense in building the waterway it is doubtful if any further expenditures on waterways in this country can be justified.

There is ample reason for believing that the waterway will prove successful. While its possibilities for long distance movements are being explored the new channel will be available for shorter hauls. The Illinois valley is rich in sand, gravel, and stone, all of which will be needed in increasing quantities as business revives and building operations in and about Chicago are resumed. Steel mills in the Calumet area have already used the waterway to ship their products to the southwest. The route should be useful in the movement of such heavy commodities as cement. Newspapers in the Illinois valley and below can expect to receive their paper supplies by river. The outlook for transporting automobiles and lumber is also excellent.

No doubt the traffic experts of every large industry in Chicago are already exploring the possibilities of the waterway in lowering production and distribution costs. No doubt, too, the managers of factories throughout the central states will follow suit as soon as any considerable commerce moves by the new route. The question of rates is still troublesome, but that fact of itself need not prove a serious deterrent. Many industries should find it expedient to own and operate their own barges to their own docks.

The waterway is open, built largely at the expense of Chicago, but dedicated to the service of the whole nation. As the engineers are completing their work the moment has come for business men to take up the task of making the waterway a success.

FOURTEEN FOR REPEAL.

Fourteen states now have ratified the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, either by the final action of their state conventions or by the popular vote preparing for these conventions. Of the states, Iowa, which voted Tuesday apparently three to two for repeal, offered something in the way of a test case west of the Mississippi, just as Indiana and Michigan a test of formerly dry territory in this section of the country east of the Mississippi, and New Hampshire in the formerly dry part of New England.

Iowa was a prohibition state of the dry agricultural west, not so glum and embittered about it as Kansas, but nevertheless regarded by the zealots as a solid and dependable dry body politic. The rejection of the Volstead régime was not only in the Iowa cities but also in the rural regions. There also Iowa registered its lack of confidence and its disapproval. There was evidence that it was about to do so, but until the votes were counted the state had to be listed as debatable.

No state has voted as yet to sustain the amendment, but the prohibitionists in making a last ditch fight of it are using their vestiges of control to prevent popular action where they think they can make their last stand. A state which can be prevented from voting remains a state on the negative side. Delay reveals doubt even in these states because what the Volstead cause would bring out if it had any real confidence would be some decided noes. The prohibitionists now are Fabians. They have taken to the hills and decline the issue.

SNUBBING THE LONDON GUILDS.

Readers of THE TRIBUNE are again indebted to Edmond Taylor for an amusing sidelight of the London conference. The delegates were invited to the hospitality of the ancient commercial guilds of London which reverently continue some of their medieval functions, including magnificent eating and drinking at banquets. Nearly all the invited guests ignored the invitations and only a few went to the dinners. The Americans were conspicuous among those who tossed the invitations aside with no consideration.

Mr. Taylor says that the scandal is a big one in London. The guilds, now representing the commercial wealth of London, with the best stocked cellars, and the best food obtainable in England, are the medieval associations of grocers, vintners, skinners, butchers and other purveyors. They have become gorgeous in traditions and trappings and their members as merchant princes take a back seat for nobody when the feed bag is in question. To the delegates, and particularly it seems to the Americans, the invitations represented too much of a come down to be considered. They had been to the king's garden party and they had dined with milord and been received by milady. After duke and duchess it was too much to receive an invitation to meet the greengrocer and break bread with the butcher.

It happens that by this high hatting of the commercial guilds the delinquent and discourteous guests not only missed the best meal they could have expected to get in England but the American democrats missed a chance of giving a little social recognition to one of their own origins. It was to these worshipful guilds in London that the founders of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, the joint stock company which was to become a state, turned for financial support when they needed it most. Among those who offered it to them was Richard Saltonstall of none other than the Worshipful Company of Skinners.

The Americans would have been much closer home at one of the guild banquets in the traditional joviality of a commercial people than they possibly could have been at the king's garden party or at any of the other parties to which their hosts had invited them. The membership of the guilds now represents a great deal of Britain's wealth and power, but the origins of it are closer to the American conception of authority than any power which survives in the titled orders to which the republican representatives pay most respect. It appears that they snubbed just the host they might better have sat down with at meat.

Editorial of the Day

AGAINST THE SEAWAY.

[New York Sun.]

Opposition in the Mississippi valley to ratification of the St. Lawrence seaway treaty is based on grounds somewhat different from those on which easterners oppose it, but is none the less valid on that account. Seaboard cities in the east fear that the waterway would take commerce from them without affording compensatory advantage to the nation at large. Because of the treaty's narrow limitation of the diversion of water from Lake Michigan the Mississippi valley does not believe that the seaway can be constructed without destroying the last hope of effective inland navigation by way of the Mississippi. Both sections are agreed on one thing—that Canada would benefit disproportionately to its share of the expense, which would be approximately 35 per cent of the whole cost. In an able and illuminating presentation of this argument Senator Patterson of Missouri summed up objections as follows:

"We must concede that this treaty bristles with points favorable to Canada and unfavorable to the United States. By its terms we obligate ourselves in these distressing times to spend hundreds of millions of dollars to build a waterway through a foreign country, while depriving ourselves of the right to build a successful waterway through the great agricultural interior of our country. . . . We build a waterway of tremendous value to Canada which will be useful to only a small section of the United States. . . . We bind ourselves to pay 65 per cent of the cost. . . . We make all the improvements in the great lakes and give the British empire the right to navigate them for all time and then permit the Canadians to divert 41,000 second-feet of water for power, while we are limited to 22,000 second-feet."

From experience with the Panama canal and the Welland canal Senator Patterson argued that the estimate of $400,000,000 as the cost of the enterprise is about $200,000,000 too low. Senator Copeland interrupted to explain that the reason why New York's senators oppose the treaty is "because of our opposition to the expense involved and the probable destruction of our seaport economically."

The full text of Senator Patterson's speech was published in the Congressional Record for June 6. It deserves study by senators from the eastern, southern, southwestern and far western states as well as from the Mississippi valley. Indeed it is difficult to see how any of these could read it without concluding that ratification of the compact would put into jeopardy important commercial interests of all those sections.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

STUPENDOUS! HEAVENLY! Marvelous, cataclysmic are about the only words used by those who saw the World's Fair of 1893 in trying to describe it to the present generation who rave about the Pageant of Progress. "And what," asked Laura of one of the forty years ago enthusiasts, who had said no words could picture the glories of the old World's Fair, "do you remember most, the great Manufactures building that spread over forty acres, the Forestry building that covered twenty acres, the great Fine Arts building or the wonderful Court of Honor?" "I remember," said the veteran softly as a fond light came in his eyes and his voice grew soft and tender. "I remember best a verse that referred to the great World's Fair of 1893:

"'She had never seen the Streets of Cairo,
On the Midway she had never strayed;
She had never seen the hootchy kootchy,
Poor little country maid.'"

And as the veteran bowed his head and wept little Laura lit a cigaret and said: "Ah, it must, indeed, have been wonderful, wonderful! What a curse to have come into the world forty years too late. For I, too, have never seen it—the hootchy kootchy."

MANKIND LOOKS BACK on twelve hundred million years, according to the scientists in convention down at the World's Fair. Think of it, twelve hundred million years and yet mankind hasn't found out yet that an automobile ought to have brakes.

FOR THAT MATTER, among the things the Field museum ought to grab while there are still a few specimens left is a set of automobile brakes. They're becoming a great rarity, but there must be a few old fashioned drivers who still have them on their cars, and it would be a fine thing to get hold of some before they become entirely extinct.

PRICE.

If I had no gnawing ambitions,
And you had no special acclaim,
If we weren't entrapped in life's whirlpool
Of fortune, and conquest, and fame;
If I were a single track person,
And you dealt in humble, slow schemes
Of aprons, and monthly installments,
We might stand a chance at our dreams.

But you are both busy and famous,
A power, whom men honor and heed,
And I am a plotting young person,
Afire with a grim, grasping greed;
Some lovers can love for a lifetime,
But we can't afford one slim day,
For what of our clamoring public—
'Twould miss us on every bright way.

So we turn, for comfort, to scoffing
At all of life's stupid parade;
We envy the men who have freedom,
Unhampered, unknown, unafraid;
But were we sincere in our scorning
We'd turn, would we not, from applause,
And find in the book of existence
A cleaner and much finer clause?

Has life, perhaps, made of us weaklings,
Who haven't the thing it requires
To pull out from under the pressure
Of fabulous, false desires?
Without surrendering conquests,
Without becoming "the hissed,"
Could we not exchange this poor pottage
For some of the real things we've missed?

But do not reply to my question;
The answer is endlessly "no,"
For the law of momentum's against us
As it is against fast rolling snow;
So now, once a week, if we're lucky,
We'll meet, for a crowded half hour,
Both watching the clock by the moment
Tick on, in its favorite tower.

And we will discuss that vague "someday"
Of leisure, and laughter, and sun,
Knowing that that special "someday"
Will probably never come;
For we will keep constantly climbing
'Til one day, in death, we will drop,
And leave nothing altered a fraction,
Not even the tick of our clock.

"WORLD'S WEALTH Barely Scratched, Scientists Declare."—Headline. It isn't the scratches on my part of the world's wealth that I object to. But I noticed as I turned it over yesterday that two of the quarters were plugged, there was a Canadian dime and a counterfeit dollar. And somebody in giving me change had worked a half mile bicycle medal off on me in place of a silver dollar. Scratched! Gosh, if my wealth was only scratched I wouldn't give a whoop.

"POUR 40,000 GALLONS Rye Whisky Into Hudson River."—Headline. Tut, tut, tut! And even Iowa voting to kick the Sacred Eighteenth in the pants? You mark my word, the day will come when we will sigh softly and say: "Oh, how we wish we had the rye that once we poured away."

KING GEORGE had a long, confidential interview with our Secretary of State Cordell Hull of Tennessee Tuesday. The reporters say the king was anxious to find out several things from Mr. Hull, but probably the one that intrigued him most was what is it, a Tennessee?

TWENTY-SIX major falsehoods have been discovered in the world war propaganda. And when I think over some of those falsehoods I feel like changing the old saw so that it will read: "There are lies, damlies, and war propaganda."

AIR CONDITIONING IN HAY FEVER.

TWO groups of investigators report their research in the 1932 season of the efficacy of the treatment of hay fever by means of conditioned air. Incidentally, over most of the country, 1932 was a bad hay fever year. The combination of heat, rain, and air movement was such as to promote the growth of weeds and to cause a rather exceptionally high pollen content of the air. A great many people found the pollen content of the air they breathed above the limit of their endurance, so far as comfort was concerned. In consequence there was a great increase in discomfort and a considerable decrease in working capacity.

At Johns Hopkins university Dr. Gay and his assistant carried on a line of research, while in Chicago Dr. Nelson and associates continued the study that has been under way for a few seasons in the University of Illinois hospital.

The two investigations were entirely independent of each other and their fields were geographically far removed from each other. The results come together within the limits of ten pages in the same issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The conclusions arrived at are pretty much the same, so far as major points go. They both hold that a man with hay fever can be quickly relieved of his discomforts by living in a room where the air breathed is properly conditioned. They agree that the experience is not curative. The symptoms disappear like magic. So long as the man stays there he can work and live in comfort and efficiency, but if he goes out his trouble returns. Breathing conditioned air builds up no immunity. The tolerance for pollen is not increased. The method is not a preventive any more than it is a cure. No man with an expectation of developing symptoms on Aug. 5 can escape his trouble by going into the air conditioned room on July 15 and leaving it during the continuance of the season of high pollen count. Living in conditioned air this year will not remove the hazard of exposure to hay fever next year, assuming exposure then.

They are agreed that the principal factor in the results accomplished is the purification of the air by filtering out the pollens; that the method is not suited to the treatment of bronchial asthma, heart asthma, and other asthmas not caused by impurities in the atmosphere. They do not agree as to some details, but these are of lesser importance and subject to ironing out by further study.

The Baltimore group found chilling the air to be more important than did the gentlemen who worked in Chicago. They were not in entire accord as to the effects of modification of humidity.

VERONAL.

My husband is a man of above average intelligence, but I am afraid he is gradually destroying his efficiency and vitality through the veronal habit. Business worries under present conditions have prevented his getting the required amount of sleep, and he resorts to veronal. His argument is: "I must sleep, and it doesn't do any harm. I've taken it three or four years." But does it not exact a penalty, in loss of vitality and "pep"? Doesn't it gradually dull an active brain, and eventually destroy health?

REPLY.

Veronal is a harmful drug. Those who take it regularly are changed in their personality, behavior, and somewhat in their mentality. The veronal habit is a bad one because of the above, and also because it is a drug habit with a moderate tendency to hook the victim.

Needless to say, this habit causes insomnia. In a few instances physicians can use it with advantage in treating insomnia, but to do this requires skill and experience. The proper treatment of poor sleeping is of another sort.

PROPERTY CONVEYANCE.

Chicago, June 16.—[Leg.] Friend of the People.]—My brother and I have some real estate which we have owned for a number of years. In the last two years I have borrowed certain sums of money. Not being able to repay, he paid me the balance to cover my part of property and in trying to save expense of attorney he wrote a bill of sale which reads as follows: "I, ———, hereby sign over my equity in said property to ——— for $2,000 and have no claim on this property after this date." We then took this to a notary public and had him notarize it. Since then I have been sued by my landlord. Is this real estate transaction legal? If I lose the case, can judgment be entered against the property? If said transaction is not legal what must I do to make it legal?

N. S.

If the instrument quoted was signed before the debt accrued it is at least sufficient evidence of an equitable interest to defeat your landlord, but for the sake of future sales we advise you to convey by a deed. Get a form from a stationer. Your wife, if any, should join. If the property is occupied as a homestead you should convey through a third party. If the value is substantial it is poor economy to dispense with the personal guidance of an attorney.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

JUNE 22, 1917.

WASHINGTON.—Russia's consecration to a war to the end with German autocracy was avowed today by Special Ambassador Boris A. Bakhmetieff, head of the Russian mission here, in a statement to the American people. Only through victory, he said, can a stable world peace and the fruits of the Russian revolution be assured. All classes in Russia, the ambassador said, are concentrated on the enormous task of reconstruction made necessary by the sweeping away of the evils of the old régime, and already noticeable results are apparent, especially in the army under the energetic leadership of Minister Kerensky.

LONDON.—Former Emperor Nicholas of Russia will be placed on public trial, according to a statement made by William James Thorne and James O'Grady, Labor members of parliament, who were members of the mission sent to Russia by the Labor party. The Labor leaders said that Mr. Kerensky, the Russian minister of war, had told them that incriminatory documents will be produced proving that a separate peace was planned by the court party. These documents will include one dated March 15.

WAR SUMMARY.—Control over cotton by the government was knocked out by southern representatives in congress. President Wilson approved a bill to appropriate $600,000,000 to build 25,000 to 30,000 airplanes within one year. Paris reports the recapture of all but one section of the Vauxaillon trenches entered by the Germans on June 20. German losses in violent battles are reported as heavy, but Berlin reports success in this sector. Berlin also reports a successful raid on British trenches near the coast and the capture of prisoners. London admits the raid, but says the enemy was driven back. Vienna reports the repulse of Italian attacks in the Trentino offensive.

WASHINGTON.—War registration returns, virtually completed last night by reports from Wyoming and Kentucky, show 9,649,938 men between the ages of 21 and 31 years have been enrolled for the country's military service.

ZURICH.—The pan-Germanists, who are all enemies of the German chancellor, are using the safe arrival of Gen. Pershing, the American warships, and the hospital units in Europe as a weapon against Von Bethmann-Hollweg. "Is luck with Wilson?" the reactionary press asks, according to the Strassburger Press. "Where are our submarines keeping themselves?" they ask.

WORLD'S FAIR QUESTION BOX

Requests for information concerning A Century of Progress will be answered in this column. It is urged that questions be stated briefly.

QUESTION—I have a receipt for $5 which is to be changed for 10 tickets to the Fair that I purchased about five years ago. How and where can I get these tickets now?

ANSWER—The tickets may be obtained at the 12th street reception room. Since you have only your receipt it will be necessary for you to file a claim on a blank that may be obtained from the administration offices.

QUESTION—Where may I get a pamphlet which lists the buildings and exhibits and gives information as to the nature of the exhibit in each building?

ANSWER—Such a pamphlet may be purchased at news stands, hotels, railway stations, etc., or by mailing 30 cents to A Century of Progress.

QUESTION—Where may the 150 ticket booths for admission to the Fair be purchased.

ANSWER—At the 12th street gate.

THE PUBLIC NIGHT SCHOOL.

Chicago, June 17.—As a graduate of the Crane Evening High school I feel that not enough thought is being given to the achievements of the night schools and college.

We students have learned at Crane to use our leisure for constructive purposes. We have been taught to transform idleness and drifting into planned, directed work. We have learned to know the thrilling joys of self-development, self-mastery, and self-direction. We have been taught to realize and to know the meaning and value of time. We have begun to link consciously our destinies with the destinies of our nation. Our nation is built, not on the man but on the spirit within the man. We have now sensed this great truth and what it must mean to evolving humanity.

We have been taught to be true to the great inheritance our forefathers have placed in our hands. We have been taught to seek and magnify the worthy and noble in the great national ideal; to labor and eliminate the false; to lift our eyes to the heavens, whence shall come our strength.

We of Crane Evening High school and college are not only students; we have begun our labors in industrial and commercial fields. We therefore have tested life as it affects youth. We know that in a democracy such as ours idlers and drifters are dangerous. We know that the hope, the future, the destiny of our great nation rests with the public schools.

Therefore we ask every father, every mother, every business and professional man or woman, every citizen, high or low, to protect the public schools in these times of depression and unemployment. We ask, do not force countless thousands to become idlers and drifters; keep open the night schools, the continuation schools, and the free college. Protect the individual right of youth, and in return the youth of America will carry on the work you have begun nobly, triumphantly, and gloriously, and America will achieve her high and holy destiny.

EFFECT OF HIGH LICENSE FEES.

Chicago, June 16.—Chicago's unfortunate experience under the illegal beer régime during the thirteen years that prohibition gave the gangsters a chance is about to be repeated.

This time it is not the beer hustlers and racketeers that will be promoted, but the self-centered city hall politicians and Chicago councilmen. The legalization of 3.2 per cent beer caught them flatfooted. Now, after a few weeks of head scratching and inquiring among other racketeers, the city councilmen have decided to tax the small retailer either out of existence or into illicit beer peddling by imposing a $1,000 a year fee.

In order for the little fellow to meet this tax he will have to once again shut the blinds which have been open for only too short a time and start handling hard liquor. Then the old politician protective system will have to be set up, and now politicians instead of racketeers will reap the harvest and the trying-to-be-honest retailer will be forced into becoming a blind pig operator.

Come on, city councilors, if you have to racketeer, why not get out of the council and do your hustling on the outside, and let some one who has a little interest in the city other than their personal benefit step in and do the city some real good? D. L. J.

CLAIMS FOR COMPENSATION.

Chicago, June 19.—I was greatly thrilled by the editorial of June 16, "Justice to Veterans and the Nation." The great friendship of THE TRIBUNE for the actual battle casualties was beautifully expressed. In view of your interest I respectfully ask your assistance in the rerating of the following cases recently suffering cuts under the Provisions of Public, No. 2.

2. A veteran of the Fifth division, wounded Nov. 10, 1918; mentally impaired; discharged 100 per cent disabled; compensation cut from 100 to 0 per cent.

3. Another veteran of the Fifth division, discharged with a heart disability; compensation cut 100 per cent.

4. A veteran of the Rainbow division, D. S. C., croix de guerre, purple heart with oak leaf cluster; twice wounded; compensation cut 100 per cent.

5. Flying officer; victim of a crash; fractured skull, broken arm, nose, and hand; check stopped without notice; no replies received from Washington in reply to repeated inquiries; this is evidently another cut from 100 to 0 per cent.

SILVER.

Chicago, June 17.—A humorous touch is afforded to the British war debt "token payment," in silver, in a paragraph of Walter Leaf's "Banking."

The late chairman of the Westminster Bank, Ltd., Leaf, discussing the merits of gold and silver for use as currency, says: "Within the last century gold has taken almost exclusive place; silver, which at one time was a serious competitor, being now relegated, where it is used at all, to the inferior position of a material for token coins."

WHO'S RESPONSIBLE!

Oak Park, Ill., June 17.—A man working on half time in one of the large south side concerns owes me three months' rent. He has been on the charities, but both the Welfare association and his employer have passed him on to me [a woman] to house gratis, while my taxes go skyward. Could I compel either one of these agencies to do the disgraceful work of eviction, so the neighborhood may place the blame on them?

PROPERTY OWNER.

A JOB FOR THE GOVERNMENT.

Oak Park, Ill., June 17.—Never before have I seen ants so numerous on lawns. I have used every insecticide I have heard of and now have more ants and hills than ever. The United States government has come to the relief of almost everybody. Why not lawn owners? I would suggest that the government import some anteaters from South America. These could be rented to the harassed lawn owners and the project would become self-liquidating.

J. J. HUGHES.

TWO STARS.

Chicago, June 9.—Just recently I have noticed two stars very close together, in the west. The larger and brighter is silvery appearing while the smaller is a yellow star. Will some one please tell methe names of these stars?

SEEKS U. S. ORDER TO BALK JARECKI IN TAX CAMPAIGN

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Uncollected	19,250,832	50,558,624
	1930.	1931.

An effort to enjoin Judge Jarecki from proceeding under the Kerner-Skarda act in his campaign against delinquent tax properties was made in the Federal courts yesterday. A clash between the County court and the Federal court is expected as a result of the action taken by an attorney representing a tax delinquent property.

At a morning hearing before Judge Jarecki, Attorney I. B. Perlman, representing Hetzel & Co., packers, at 1737 Larrabee street, declared that back taxes of $8,140 upon the property could not be paid. The judge warned him that the county treasurer would be appointed as receiver at 2 p. m. if a payment were not forthcoming.

Seeks Federal Injunction.

Instead of coming back to the County court at the afternoon session, Attorney Perlman went before Referee in Bankruptcy Garfield Charles in the federal building and petitioned for a federal injunction restraining the county judge, the state's attorney and County Treasurer McDonough from taking possession of the property with authority to collect income until the delinquent taxes are paid.

Referee Charles on Sept. 26, 1932, appointed Maurice Klein as trustee in bankruptcy for the property. Klein is now in possession.

The attorneys representing the property told Referee Charles that County Treasurer McDonough was trying to interfere with the jurisdiction of the Federal court in petitioning for a tax receiver.

"County Judge Jarecki is riding rough shod over the property owners in these cases," Attorney Perlman said. "It is a matter of common knowledge that the rights of the property owners are being ignored in these cases."

Prosecutor Makes Protest.

Assistant State's Attorney Francis Clamitz protested that Perlman was premature in his petition and that he had no knowledge that a tax receiver had yet been appointed. It would be time enough, he argued, for an injunction after a receiver had been appointed.

Meanwhile, Assistant State's Attorney William T. Crilly presented the receivership order to Judge Jarecki, remarking:

"I am informed that the attorneys in this case are in the federal court attempting to enjoin your honor from appointing a receiver."

Judge Appoints Receiver.

"We're out to get the taxes in this court," remarked the judge. "There must be money in this property enough to pay the back taxes or the lawyers would not be protesting so much. The county treasurer is appointed receiver."

If County Treasurer McDonough, acting under Judge Jarecki's orders, tries to take possession of the property before June 26, a struggle between him and the present trustee is probable, it was pointed out. The case, lawyers said, may decide whether the federal courts can interfere with the present campaign to collect income from tax delinquent properties under the Kerner-Skarda act.

The county treasurer was appointed as receiver for six other properties by County Judge Jarecki yesterday. The tax delinquent properties affected by the orders and the amounts of back taxes owed on each are 179 West Randolph street, $12,006; 810 Cass street, $6,032; 428 Belden avenue, $11,691; 2300 North Clark street, $6,541; 2018 Arthur avenue, $7,218, and 808 South Michigan avenue, $53,000. On the last named property, the county treasurer plans to construct a parking station, Prosecutor Crilly announced.

Warned to Pay 75 Per Cent.

The judge warned a number of attorneys who appeared with small checks in part payment of back taxes that a minimum of 75 per cent of delinquent taxes must be paid pending the hearing of objections to obtain a postponement of receivership orders. He was aroused to this warning when an attorney representing the 19 East Cedar street property, upon which delinquent taxes total $6,004, appeared with a check for $80, and another lawyer representing the 512 South State street property offered a check for $250 on a delinquent tax bill of $9,280.

Fifteen property owners made payments totaling $43,896 on back taxes to obtain a temporary postponement of receiverships. Attorney Morris Schaefer, representing J. L. Kesner, leader in the tax strike, paid $4,922 on three small pieces of property and an attorney for the 7671 Rogers avenue property paid $11,478 on a delinquent tax bill of $14,010.

Judge Keefe, recently appointed by President Roosevelt, will sit most of the time in the New York Customs court.

Investigators Hoping for Light on Pay Rolls.

Some of the missing west parks records which state's attorney's investigators have been seeking since they started their inquiry into the administration of the former board headed by W. R. James were unearthed yesterday by Assistant State's Attorneys Henry Seyfarth and Thomas J. Strachan.

The books are expected to show how much work the host of temporary appointees who rode the park "gravy train" during the James régime did for their pay checks, and particularly what the numerous foremen, who numbered more than one to every four employés, found to supervise.

The two assistant prosecutors poked around yesterday in an unused corner of a warehouse in Garfield park and returned to their quarters in the park administration building laden with the record books. They were turned over to the state's attorney's auditor for examination.

Refuses to Answer Questions.

The two assistants, who are under orders from First Assistant State's Attorney Grover C. Niemeyer to give out no information, refused to discuss their find. However, it is known that the employment records which the present park commissioners, headed by President Harry Joseph, found when they took office, are far from complete.

The records which the James board left in the official files show only the names of employés and how much they were paid for work presumed to have been done somewhere in the park system. From the records found yesterday it will probably be possible to draw up a chart showing what work each employé was supposed to be performing, and at what points the James board had overmanned the parks with political pay rollers working as temporary appointees.

The records show that during the last half of May, 1932, the old park board had 90 foremen supervising the effort of 342 workmen. Altogether the James board had 1,153 employés during that two weeks' period, and paid them $92,234. For the same two weeks this year the Joseph board had 790 employés, whom it paid $57,188.

Greatest Reduction in Foremen.

While reducing the number of employés by nearly one-third, and pay rolls by more than that, the Joseph board made its greatest cut in the number of foremen. It has only 18 foremen for the entire park system, and they supervise not only the regular park employés, but 400 men furnished by the "make work" division of the Emergency Relief commission.

The multitude of foremen whom the former Republican commissioners put on the pay roll are understood to stand high on the list of those scheduled for interviews with Prosecutors Seyfarth and Strachan, and possibly with the grand jury as well. Before it left office, the former board undertook to slip most of these foreman under the wing of the civil service system.

237,984 MEN ARE NOW ENROLLED IN U. S. FOREST ARMY

Washington, D. C., June 21.—[Special.]—The civilian conservation corps attained a total membership of 237,984 tonight and there was every prospect that it would be about three times the strength of the standing army by the end of the month, when it will have an enlisted personnel of about 314,000.

Of the total number reported, 159,902 were scattered in 900 camps, stretching from the west coast to the mountains of New England.

The original plan to create an army of 240,000 young men between the ages of 18 and 25 has been changed several times, so that the present outline is for something more than 314,000.

President Roosevelt first ordered changes in the plan by opening the way for 25,000 war veterans, and thus far 2,600 have been admitted. Then the regulations were changed to admit 35,000.

The last modification occurred when 14,400 American Indians were approved for service, although to date but 5,000 have been sent to camps. The Indians will be segregated and kept busy on reservations, while the war veterans will be kept together, away from the conservation corps proper.

There will be 1,433 camps in the country at the end of the month, according to present plans, when all the men eligible for enlistment are to be ready for service in the forests.

Not only are army officers being used to supervise the camps but also naval officer personnel and enlisted strength is being sent to the camps. From three to four military officers are maintained at each, as well as four enlisted men. They are chiefly concerned with quartermaster duties and supervising discipline when the recruits first reach camp.

In addition there are to be ten or more civilian "supervisors" at each camp, which will provide for jobs for between 14,000 and 18,000 civilians above the number of "enlisted" men.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, June 21.—President Gerardo Machado and representatives for each of the various opposition organizations today announced acceptance of United States Ambassador Sumner Welles' offices as mediator. They all promised to accept his program for conciliation to end three years of political strife and rebellious outbreaks.

The resignation of Lieut.-Col. Miguel Cespedes, secretary of sanitation, appeared to be the first move in a long expected cabinet shakeup. Others slated to go are Octavio Zubizarreta, secretary of interior, and Eugenio Molinet, secretary of agriculture, probably tomorrow. Mario Ruiz Mesa, secretary of justice, will resign to enter th senate.

Machado Frees 100 Prisoners.

Disregarding the advice of physicians, Machado, bed-ridden from grippe, went to the palace and announced to the press his acceptance of Welles' program. Throughout the day representatives of the A. B. C. terrorist society, the O. C. R. R. secret group, the university student and faculty opposition groups, the Nationalista party, the New York and Miami exiles and individuals separately announced acceptance.

President Machado in proof of his good intentions ordered 100 political prisoners released at once from the Isle of Pines penitentiary. He added that all political exiles can return to Cuba assured of their lives and liberties. Welles cabled ex-President Mario G. Menocal, Dr. Carlos de la Torre, Dr. Ricardo Dolz, Col. Carlos Mendieta, Col. Roberto Mendez Penate, and Miguel Mariano Gomez and others to return to Cuba under his protection. He stated that their presence here is indispensible to the reorganization of existing parties.

Welles Fixes Armistice Terms.

The terms of Welles' armistice include cessation of hostilities by both sides. The government agrees to abolish military rule and the La Porra [the government's secret "terror police"] restore constitutional rights and civil courts in place of martial law, and abolish reprisals. The opposition agrees to cease bombings and terrorists acts and quit issuing manifestos urging violence and economic boycotts.

The extended program includes complete renovation of congress by November, 1934, reformation of voting processes, restoration of the vice presidency which was abolished in 1928, and elimination of political meddling in the national university. Return of the presidential term to four years and a restriction on congressional reëlections are also promised. It is freely predicted that Machado will relinquish his office as soon as a vice president is designated, probably by February or March next year.

Judge Epstein was a master in chancery of the Superior court at the time of his election and formerly was first assistant to Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson when Wilkerson was United States attorney.

Judge Wilkerson and Judge Charles E. Woodward of the Federal District court, and Judges Samuel Alschuler and Evan A. Evans of the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals attended the ceremonies yesterday. Mrs. Jennie Epstein, mother of the judge; his wife, Gabriel, and their sons, William, 16 years old, and Robert, 12, also attended. The new judge is 45 years old and lives at 5519 Hyde Park boulevard.

POLICE BATTLE STRIKE PICKETS AT APRON PLANT

Police fought a battle yesterday with strike pickets in front of the plant of B. Sopkins and Sons, 3900 South Michigan avenue, apron and housedress manufacturers. Four policemen were knocked down and a fifth was bitten on the arm.

A strike was called Tuesday on four plants of the Sopkin concern by the Needle Trade Workers' Industrial union. Company officials charges that it is a communist organization. The strike leaders replied that sweat shop conditions prevail in the plants, and that the employés, mostly Negro women, get only $3 or $4 a week for 52 hours' work.

The trouble yesterday started when some of the pickets, police charge, attacked women office workers as they reported for work.

A crowd of more than 1,000 persons watched the fight. Police took 60 of the battlers into custody, later releasing all but 15 charged with being ringleaders in the disorder.

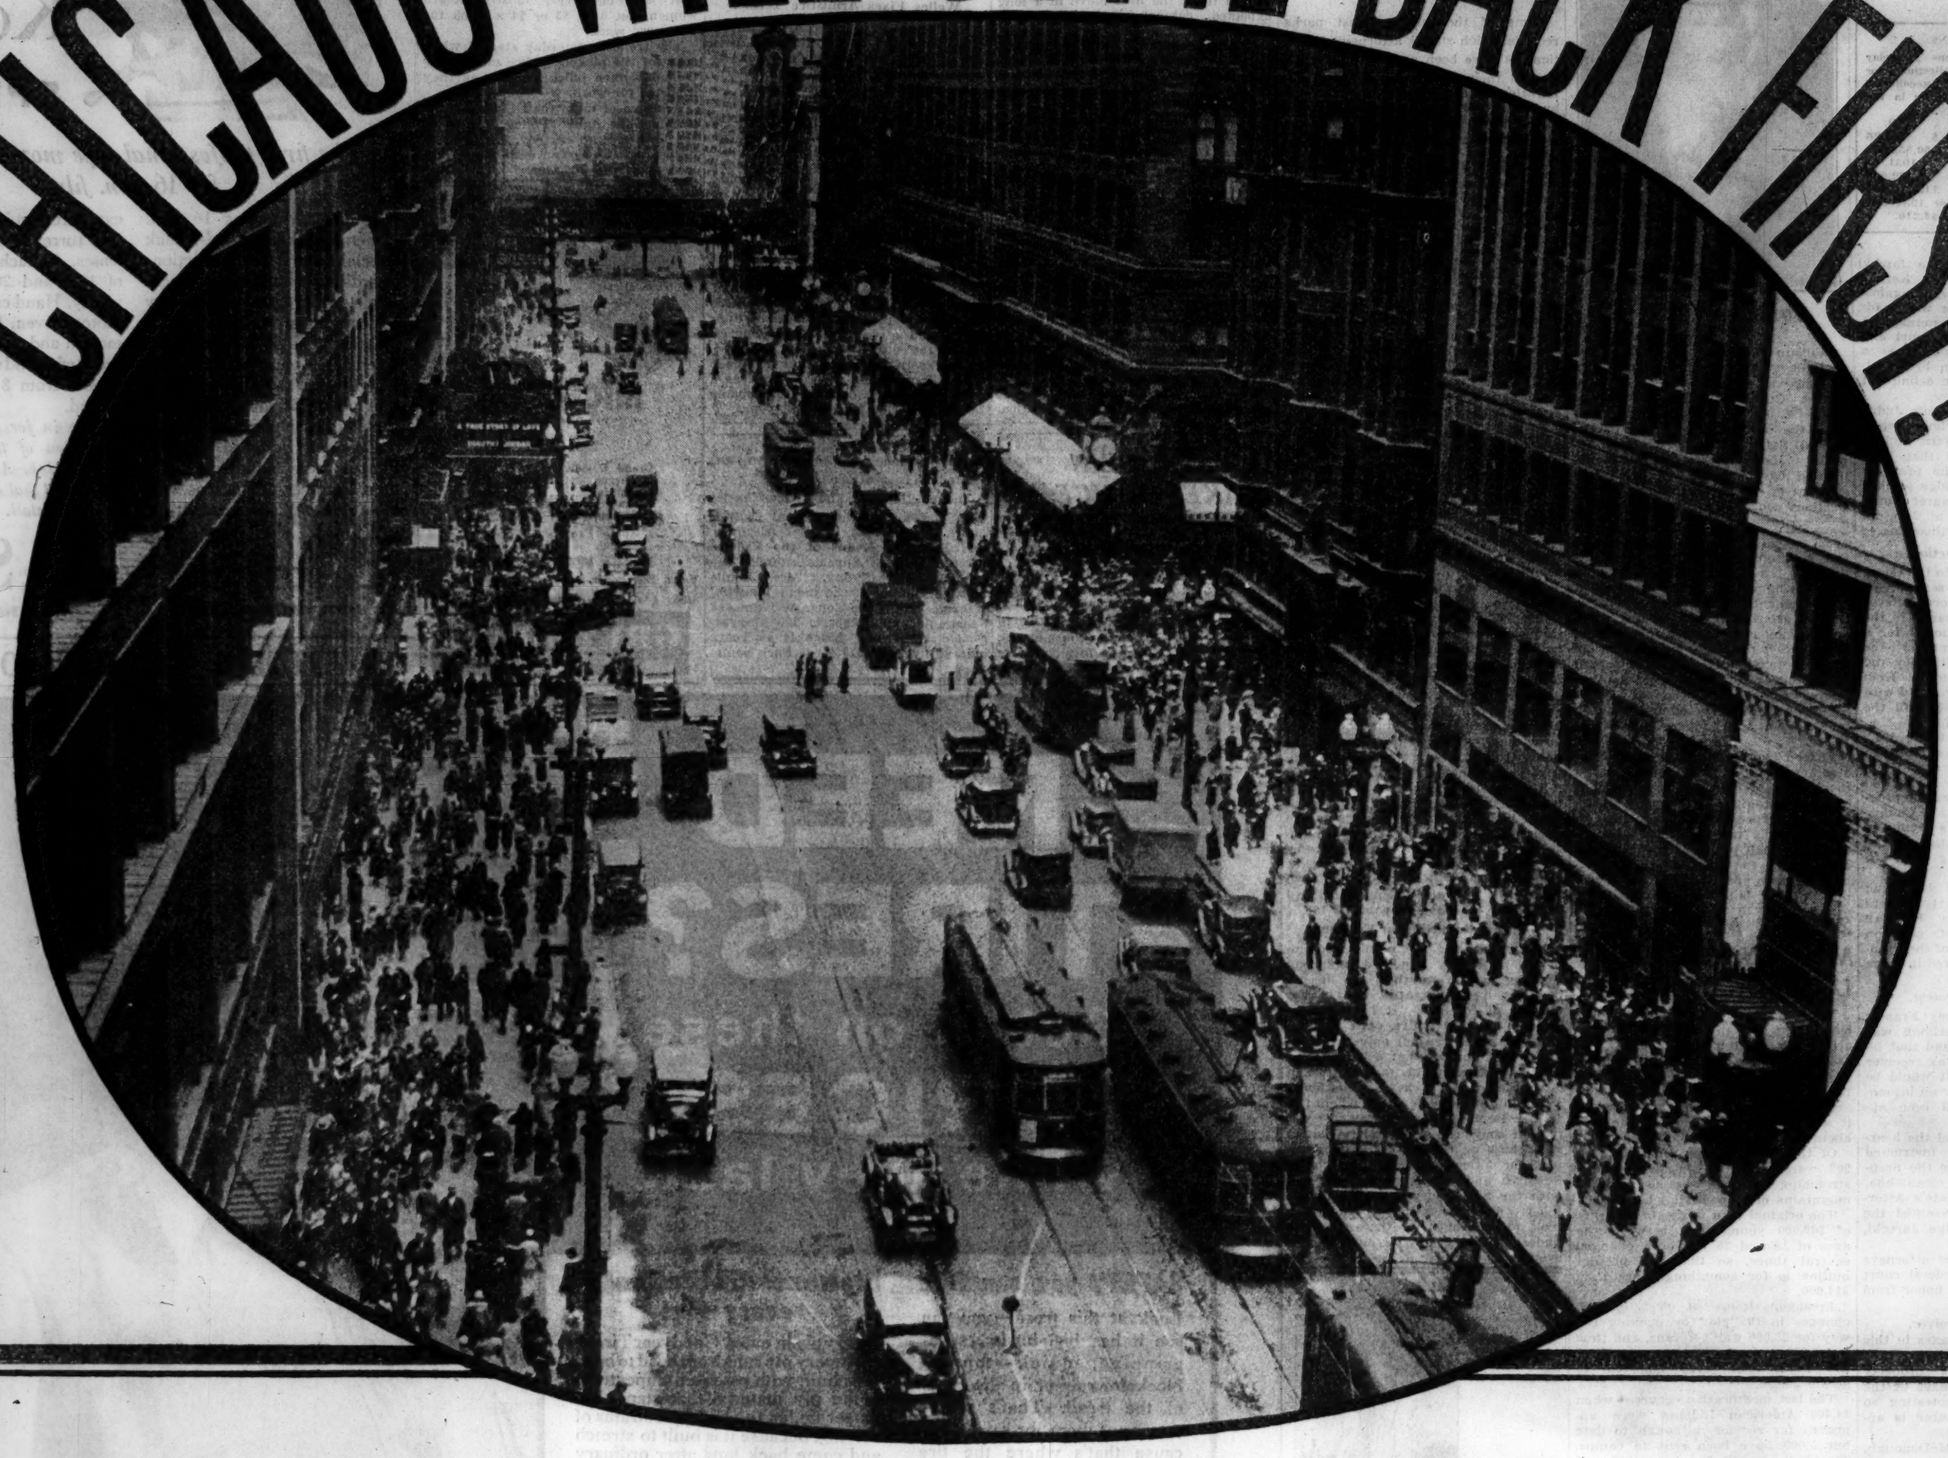
CHICAGO WILL COME BACK FIRST!



because of its GREAT RETAIL STORES

As direct employers of a numerous part of the population Chicago's great retail stores are large contributors to the prosperity of the community. They also cause the employment of thousands of workers in local factories, warehouses, railroad terminals and many other lines of business. They are a source of productive energy which benefits the entire metropolitan district.

Their enterprise and resources have enabled them to sell at prices within the reach of all practically everything manufactured, mined or grown. They have been a major factor in the development of Chicago. During the last several years they have been a powerful force in stimulating public buying and thus starting the turnover of millions of dollars daily.

Chicago's retail stores have been a brake against decline. They will accelerate the return of the community to better times. Because of them, Chicago will come back first.

Manufacturers who want more business can get it in this market. Business is rapidly improving. Local income is being restored to former levels. A Century of Progress is drawing millions of visitors whose spending here will run well above $500,000,000.

The advertising medium which manufacturers will use to greatest advantage is the Tribune—Chicago's first newspaper. It is the one on which retail advertisers, familiar with the Chicago situation, depend. During the first five months of this year retail stores in Chicago placed more advertising in the Tribune than in any other Chicago newspaper.

The Tribune leads all other Chicago newspapers in retail advertising because advertisers find it is the most productive. The Tribune has 600,000 daily circulation in Chicago and suburbs—47% more than any other Chicago daily newspaper. In addition, it reaches over 150,000 of the same kind of able-to-buy families in the cities adjacent to metropolitan Chicago.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

LABORITE STIRRED INTO PROFANITY BY LADY ASTOR

M. P. Loses His Temper in Debate on the Idle.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 21.—Lady Astor, who provides periodic stirring intervals in the house of commons with hot exchanges of taunts with Laborites, returned to the house today after a considerable absence and won a tilt in which she forced her discomfited adversary to retire in profane anger.

William Dobbie, new Laborite member of parliament for Rotherham, began the incident with a heated attack on the administration of the dole and on the means test in his constituency. He charged the administrators with inhuman conduct and said they were supported in this by the ministry of labor.

Clashes with Chairman.

The chairman intervened and pointed out that this was a matter of administration and could not be raised according to parliamentary rules.

"I am bringing a message from destitute and hungry men and women and whether I am in accordance with parliamentary procedure for the moment I don't care," Dobbie retorted.

Dobbie proceeded to give illustrations of want in his constituency and continued, "I protest against the callous, cruel and indifferent treatment by the well dressed, well fed people of this assembly towards the destitute and hungry people of this country."

Lady Astor Enters Debate.

"You don't look hungry," Lady Astor interjected.

"You well dressed, rich people here may laugh and sneer at the unemployed, but you will laugh and sneer at them once too often," Dobbie answered. He attempted to continue his speech. Lady Astor interrupted again and Dobbie almost shouted: "She can't help it. Where there is no sense, there is no feeling."

He attempted to continue and Lady Astor interjected, "We don't drink champagne."

The dart drew roars of laughter, because Lady Astor's prohibition speeches in the house are always heckled and the retiring Dobbie declared, "By God, she gives me a pain listening to her."

Drags Royalty into Debate.

A storm broke out later in the evening when David Kirkwood, fiery Scottish laborite, dragged the royal family into the debate on the Means test, which is forbidden according to the parliamentary code. Kirkwood claimed that the dole allowances of $3.50 a week for a man and 40 cents a week to feed a child are impossible.

The outburst was greeted with laughter and Kirkwood declared: "You can laugh if you like. There is not one of you who can keep your children on 40 cents a week."

Attacks Society Reception.

He then made a derisive attack on a reception given at Londonderry house by Lord and Lady Londonderry to some hundreds of guests last night and shouted: "I would like to see Lady Londonderry attempting to do it on 40 cents a week. I would like to see the queen do it."

Cries of "order," burst from the government bench, but Kirkwood persisted with "I would like to see a member of the royal family do it."

"No, my wife couldn't," Kirkwood retorted.

The chairman then interrupted: "The honorable member has been in the house long enough to know that he must not bring the names of the royal family into debate."

WOMAN'S STORY OF LOVE BARRED IN GRAHAM SUIT

Crowd Disappointed; Architect on Stand.

Mrs. Alma Newton Anderson, described by her attorney as "a flower of the old South," will not be permitted to tell the jury about her love affair with Ernest R. Graham, prominent architect, while she is suing him for libel, Judge Michael L. McKinley ruled yesterday in the Superior court.

His ruling that the story of her friendship was not germane to her $500,000 claim for libel against Architect Graham and Thomas McGuire, private detective, disappointed a crowd of court fans, who had gathered with the expectation of hearing the story. It also cut the opening statement of Attorney Charlotte Slavitt, representing Mrs. Anderson, down to a few sentences.

Defense Plea Revealed.

Attorneys William C. Graves and Robert Holt, appearing for the defendants, told the jury in their statements that it is the defense contention that McGuire wasn't talking about Mrs. Anderson when he wrote to a New York detective agency:

"Your recent letter received. The party referred to is a blackmailer, unworthy of belief, and should be in jail, and has been to every agency in New York of any consequence."

The letter was sent to the Doherty Detective agency, 225 Broadway, New York, whom Mrs. Anderson had employed in 1930, Attorney Slavitt said, to find out who was "harassing" her.

Attorney Holt, representing McGuire, told the court: "McGuire and Graham did not know each other. The letter in question was an answer to correspondence on another matter entirely."

Graham on Witness Stand.

Graham spent a short time on the witness stand before the case was adjourned for the day. He testified that he is a partner in Graham, Anderson, Probst and White, architects, and lives at 25 Banks street. He first met Mrs. Anderson in New York in 1918, he said.

"Did you ever give her any money?" asked Attorney Slavitt.

"Do you know McGuire?" she asked.

"Yes," replied Graham, after some hesitation.

"Did McGuire perform any service for you as your agent in respect to Mrs. Anderson?" asked the attorney.

An objection to this question was sustained, upon legal grounds that the fact of agency must be shown in a different way, and the case was adjourned.

BUSINESS GROUP IS NAMED TO AID CABINET OFFICIAL

Washington, D. C., June 21.—[Special.]—Appointment of a committee of business and industrial leaders to "assist in directing the work of the department" was announced today by Secretary of Commerce Daniel A. Roper.

The committee is to meet on June 26, the secretary stated, to organize.

"As men in intimate contact with the problems of business," Mr. Roper stated, "the committee will help the department along the most effective and productive lines. The committee and such economists as may cooperate with it will serve without compensation from the government."

Among those named to the committee today were: Alexander Legge, president International Harvester company, Chicago; Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president General Motors corporation, New York; Edward N. Hurley, Chicago; Walter S. Gifford, president American Telephone and Telegraph company, New York; Gerard Swope, president General Electric company, New York; Henry I. Harriman, president United States Chamber of Commerce; R. E. Wood, president Sears, Roebuck & Co.; Melvin A. Traylor, president First National Bank of Chicago.

U. S. PAY GOES TO FOREIGN LABOR IN BRANCH PLANTS

Roper Report Shows How Tariff Pressure Acts.

Washington, D. C., June 21.—[Special.]—Secretary of Commerce Daniel Roper holds that increasing "tariff pressure" from Canada and Great Britain is primarily responsible for continued migration of American industry to foreign countries in the form of branch plants. He has set forth this view in a report to the senate.

In an effort to supply the markets of these and other countries by locating within their tariff walls, 711 American companies at the end of 1932 had established 1,819 foreign units and had invested $2,177,693,244 in them. The report shows further that 450,000 foreign workers received employment at the American branch plants abroad.

Prepared under the direction of Louis Domeratsky, chief of the division of regional information of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, the report gives the results of an intensive investigation of the branch factory movement from its beginning in 1860.

Bared by Walsh Resolution.

It was directed by a resolution introduced by the late Senator Walsh with a view to determining the extent to which foreign trade and domestic employment was being displaced by the operation of branch factories and other commercial undertakings of American companies abroad.

The report includes an introduction by Mr. Domeratsky, a statistical analysis of the branch factory movement, and a separate volume giving the names of American companies with foreign establishments, the amount of their investment, the number of their foreign units, the number of foreign workers employed, and related data.

The latter volume will not be made public, the information in it having been obtained by the commerce department with this understanding.

Exports Not Chief Issue.

On the question of displacement of United States exports and domestic labor by the branch plants operation, the report was inconclusive. It pointed out, however, that there was no justification for the assumption that if the branch plants did not exist, United States exports to the countries in which they are situated would be correspondingly increased.

"Both as regards branch factories proper, as well as the investments in raw material group," says the report, "most of the developments have taken place during the present century, with a considerable acceleration in numbers, at least, during the post war period and with a surprisingly slight decline, considering the domestic situation during the depression.

"This continued development in late years is to be attributed chiefly to the tariff pressure exerted primarily by Canada, but also to some extent by Great Britain, and is especially significant as an indication of the influence of tariff policies in forcing the establishment of industrial plants during a period characterized by excess of industrial capacity."

Gives Statistics.

Of the total investment by United States companies in foreign branch activities, $1,033,259,808 was devoted at the end of 1932, to manufacturing operations and $1,144,433,436 to raw material production and so-called special classes, such as meat packing, newsprint, etc.

The greater part of the manufacturing investment, $460,989,113, was in plants situated in Canada.

Latin-America had the largest American investment in raw material and so-called special classes production, $587,125,732. There was also $373,587,947 invested in Canadian branches of American concerns engaged in raw material production.

The number of Canadian branches of American concerns of all kinds was placed at 903, of which 806 were engaged in manufacturing. The latter provided employment for 69,374 workers, while the ninety-seven branches, classified under the heading "Raw Materials and Special Classes," provided work for 13,387.

The report said that figures on employment provided by the American establishments abroad "should not be interpreted as representing the amount of potential American labor displaced."

U. S. BUDGET OVER INCOME DESPITE OPERATING CUTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 21.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt has slashed the government's ordinary budget for the fiscal year, which begins a week from Saturday, to the lowest level in post-war history, but a flood of last minute appropriations by congress appears to have unbalanced it by about 600 million dollars.

Expenditures for the coming fiscal year have been cut to a total of about 2 billion 773 million dollars, and the President has said that taxes would yield about 2 billion 200 millions.

Comparison of Budgets.

The new expenditures total, resulting from weeks of pruning by the budget bureau and cabinet officers under the whip of the White House, compare with the estimated total expenditures for this fiscal year as follows:

Veterans' administration	$725,000,000	$838,000,000
Treasury department	218,000,000	368,000,000
Navy	270,000,000	356,000,000
War department	235,000,000	426,000,000
Agriculture department	60,000,000	314,000,000
Commerce department	21,000,000	45,000,000
Justice department, including prohibition	31,000,000	45,000,000
Interior department	50,000,000	70,000,000
Labor department	10,000,000	12,000,000
State department	10,000,000	14,000,000
Independent offices	41,000,000	79,000,000
Interest on public debt	725,000,000	695,000,000

In addition, the government has to pay out $7,000,000 to the District of Columbia, $40,000,000, to the farm credit administration, $165,000,000 to the farm adjustment administration, and $150,000,000 for bank deposit insurance.

Hope Upturn Will Balance It.

On the basis of these estimates, the budget is closer to balance than at any time during the last three depression years. With a sustained improvement in business, the administration is hoping that taxes will pick up enough to close the gap between income and outgo, and balance the budget for the first time since 1930.

Over and above the ordinary budget, however, is the President's 3 billion 300 million dollar public works program and the huge unestimated outlays of the Reconstruction Finance corporation. Combined, they threaten to roll up the greatest deficit of peace times.

In order to maintain the position that the budget is balanced and that expenditures have been cut, the administration is planning to carry this whole relief program in a segregated budget, it was learned today.

Its expenditures may appear on the treasury department's accounts in a line below the ordinary deficit or surplus and the two items will not be added.

Redeems Campaign Pledge.

On the basis of the ordinary budget the President has redeemed his campaign pledge to reduce expenditures by 25 per cent.

Compared with the fiscal year 1932, when ordinary expenditures reached their post-war peak of 4 billion 886 millions, the estimated total of 2 billion 773 millions for the coming year represents a reduction of 43 per cent, or 2 billion 113 million dollars. This saving, of course, will be more than wiped out by emergency expenditures on other accounts.

The President and Lewis W. Douglas, director of the budget, have accomplished their savings by slashing hundreds of millions of dollars off the operating expenses of government departments and by shifting much of the ordinary public works costs to the emergency budgets.

Veterans Still Major Drain.

Veterans continue to be the major drain on the ordinary budget. Out of the total, 2 billion 773 million, the veterans' administration is to get 725 million dollars. Even this huge sum would not have unbalanced the budget, however, except for last minute appropriations for bank deposit insurance, the farm credit administration, and the agricultural adjustment program.

The expenditures in the so-called ordinary budget do not include those for interest or retirement of special public works bonds. Receipts do not include the special taxes which were levied for this purpose.

Both these items will be carried in the supplemental budget, the third under which the government will operate. It already has a R. F. C. account, as well as its ordinary budget.

SON WEEPS OVER ALFONSO'S NOTE; WEDS CUBAN GIRL

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, June 21.—(AP)—The former prince of the Asturias, defying parental opposition and renouncing his rights to the Spanish throne for love, was married today to Edelmira Sampedro, attractive daughter of a Cuban merchant now dead.

Bitterly disappointed over the lack of approval from former King Alfonso XIII., whose last telegram before the wedding caused the bridegroom to burst into sobs, the couple nevertheless smiled happily. Queen Victoria, however, sent a secret expression of her understanding of his love.

The brief civil marriage in the city hall of Lausanne was followed later in the afternoon by the nuptial benediction in the Sacred Heart church of Ouchy, just below Lausanne on the shores of Lake Geneva. Though shorn officially of royal prerogatives, and now becoming known as Count Cavadonga, the former prince was still "his highness" in the wedding ritual while to the people, who crowded the streets, the wedding culminated a real fairy tale romance.

Plan to Visit Cuba.

The 27 year old brunette bride, one of a family of sisters noted for their beauty, wore a white gown with a ten foot train and a silver pearl studded headband, and carried white lilies at the church. At the civil ceremony she wore a black coat, a yellow dress, and a small beige hat with a narrow brim.

The former prince, one year younger than his bride, went in a blue sack suit to the city hall, but appeared at the church in a cutaway with striped trousers and wore in his lapel the decoration of the Golden Fleece, one of the oldest and most highly prized of Spanish orders.

The former prince took his bride tonight to Evians-Les-Bains on the French side of Lake Geneva, where they will spend a honeymoon of a month or two. Later they plan to visit Cuba. Because a storm came up on the lake the couple motored to Evian instead of crossing in a yacht as had been planned.

Only One Grandee Present.

He was heavily guarded by police throughout today's events, in view of the anonymous warning sent a few days ago saying his life was in danger. The bride's mother and her equally beautiful sisters, Elizarda and Marie Cusa, were in the wedding party. Duke Manuel Almadova, a Spanish grandee and the only member of old Spanish court circles present, was the best man. The bride's witness was Señorita Vivien Conill y Hidalgo, a cousin, who arrived at noon from Havana, flying from Cherbourg, France.

The civil ceremony lasted only ten minutes, the municipal marriage officer, Auguste Margot, presiding. The church benediction also was brief, the mass rite being eliminated. Father Borel read a brief Latin service and there was choir music. The final act was the exchange of rings by the bride and bridegroom.

The young couple met about a year ago when they both came here to a sanitarium for treatment. Young Alfonso fell in love with the dark-eyed senatoria's "beautiful face and charming manner," as he said. The "promise of marriage" was posted last June 2 for ten days at the Lausanne City hall. The former prince came here for treatment for hemophilia, a heriditary disease which causes bleeding at the slightest abrasion of the skin. He was reported later to be much improved.

O. K. FUND DRIVE FOR MEMORIAL TO A. J. CERMAK

The city council yesterday granted the Cermak Memorial association permission to solicit funds throughout the city on July 10 for the purpose of building a memorial to the late Mayor A. J. Cermak in Grant park. The movement is sponsored by Ald. Henry Sonnenscheln [22d], for many years secretary to the former mayor.

An ordinance ordering the removal of all curb gasoline pumps in the city was adopted by the council. The ordinance follows a recent decision of the state Supreme court, which held that the city has no right to allow the use of its property for such pumps. It is estimated that there are 3,000 curb pumps in Chicago.

Commissioner of Public Works Oscar Hewitt was authorized to let a contract of $12,300 for the wrecking of the old Harrison street pumping station. The city recently obtained a loan of $2,327,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation for the construction of a new station.

The council adjourned until next Wednesday because Mayor Kelly is in Springfield and was unable to exercise his veto power on the 1933 city budget. At the next meeting he will be given the opportunity to veto any sections he may not approve.

COURT ORDERS 8 FREED IN BERWYN BRIBERY TRIAL

A directed verdict of not guilty yesterday ended the trial of Ald. James Blaha of Berwyn, six former aldermen, and a former city attorney of the suburb, on charges that they had accepted $10,000 in bribes. The verdict was ordered by Judge James F. Fardy on the defense contention that the indictment was illegal.

The defendants were alleged to have taken the bribe in return for passage of an ordinance that bound Berwyn to rent as a city hall, at an alleged exorbitant price, the building that had housed the closed First National bank of Berwyn.

Defense Attorney George F. Barrett pointed out that the indictment falsely listed the Berwyn Securities company as owner of the property. The bank building had been turned over to three trustees, among them Francis Karel, who has been convicted for payment of the alleged bribe. A motion for a new trial in his behalf had been continued pending disposal of the present case.

The defendants, besides Blaha, are former Aldermen Albert Kunci, Andrew Anderson, Benjamin Leycar, Joseph F. Cervenka, Henry O. Troula, and Charles Nadherny, and former City Attorney Frank Posvic.

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday authorized the payment of $25,000 a year compensation to the estate of Henry A. Blair and to Frederick H. Rawson for services as receivers of the surface lines. The estate of Mr. Blair, who was a receiver until his death in February, 1932, is to be paid the yearly salary from the time of his appointment, Nov. 1, 1928, until his death.

The payment is to be made to Mr. Rawson from the time of his appointment in November, 1928, until his resignation last February. The court order also provided that none of the compensation is to be paid by the city, which receives 55 per cent of the net proceeds of the surface lines.

It was revealed that plans for the reorganization of the surface lines and the elevated lines, also in receivership, have been progressing with the possibility that the two transportation systems soon will be unified and taken out of receivership. A foreclosure decree, designed to pave the way for the reorganization, is to be presented to Judge Wilkerson next month, it was said.

CLAIM AGAINST CAPT. MORRISON ESTATE DENIED

Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude yesterday denied the $15,000 claim brought by John Somers, 75 years old, of the Grant hotel, 6 [illegible]th Dearborn street, against the $2,000,000 estate of Capt. Edward W. Morrison, who was known as the "millionless millionaire." Morrison, who died in 1929, left his estate for the construction of an old people's home. The will was upheld in the Circuit court last year after persons claiming to be heirs had attacked it. Somers' claim was based on money he said he loaned Morrison. Attorney Lewis F. Jacobson, representing the estate, said that the same claim had been previously adjudicated.

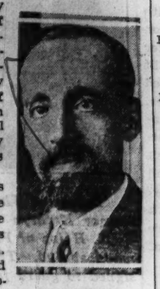
EDWARD CHIERA DIES; EXCAVATOR OF ANCIENT ART

Second to Be Taken from Work on Dictionary.

Dr. Edward Chiera, professor of Assyriology at the University of Chicago and an internationally known student of the ancient civilization in the valleys of Mesopotamia, died early yesterday of pneumonia in Billings hospital at the university. He was 48 years old.



DR. EDWARD CHIERA.

Dr. Chiera was born in Rome and came to the United States as a young man. He was educated at Crozier Theological seminary, Chester, Pa., and at the University of Pennsylvania, where he was a member of the faculty from 1913 to 1927. In the latter year he became a member of the staff of the Oriental institute at the University of Chicago.

Excavator of Ancient Palace.

As director of one of the university's field expeditions, in 1928, he started the work of excavating the vast palace of Khorsabad in the kingdom of Iraq, which was built in the seventh century before Christ by Sargon II., the Assyrian monarch who conquered the Jews. Dr. Chiera brought back as exhibits for the Oriental institute 125 tons of carvings and sculpture from the palace, including a great stone bull weighing 40 tons, which guarded the palace courtyard and which is now one of the principal exhibits in the Oriental institute museum.

In recent years Dr. Chiera's most important work has been as editor of the great Assyrian dictionary being prepared at the university. He took over this task in 1927 on the death of Dr. D. D. Luckenbill, who started it in 1921. It is estimated that another fifteen years will be required to complete and publish the work.

17,840 Words Already Compiled.

Already the dictionary files contain 1,500,000 cards, each inscribed with an Assyrian phrase, and containing 17,840 words of the language. The publication of the dictionary itself has not been started, but students have made extensive use of the collection in historical research, since it contains practically all of the Assyrian inscriptions which archeologists have uncovered.

Dr. Chiera is survived by his widow, Mrs. Sylia Moretti Chiera, and two children, William and Helen. Funeral services will be held at 4 o'clock today in Bond chapel at the university, with burial in Oakwoods cemetery.

Society Will See Opening of Waterway

BY JUDITH CASS.

SHADES of the past will stalk along the north bank of the Chicago river just east of the Michigan avenue bridge at 12 o'clock this noon when the Illinois waterway, the new trade route that links the great lakes with southern salt waters through the Chicago gateway, is dedicated with impressive ceremony.

The S. S. Wilmette with Secretary of War Dern and Mrs. Dern, their daughter-in-law, Mrs. John Dern, and her father, Bruce MacLeish; Mrs. Wayne Chatfield-Taylor, Maj. Gen. Frank Parker and Mrs. Parker, Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius and Mrs. Cluverius, Gen. Thomas Q. Ashburn, who heads the Federal Barge line, and Mrs. Ashburn and several more "distinguisheds" aboard, will dock at the edge of an automobile parking space that was once the site of John Kinzie's "mansion" and the scene of brilliant entertaining.

Then there will be a great historical pageant with the early French explorers . . . Marquette and Joliet, La Salle and his lieutenant, Tonti . . . come to life. Indians will bring a flotilla of canoes into the river between the towering peaks of skyscrapers up to the bank where Mr. Kinzie's old wooden plank sidewalk ran down to a ferry.

Father Marquette will have congratulations for Secretary Dern on the completion of a dream of 250 years and Secretary Dern a reply. More speech-making and La Salle's vision of a vast inland empire will be realized.

Society Prizes Official Invitations.

It is to be an event of great political and commercial importance, also of social moment. Invitations to join the official party have been coveted for weeks. Young Mr. Dern, son of Secretary Dern and a lawyer, regrets that business which has taken him down to Washington prevents him accepting. He will be back in town tomorrow, however, in time to see his mother and father before their return east.

Wayne Chatfield-Taylor shares Mr. Dern's regret. His new official position in the agricultural department at Washington has already taken him east. Mrs. Taylor, who is to remain in Lake Forest until fall with her children, is to be the official family representative today.

When Secretary and Mrs. Dern flew into the Curtiss-Reynolds airport yesterday afternoon they were met by a police escort and hustled out to the John Derns' new house on Locust street in Winnetka. Although there are many friends here who want to entertain for them, they have been holding their plans in abeyance waiting to hear Secretary Dern's program.

Matters of importance take him back to Washington immediately. Mrs. Dern will remain, nevertheless, through Sunday for a visit with her children. In a few weeks young Mr. and Mrs. Dern are expecting Betsy Dern from Salt Lake City. She is coming east to join her mother and father in Washington, where she will be one of the few "cabinet debutantes" next winter. No doubt there will be a lively round of parties during her stopover here.

Take Ride Today on Famed Schooner.

After the new waterway has been dedicated this noon, a number of the members of the official party . . . Secretary and Mrs. Dern, Admiral and Mrs. Cluverius, Gen. and Mrs. Parker among them . . . are going to board the famous fishing schooner from Nova Scotia, the Bluenose, for a three hour cruise on the lake.

Three hundred invitations have been issued for the water party to dignitaries and members of society, and, according to the report yesterday, more than three fourths of them have been accepted.

It will be a thrill just to board the boat for it is the famous racing champion of the north Atlantic fishing fleet. Skippered by Capt. Angus Walters, who will be in charge today, it left its home port of Lunenburg, Nova Scotia on May 2 and set out on this trip, its first to fresh water. Annually the Bluenose races the fastest American schooner. Now it has four international racing classics to its credit.

It is leaving the 23d street dock at 3 o'clock this afternoon and returning at 6. Others on board will be the James R. Offields, Commander and Mrs. Eugene MacDonald, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Yaeger, Mrs. Thorne Donnelley, the Sidney Gardiners, Mr. and Mrs. William W. Oates, and the British consul general and Mrs. Lewis Bernays.

Include Pets in Lake Forest Show.

The pets of young Lake Foresters aren't leading a normal life these days, for they are being groomed by their young masters and mistresses for a great event on July the Fourth, the dog show that is to be held in the Onwentsia's indoor riding arena. There are to be special classes for the pets—and this means anything from rabbits to police dogs—of children under 12, and of course every youngster is sure her own particular pet is the best of its kind not only in Lake Forest but in the world.

The dog show proper is to be quite a professional show with championship cups and prizes in all classes. Any one wanting to enter a dog can secure an entry blank by telephoning Calumet 1597. Mrs. James B. Waller, Cornelius M. Trowbridge, Thomas C. Dennehy Jr., Joseph M. Cudahy, and Angus Henderson are on the committee arranging the show.

Katherine Trowbridge Is Bride

Wears Mother's Wedding Gown

In the Victorian bridal gown of her mother, Miss Katherine Van Wagenen Trowbridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius M. Trowbridge, was wed at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon to Edward Arpee, son of Mrs. Stephen T. Arpee of Athens, O. Only the immediate families and a few intimate friends heard the young couple repeat their vows after Dr. George Roberts of the Lake Forest Presbyterian church.

Assisting Dr. Roberts was the Rev. Leon Arpee, a brother of the bridegroom. The service was read in the drawing room of the Lake Forest home of the bride's parents before an altar banked with lilies and palms and lighted only by slim white tapers.

Louis E. Laflin Jr., who several years ago introduced Mr. Arpee and his bride, served as best man. Out of town guests here for the ceremony included the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Arpee; his sister, Miss Sironhee Arpee; Mrs. Frank W. Pine of Roland Park, Md., and Mrs. William M. Lewis of Easton, Pa., aunts of the bride; Mrs. William Betts, also of Easton and a cousin of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Hunting of Rochester, N. Y., and Charles Huston Haines of Germantown, Pa.

Vulcania Will Be House Party of Chicagoans

When the Vulcania puts in at Boston today, Mediterranean bound, it will pick up a party of Chicago vacationists. Mrs. C. Morse Ely, her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Jay Morse Ely, and grandchildren, Jay Jr., Carol, and Adrienne, are boarding the big Italian steamer there for Venice.

And they are not the only Chicagoans who will make the crossing. In fact the ship is to be a veritable Chicago house party. Miss Joanna Fortune, sister of John L. Fortune, is taking her young nephew, Tom Fortune who is a student at the Latin School for Boys, over for a European holiday. They boarded the boat yesterday at New York and so did Mrs. Robert H. McCreary, who has rented her Schiller street apartment for the summer, and Miss Clara Thorndike of Evanston.

The Elys are planning to get some sun at Lido and then motor to St. Jean de Luz, the favorite rendezvous of many a traveler. Since Mr. Ely's very sad death a few months ago in an automobile accident Mrs. Ely with her children has been staying with her mother, Mrs. John H. Hamline, in Lake Forest. Mrs. Hamline plans to stay at home this summer.

On arrival in Venice Miss Fortune and Tom, Mrs. McCreary, and Miss Thorndike will join the exclusive Odyssey cruise on the steamer Cracovia that sails from the Italian port to follow an itinerary which takes in the entire Dalmatian coast as well as the islands of the Ionian and Aegean seas.

Mrs. Fortunato Jerace is sailing from Italy today to spend the summer in America. She will arrive in Chicago next week and will go shortly to Pentwater, Mich., to open her summer home there. Her daughter and son-in-law, the junior Sidney S. Gorhams, will go up for the Fourth, and will probably spend several weekends there during the hot months.

Mrs. Jerace's youngest daughter, Miss Jean McVoy, who made her debut here last winter, and has been traveling around the world on a floating university since February, is staying two weeks longer on the boat and will not be in Chicago until the middle of July.

Stylish Group Turns Out for Fair Concert

Mrs. Howard Linn Hostess to Large Party.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Chicago's old Auditorium heard the themes of Brahms and Debussy, Wagner, and Rimsky-Korsakow last night as the Chicago Symphony orchestra played another of its brilliant Century of Progress concerts.

Again a socially distinguished audience thanked the Friends of Music for sponsoring a new and refreshing version of summer night life. And again hundreds of music lovers, democratic as far as dress is concerned, for the concert order is anything from sports apparel to "trained" gowns, settled back in their chairs and enjoyed the concert.

"If only this is made a permanent summer institution rather than just a temporary World's Fair offering," was the comment of one of our best known patrons of music as he enjoyed an iced drink during the intermission with a party that included Mrs. Karl Krueger, wife of the guest conductor, last night. "Of course, we want to put our best foot forward for our visitors this summer, but we need to continue it next year for our own good."

Mrs. Krueger, the former Emita Jewett, was the dinner and concert guest of her cousin, Mrs. Howard Linn, who entertained a large party of friends in three boxes in the lower tier. Both Mrs. Krueger and Mrs. Linn were gowned in the height of fashion, Mrs. Krueger charming in a dress of black net and Mrs. Linn wearing black satin accented by a cowl yoke of scarlet.

Among those invited by Mrs. Linn to meet Mrs. Krueger at dinner at the Casino preceding the concert were the Hubert Burnhams, Mrs. Burnham stunning in white crêpe with epaulets of mink, Mrs. Byron S. Harvey gowned in a delicate shade of pink, and Mr. Harvey, the Walter Paepckes, and Miss Eleanor Holden.

Like a dozen others in the golden horseshoe last night, Miss Holden was wearing a cartwheel hat of straw with a dinner gown. Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, who the last fortnight has set the pace for formality, chose this informal costume just as did her dinner and concert guests, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed and Mrs. Herbert E. Bradley, who were escorted by their husbands. In fact, these three ladies were the cynosure of many in their center box, for Mrs. Bradley's white hat and dress contrasted effectively with Mrs. Goodspeed's and Mrs. Carpenter's ensembles of black.

The junior Edward A. Cudahys, who, with Mr. Cudahy's sister, Mrs. John N. Stearns Jr., had expected to join Mrs. Linn's party at the Casino, were unavoidably delayed last night. It was not until well after the second intermission that Mrs. Stearns appeared with her mother, the senior Mrs. Cudahy, and Mrs. Austin Niblack.

One of the coolest costumes glimpsed in the audience was the gayly printed chiffon worn by Mrs. Freeman Hinckley, just returned from her Atlantic seaboard home with Mrs. Phineas W. Sprague of Boston, who is to be her house guest until Monday. Both Mrs. Hinckley and Mrs. Sprague were entertained last night by Mr. and Mrs. John A. Chapman, who also had with them their daughter, Elinor, just graduated from Bryn Mawr.

Krueger Debut as Conductor Is Great Success

Chicago Symphony orchestra in A Century of Progress series under the auspices of Chicago Friends of Music, Inc., at the Auditorium Wednesday, June 21; Karl Krueger, guest conductor; Marion Claire, soprano, soloist. The program: Symphony No. 1, C Minor, Opus 68.. ..... Brahms
L'Apres Midi D'un Faun.....Debussy
Aria—Elsa's Dream from "Lohengrin" .....Wagner
Scherzo — "A Midsummer Night's Dream" .....Mendelssohn
Capriccio Espagnol.....Rimsky-Korsakow

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Mr. Krueger, for several years conductor of the Seattle Symphony orchestra, made his Chicago appearance as conductor last night, and before the evening was over there was loudly expressed evidence from the audience that his debut was a pronounced success.

It is a happy event for a visiting musician when such a state of affairs becomes possible. The omens were favorable for Mr. Krueger. His appearance came in the midst of one of the most pleasurable series of concerts ever given in Chicago. In addition his program throughout consisted of numbers well embedded in the répertoire of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, works that the players knew as well as the conductor. As a result both conductor and players were able to work to a mutual end with no handicap on either side, and the result was, as has been indicated, lavish applause for both.

Miss Claire sang the leading aria from the opera in which she made her debut with the former Civic Opera company. It is the opinion of at least one hearer that she sang it even better last night than on her first Chicago appearance. She has a pronounced talent, a fine voice, and she knows Elsa's music both in its notes and its traditions. The difference that has developed in none too long an interval of time is that she has become more ripened in her interpretation. Incidentally, though this may belong more to general impressions than strictly musical canons, she makes a lovely appearance on the concert stage.

Though the Chicago Symphony orchestra will end its series next week, it would seem that the Chicago Friends of Music have not ended their activities for the summer. There is word of the revival of the Chicago Philharmonic orchestra under the directorship of Richard Czerwonky and the managership of Charles C. Cukor, with the announcement that concerts will be given at the Auditorium under the sponsorship of the Friends of Music. July 6 is scheduled as the first date, at which time there will be the Chicago première of the composition by Rosalie Britton celebrating the air journey of Lindbergh to Paris. Edna Kellogg, soprano, will be the soloist on this occasion. Another concert on July 17 will inaugurate Polish week at A Century of Progress. George Bojanowski will conduct, and a chorus of 1,000 singers of Polish extraction will join the orchestra in a program of Polish music.

Danish day at A Century of Progress yesterday had among its other features both choral and orchestral music in the court of the Hall of Science. A large male chorus sang a number of songs by Danish composers with fine, full throated tone. P. Marinus Paulsen, the Chicago composer, directed the orchestra in the overture to his own opera which was originally planned to be given on this occasion. The music was vigorous, melodious, and stirring. A feature was the introduction of a passage for ancient trumpets dating back to the year 1200.

Looking as far ahead as Texas day, Aug. 23, Mrs. John Wesley Graham of Houston brings word that a high point of the celebration will be an all Texas performance in Soldiers' field of Verdi's "Aida." The whole chorus, ballet, and as many principals as possible will be Texans. The organization will number 1,000.

Married in Sister's Gown

Parents Hold Strange Ideas of Hospitality

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Miss A. has been going out with her young man for two years. He hasn't mentioned marriage. His actions tell that she's the only girl in the world for him. He took her to meet his family once, but never repeated the invitation.

Miss A. can not ask him to her home because her parents are so strict. They will not allow a man to come to their home until it is definitely understood the girl will marry him. Imagine that state of home rule in America in the year 1933!

It seems incredible, but there are countless numbers of parents [foreign-born and foreign-trained, we suspect] who refuse to open the door to a young man unless his mission is to come to ask for the girl's hand.

Whether you can change these people is difficult of prophecy. But the fact that their daughters are meeting boys away from home and doing it over a period of years might awaken the misguided parents to their folly.

It so happens this particular girl got a lucky break in an admirer content to continue under the restrictions prescribed. The plot has all the makings of a tragedy for a girl, however. Most young men would resent the idea of having to propose to gain entrance to a girl's home. Few of them would venture in.

Family Ceremony

Lady Eleanor Litsinger, daughter of the Edward R. Litsingers, yesterday became the bride of Eugene Cary Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Eugene Cary. The ceremony was performed at the Litsinger home at 1400 State Park way. Only relatives and intimate friends were present.

Miss Litsinger wore her sister's [Mrs. W. C. Smith] wedding gown of white satin made simply with a long five point train, and the same veil that the former Edwina Litsinger had worn, an antique Spanish veil.

The bridal bouquet was of gardenias and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Smith and Miss Barbara Eldridge were the bride's two attendants. They were dressed alike in powder blue mousseline de soie, with hats and slippers to match, and carried shower bouquets of tea roses and blue delphinium.

Dr Cary served his son as best man, and ushering were Richard K. Juergens and the bride's brother-in-law, W. C. Smith. The Rev. Dudley Stark of St. Chrysostom's church read the service.

Dr. and Mrs. Frank Cary and Mrs. Clara Cary Thompson, the bridegroom's grandparents and aunt, came down from the Cary home in Fond du Lac, Wis. Young Mr. and Mrs. Cary left soon after the ceremony to motor to White Sulphur Springs for a two or three weeks' honeymoon. When they return they will be at home in the apartment above the Litsingers' garage in Lake Forest, and will move to town next fall.

Good Morning!

Before I forget it—there's an intriguing circus "short" on this week's McVickers program!

Somehow or other one always sort of feels that circuses just grow that way. This Lyman Howe "Hodge Podge" I'm talking about takes you into the winter quarters of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey show and demonstrates to you the enormous amount of preparation that goes on through the long winter months before the gaudy, freshly painted and gilded wagons are ready to roll away on the summer's tour.

You see trapeze artists at practice. Elephants, horses, zebras, etc., being schooled by their trainers, the refurbishing of equipment . . . it's all most interesting.

The feature picture is a desert drama that will rub the fur of Holt rooters the wrong way. On account of that for a long, long time this popular he-man, whose specialty is nobility of the rough and ready cut, is made out to be a prettysome skunk. A big oil man, Jim Bradier, with wells in Africa . . . and he travels half way round the world, as he says himself, "to run off with another man's wife." How he ultimately happens to depart with Mr. Corew instead of Mrs. Corew the picture will show you.

Fay Wray, who usually shrieks and jitters her way through horror films in most blood-curdling fashion, appears to have had some difficulty in adapting herself to a rôle that did not demand a maid who meets a monster. The vurr' mean lady she portrays is, in the long run, coldly regarded as neither fish, flesh nor fowl by both gentlemen who, for reels, have so ardently desired her.

Donald Cook is terribly nice as the husband. Noah Beery does a brash, brave bit as a desert bandit chief and Raquel Torres pulls a Lupe Velez. Edwin Marshall as a crooked executive is unctuous and evil.

Mr. Holt plays his unaccustomed rôle in customary workmanlike fashion and that never failing glint of humor in his eye. Ah, I like you, Mr. Holt!

SWELL GARRICK

BY ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

"Swell" Garrick, the world's perfect tailor dummy, is the label given him by those who didn't know that his well molded body had been created by athletic training rather than tailoring skill. When his friend, young Alistair, a subaltern in the Guards, is taken over by card sharpers and gives a check he can't meet, Garrick promises to retrieve the check. Maitland, the gambler, is the purported guardian of lovely Rhoda Fairclough, who is unknowingly being used as a decoy. Her presence makes Garrick's task to his liking. Maitland plots to trick Rhoda out of a fortune left her by an uncle who died in Rome. Garrick exposes to Rhoda, before Maitland and his gang, their crooked card tricks. Garrick is overpowered by Schewan, Maitland's chief, but manages to defeat Schewan's purpose of burning him alive in his car. Maitland has Rhoda committed to a mental institution as a certified lunatic. Garrick calls on his uncle, professor of therapeutic chemistry, and learns of a drug which will produce the symptoms of insanity from which Rhoda is suffering. Having no proof of guilt Garrick determines to settle the matter in his own way.

INSTALLMENT X.

A SINGULAR BURGLAR.

Garrick spent twenty minutes on the telephone and then went out to do his "shopping."

By seven o'clock he had finished.

"The drawback to a life of crime," he mused, "is that it is a waiting game. I think I'll wait at the theater."

"I say, Lyle, I've been trying hard to see you for the last four days. When you sent back that check, life sort of began all over again. By heavens, if only I could do something for you!"

"Silly old ass!" laughed Garrick. "You know you'd have done the same for me. As for feeling yourself under an obligation and all that kind of rot, before you're very much older, I may want you to give me a leg-up."

"I wish you'd give me the chance!" said Alistair—and meant it.

It was three o'clock in the morning by the time Garrick got home. He changed back into morning dress, then he went to the cabinet which he called his little armory and took up the pistol that Alistair had tried to borrow.

He pocketed the automatic, then walked to the all-night garage where he kept his cars and took out the big one.

He drove to St. John's wood and slowed as he reached Maj. Maitland's.

He swung the car into Maj. Maitland's drive and pulled up at the front door. He switched off the engine, but left the side lights burning.

He waited long enough to give George, the ex-convict butler, time to put on his clothes and come down.

When he was quite sure that the door would not be answered, he took from his pocket a rubber suction holder and a glass cutter and tackled the dining room window.

In approved burglar fashion he cut away the glass, slipped back the catch and entered the house by the window. He made a great deal more noise than a professional, but he was taking no particular pains to keep silent.

With the aid of an electric torch he found the switch and turned on the light. He did the same in the hall, then went up the stairs.

The drawing room he knew, and left it alone. He tried the door of the room behind it. It was a bedroom and had evidently been Rhoda's.

He crossed the landing, opened another door and switched on the light.

While Maitland was still blinking in his bed, Garrick had slipped across the room and flung himself upon him.

"Keep quiet and you will be none the worse, Maitland!" he warned him in an undertone. "Shout, and I shall probably lose my head and kill you."

Now, although to be throttled is painful and terrifying—to be strangled is very little more unpleasant than taking gas at a dentist's. It is in any event painless, save for a slight feeling of pressure across the forehead.

While Maitland was little more than dizzy, Garrick whipped out a gag and secured it—then a pair of handcuffs.

George had tried to kick, and once again Garrick had used the straight boxer's blow with the right hand to the point of the jaw.

"Come along, Maitland! We'll get off before he wakes up."

Garrick pulled back the bedclothes and put a second pair of cuffs on Maitland's ankles. Then he took out his automatic pistol and laid it on the bed. He looped Maitland's arms over his shoulders, then, the automatic in one hand, in case "the Gorilla" heard the rumpus, he carried Maitland on his back downstairs, put him on the floor of the automobile and covered him with a rug.

After ten minutes' run through the deserted streets, Garrick drove into a poor street, in the Marylebone district, and stopped outside the wooden doors of a small deserted warehouse.

The lease of the warehouse was among the purchases of the afternoon. Considered as a warehouse it had many drawbacks—but Garrick wasn't considering it as a warehouse, and from his point of view it had the immense advantage of an inclosed yard that was not overlooked by any neighboring window.

He got out, shut the outer wooden doors behind him, then went back to the car and took the cuffs off Maitland's ankles.

With his torch Garrick lighted the way up a grimy staircase to a room on the second floor, then he switched on a light—for he had previously covered the window that gave on to the street.

It was a fair sized room that could have held perhaps fifty workers. In the middle of the floor and nearly two-thirds of the way to the ceiling was a silence cabinet of the kind that is used by gramophone agents to enable more than one client to hear records at the same time.

When Maitland had sat down Garrick bound him to the chair with strips of canvas waiting in readiness. The binding was not tight or painful—it allowed a play of an inch or so on the feet, bound to the legs of the chair, and on the handcuffed arms passed over the back of the chair and bound to the back legs. The chair itself was screwed to the floor.

Then he removed the gag.

"Comfortable?"

Maitland snorted. "What's the idea, Garrick? What the hell do you think you're going to gain by this? We know you're a strong man and an amateur pug, but between you and me, my friend, you're a bit of a bully. What's the idea?"

"The idea, my dear Maitland, is a fundamentally simple one," drawled Garrick. "Miss Fairclough——"

Garrick clenched his teeth in spite of his determination not to allow his personal feelings to enter into his dealings with the gang.

"You know that she is not. When Sir Arnold Heppinstall examined her she was as much of a lunatic as you would be if I were to inject hilvanium into you while you sit in that chair. You need not look so alarmed, Maitland. There are limits to my cruelty as a crook, though there appear to be none to yours. Where is Miss Fairclough?"

There was a long silence and then:

"You don't know much about the crooked game, Garrick," said Maitland thoughtfully. "You don't realize, for instance, that I'm up against Schewan—the fellow you call the Gorilla. If you want to stop this abduction foolery and talk business—can you make it worth my while to drop the whole thing and let Schewan down?"

"O yes! Easily, my dear fellow. If you will do that, I will let you out of that chair."

"Yes, but——" Maitland forced a laugh. "I mean—I don't see——"

"You don't see, Maitland, that you will sit in that chair without fresh air or light, without exercise, without food, and without drink until Miss Fairclough is at liberty."

"Perhaps you are right!" said Garrick, getting up. "To tell you the truth, I do not know whether I can bear the idea of torturing you to death or not. We're going to see how much of it I can endure. Every time I find myself getting a bit weak I shall remind myself of the mental torture Miss Fairclough must be enduring. I will come and see you from time to time and tell you how I am standing the strain. I will call on you before the end of the week, Maitland. Good night."

Garrick picked up the torch, then shut the door on the silence cabinet, leaving Maitland in darkness. He waited a moment and listened. Then came a very faint sound through the walls of the cabinet that he could just distinguish. It was Maitland shouting at the top of his voice.

Walter S. Brewster, Mrs. John W. Gary, and Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson are opening their lovely Lake Forest gardens tomorrow afternoon to the Chicago visitors who have come for the meetings of the American Institute of Interior Decorators this week at the Drake hotel.

All of the gardens are delightful right now. Mrs. Ryerson's . . . Havenwood on Ringwood road . . . is the work of the late Howard Van Doren Shaw. The effect is copied from the Shattuck garden at Lenox. Mrs. Schweppe's garden is distinguished by its great wrought iron entrance gates and Mrs. Gary's by its multi-colored flowers in gay profusion. There isn't anything more pleasing than Covin Tree where Mrs. Walter S. Brewster has designed gardens of the months.

Pick Judges for Beauty Contest.

Because Mr. and Mrs. William J. Chalmers are busy preparing to leave for their summer home at Watch Hill not later than next Wednesday, Mrs. Chalmers has had to decline with regret an invitation to judge the sub-sub-debutante beauty competition at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon on the Enchanted Island. Mrs. Samuel M. Rinaker of Lake Forest has very generously consented to fill the place and help choose the prettiest, the healthiest, and the most ideally developed little girls under seven years. The other judges are to be Mrs. Pauline Palmer and Joseph Birren.

Mrs. Chalmers has been enthusiastic about the Enchanted Isle ever since its opening some weeks ago, especially because it includes a splendid exhibit of the Convalescent Home of which she was one of the founders. With Mr. Chalmers she will spend the summer at their Rhode Island home.

Mrs. Arthur Meeker and her son, Arthur Jr., will have time for just a short visit before he leaves for his annual summer pilgrimage to Europe for she arrived at home yesterday from California and he is leaving today for New York to sail Saturday.

Mrs. C. S. Dewey Goes to Detroit.

Mrs. Charles S. Dewey went to Detroit last night to spend a day or two with her daughter and son-in-law, the junior Frederick M. Algers, before going on to New York, where her other daughter, Miss Louise Dewey, and younger son, A. Peter Dewey, will join her to sail for France. They are going over with Mrs. Dewey's father-in-law, Albert B. Dewey, and will spend six weeks at their little place in Normandy.

Mr. and Mrs. James M. Hopkins are going to Russia around July 1 to be gone for several weeks, so any plans for the wedding of Mrs. Hopkins' charming dark haired daughter, Marjorie Goodman, to Charles S. Dewey Jr. must be postponed until all the parents are back in town in the early fall.

Miss Theodore Shaw is traveling again—indeed it is difficult ever to find this charming daughter of Mrs. Howard Van Doren Shaw in her own city—for she no sooner returned from a trip to the orient with her mother than she was off again, this time to the New London boat races and then to Washington, where she is at present visiting Mrs. M. R. Page Hufty, the former Frances Archbold of the prominent Washington family of Archbolds, and an old friend of Miss Shaw's. She will be home next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Clay Judson, Mrs. Shaw's daughter and son-in-law, are at Ragdale in Lake Forest, where Mrs. Shaw and Miss Shaw will spend part of the summer.

Announcement was made yesterday in Greenwich, Conn., of the engagement of Miss Edith P. Thomas, daughter of Mrs. Stirling H. Thomas of that city, to Norman B. Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Johnson of Evanston. Miss Thomas has just completed two years at Smith college and Mr. Johnson was graduated from Williams college this year. No date for the wedding has been set. Miss Helen Johnson remained in the east to pay a round of visits after she left college, Sarah Lawrence, and will be at home early next month.

Among the Chicago boys to be graduated from Harvard today are Richard S. Neff, brother of Mrs. Soloman B. Smith, and Miss Louise Neff; John R. Fetcher, son of the Edwin S. Fetchers of Winnetka, who will be graduated from the engineering school; Budd C. Corbus, son of Dr. and Mrs. Budd C. Corbus of Evanston, who will be graduated from the medical school, and Philip W. Moore Jr., son of the Philip Wyatt Moores of Winnetka, who will be graduated with distinction from the school of business administration.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris Ely Adriance Jr. and their children, Anne and Harris III., are here visiting Mrs. Adriance's mother, Mrs. Eugene Talbot, at the Ambassador hotel. They have been entertained greatly by their many friends, and tomorrow night Mrs. Talbot is giving a dinner for them at the Fair, although she has not decided just where. The Adriances are motoring home to Englewood, N. J., Monday, and a week later Mrs. Talbot is going east to spend the summer at Watch Hill.

Mrs. F. Langdon Hubbard of Detroit and her children are in Winnetka for a fortnight visiting Mrs. Hubbard's grandmother, Mrs. Robert Cluett. Mrs. Hubbard's parents, the Frederick H. Scotts of Winnetka, are in the east for the graduation of their two sons, Frederick Jr., who was graduated on Tuesday from Princeton, and Edward W., who is soon to receive his diploma from the Hotchkiss school. All the Scotts will return next week.

Miss Virginia Jeffries, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Jeffries, arrived at home yesterday, bringing with her her roommate from Connecticut college, Miss Betty Farnum of Providence, R. I. Miss Farnum's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Royal B. Farnum, both artists and directors of the Rhode Island School of Art, are coming out June 29 to see A Century of Progress.

There is a new little blue and white cradle in the Raymond Olsons' attractive house on Oakdale avenue awaiting the arrival of a brand new nine and a half pound son born Sunday afternoon at the Presbyterian hospital. Mrs. Olson was before her marriage two springs ago Virginia Ericsson, daughter of the Henry Ericssons of Surf street.

Society Supports Benefit for Camp.

So that hundreds of young lads from the congested areas may have an opportunity to attend the summer camp at Winona Lake, Ind., and have athletic equipment for their playgrounds, some society folk are supporting a radio revue next Monday evening at the Auditorium. The Chicago Boys' clubs are the liaison between the sponsors of the revue and the summer camp.

Charles Edward Brown heads the revue committee and to judge by the list of boxholders the affair is to be a huge success.

Old Yale Gives Way to New College Plan at 232d Exercises

New Haven, Conn., June 21.—(AP)—Yale of the old tradition passed into history today with the conferring of 1,121 degrees in courses and 12 honorary degrees at the 232d commencement exercises.

The new Yale of nine colleges within the university is to begin next fall, President James Rowland Angell told the alumni at the annual luncheon. He said the plan would mean "closer contact of student with student, and student with teacher."

Dr. Ernest F. Tittle of Evanston, Ill., who received the degree of doctor of divinity, told the alumni that civilization had two roads from which to choose, the one a planned social economy and the other a laissez faire attitude.

The speaker said that if the laissez faire attitude were maintained it would "involve civilization in another war or series of wars and revolutions until it will become prostrate."

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, June 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. De Forest Grant and Miss Caroline Grant have left for Bar Harbor, where they will occupy Reverie Cove this summer.

Announcement has been made of the birth of a son to Mr. and Mrs. Frederic W. Rhinelander II. last Sunday in Boston. Mrs. Rhinelander was Miss Constance Templeton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Breckenridge Templeton of Hinsdale, Ill.

Wearer of Augustabernard's Tunic Frock Always Looks Divinely Tall

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — Augustabernard's tunic evening frock is very popular in Paris. It is quite different from the dresses that are being shown by any other house in the town, for one thing. For another, this frock can be worn by women who are way behind with their diet, and who have trouble when they try to compress their body lines into the usual Paris silhouette.

The wearer of the Augustabernard tunic frock, and I've seen assorted sizes of ladies in it this summer, always looks divinely tall. The tunic, as can be seen by reference to the accompanying sketch, is made so it dips into three narrow pointed trails at the back, and as it is otherwise an unbroken stream line from the shoulders it does help the wearer to look tall and slim.

The original model of this dress is made of black lacquered chiffon, but it has been copied in satin and in heavy crêpe. The tunic has a square, modest neckline around which a bertha of the black lacquered chiffon is draped. It is nipped in at the waistline, but not sufficiently to be skin tight.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

With a few necessary changes let me quote from a letter:

"I am worried about my little niece. I feel her parents are making her really suffer in their efforts to carry out their ideas of how she should act with older people she does not know well. They are forcing her to be polite and gracious toward strangers with whom she does not feel at ease. I feel their course may do irreparable harm to the child's sensitive nature.

"Recently the mother forced her little girl by actual punishment to say thank you to an older person who had given her a gift. This seems to me to be putting the importance of the forms of etiquette and parental authority above the child's adjustment to life.

"The reason why the child did not say 'thank you' was that she had been made conspicuous just before and felt unusually shy and backward. This seemed to me a cruel mistake. Can you suggest any books to illuminate this kind of situation?"

In a very general way good modern books on child management cover the subject of shyness and also of manners for young children. There are a number of these I do recommend in my leaflets such as "Child Care and Training," by Faegre and Anderson, and "Two to Six," by Rose M. Alschuler.

Milton, Mass., June 21.—[Special.]—Miss Elizabeth Lincoln Scaife, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger L. Scaife of Milton, was married this afternoon at St. Michael's church in Milton to Albert J. Beveridge Jr., son of Mrs. Albert J. Beveridge of Indianapolis and the late Senator Beveridge.

Her gown had full length sleeves and the train was of ivory satin. A panel of old family lace extended from the neck line almost to the tip of the hem, caught to the train with clusters of orange blossoms. Over it there fell a filmy tulle veil, bound closely to coiffure cap with a dainty circlet of orange buds.

Cheese Rather Finical About Table Service

Prefers to Appear with Certain Foods.

Economical tips for week-end food shoppers — a regular weekly radio feature—will be presented tomorrow by Mary Meade over station W-G-N. Tune in at 11 o'clock for Miss Meade's market chat.

BY MARY MEADE.

Are you "cheese conscious" at your house? If I were an advertiser of mild and nippy slabs and foil wrapped packages, that might be the way I'd start. But being just another kitcheneer on the still hunt for ways to gladden my three meals a day, I'll omit the neat phrases and dive post haste into the suggestions. For I truly believe that not half of us are getting a small fraction of the enjoyment we might out of cheeses.

Surely now with such delicacies as a Liederkranz waiting at the neighborhood grocery at only a penny for each individual serving, and Camembert, Swiss, Limburger and a squadron of others available at the present day low prices there's not one of us who can't qualify as smart continental hostesses by serving a plate of dessert cheese with our coffee or 3.2 when the family hungers or company descends.

But remember, each cheese has its moments, its moods, and its affinity for certain other foods. So humor it.

Camembert, for instance, is that semi-firm, semi-runny cheese which comes to us with its ripened lusciousness hidden in a delicate rind which makes delicious eating in itself. This cheese has a special weakness for highly polished apples and toasted crackers. Gourmets prefer it at the stage just this side of runniness. Leave it out of the refrigerator until it reaches the exact stage of mellow ripeness you prefer.

Liederkranz perhaps is the most adaptable. Its flavor is sharp and tangy, making it the perfect complement for sandwiches, canapes, fruits or salads. A knowing accompaniment for your favorite brew is buttered rye bread spread with Liederkranz and covered with a thin layer of catsup. Garnish with olives.

Brie is a French type cheese, milder than Camembert and most deliciously flavored. It adds itself gracefully to salads and appetizers or does delectable things to toasted crackers for dessert.

Roquefort not only comes to dinner at dessert time on the assorted cheese and dried fruit plate, but it is wandering into all sorts of interesting situations these days. I've mentioned at one time or another how to make shirred eggs au Roquefort [though I'd enjoy sending you the recipe if yours is not on hand].

MINUTE MYSTERY
BY H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

DEATH SITS IN.

The room was in chaos. Joe Crowson, racketeer, lay on the floor dead from a bullet which had passed through his body after piercing the heart. Poker chips and broken glasses littered the liquor stained table. Sid Baer, acting as spokesman for the five pajama clad men Prof. Fordney found in the room, said:

"Crowson thought he caught Black," indicating a weasel faced man to his right, "cheating. About an hour later, with a thousand bucks in the pot, Crowson did catch Black cheating. He rushed around the table and grabbed him by the throat. We succeeded in separating them, but Crowson pulled his gun and fired. Black dropped to the floor, the bullet missing him—you'll find it buried in the wall over there. However, Crowson thought he had killed him and he screamed, 'They'll never get me for this!'

"I grabbed Crowson from behind, pinioning his arms to his sides in an effort to prevent him from firing again, but he wrenched his right arm free and shot himself. He slumped from my grip to the floor. Then I called headquarters. None of us has left the room nor touched anything. The thousand bucks is still on the table."

Fordney found two empty chambers in Crowson's .45 caliber Colt. The perspiration rolled from his brow as he counted the money and stacked it in a neat pile—it was $10 short.

"Is Baer's story correct?" he mildly inquired. The others assured him it was.

"All right. You're all under suspicion of murder—Baer particularly so!"

WHY?

Short Hair Is in High Favor with Fashion

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Women are constantly accused of being sheep in following fashion.

How about the way they've held out for the ten, eleven-inch length skirt for street? The way they've refused to let the beret get away? The latter may be different this year—nevertheless, beret-ish in effect! Also, ponder the stubbornness with which they've stuck to short hair!

All three named "rights" are based on woman's refusal to submit to skirts, hats, and coiffs that detract from youthfulness. The snug little chapeau, the shorter skirt, the short hair have all given women the taste of youth in the near past—and they're not going to abandon it while there's a bit of fight left.

But it was of the hair length I was going to speak today. Short hair has returned in high favor!

You can have yours clipped off now without a pang, without a fear that in high style circles you may be considered passé. You may have it clipped quite short to the neckline, as in the old days, providing you keep away from man or boy effects. But this possibility is prevented with the indulgence lent at sides and front by bangs, curls and clever waving.

Of course, you do not have to have it clipped short at the neckline. You may, with perfect 1933 smartness, have your neat little roll of curls, or several rows of them back there. Only said rolls must be lifted higher on the neck than formerly. The tendency is all for a raised hairline in the back where curls appear. The neck is left clear of hair. This provides a smarter neckline, flesh and dress fabric.

To introduce a tres feminine note with a short neckline cut one may let short, curled bangs fluff softly on the forehead center with brush curls turning upward from the ear on each side to meet the coxcomb center. To get this rich, full center to the bang, the hair has to be cut back an inch or more further than the forehead hair line.

It's fascinating on the right type of girl. And this is merely a hint of what may be done with short hair now that it is back in high favor again.

Gift Counters Remember All Left at Home

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Gift, game and gadget departments are filled to high level with all kinds of new and snappy ideas about loot to drag home for the gang you left behind you. There are brand new 1933 versions of new and old fashioned games and some of the trickiest new gadgets you have ever tried to pack in the corners of a home-going suitcase.

For instance, a very compact chess board for the chess or checker fiend. When folded it isn't any wider than six inches, no longer than ten and no thicker than an inch . . . opened and ready for the fray it becomes the smallest and most efficient chess set-up of the year. It is a swell idea for airplane commuters, or bored motorists who have seen all the roadside scenery in former expeditions, for the counters are impaled on small pegs, and nothing, even a California earthquake, can shake the chessmen from their respective positions.

Gift bearing relatives will welcome the good looking new metal coasters packed four in a box, a rooster, an elephant, a rabbit and a fish of silver metal stuff or the wooden individual cutout fish and elephant, wooden trays that will hold an appetizer with a tall glass and leave the other hand for foraging purposes . . . or the clever individual clothes brushes, made in a circle and held down by a Scotty or Boston bull pup or an Airedale . . . the newest pilsner glasses, high, tall slim affairs with colored rings whirling around or enamel figures careening around the sides . . . or the satiny looking new pewter drinking ensembles, fat bulgy, capacious tankards with generous sized matching mugs and schooners . . . wide hospitable cheese trays, and all the newest pretzel sticks that are as amusing as they are practical and colorful and modestly priced.

And have you seen the newest oblong cigaret cases in every and any color combine except purple . . . made to accommodate nine fags, and fitted at the end with a long section for powder and a small powder puff. And the new enamel vanities that will match plaid gingham dresses. There are round, square and oblong shapes that are so flat that they can be easily stowed in the handbag without bulging.

REST REVIVES 140 GUESTS AT CAMP ALGONQUIN

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

This story is written particularly for TRIBUNE readers whose contributions made possible vacations for the 140 mothers and children from underprivileged Chicago homes, who on Tuesday arrived at Camp Algonquin as the first guests of the season. The camp, operated by the United Charities, depends on readers of this newspaper for support.

The mothers and children, having been assigned upon arrival to dormitories and cottages, awoke yesterday morning after having slept for the first time in months away from traffic noises. In place of the rumble of elevated trains and trucks were the chirping of crickets and calls of birds.

Rest Brightens Eyes.

The long hours of unbroken sleep had worked wonders. The weary visitors of the night before appeared refreshed. Children's eyes were brighter and mothers smiled and joked and babies felt too comfortable to whimper.

Bowls of cereal and pitchers of milk were emptied and refilled. Spoons scraped the fruit dishes for the last bit of juice.

"Johnnie had four glasses of milk," observed one counselor. "I do hope it won't make him sick. He's not used to it."

After every child had been filled they were marched out in the sunshine for games and hikes. Mothers returned to the dormitories and soon everything was spick and span, the beds with their cool white linen carefully made, and the floors swept.

Teach Care of Babies.

Up in the ward nursery Nurse Carolyn Gerbert, who comes from the Infant Welfare society, began instructing mothers how to care for their babies.

Out in an open meadow, near the administration building, a game of baseball was in progress.

Up on the hill in the hospital a medical inspection was being made and youngsters weighed. The hospital rooms, even to an isolation room, shone with new white paint, every facility ready in case of emergency. Last year the camp experienced an entire season without a single contagious case.

As the reporter toured the camp the many mothers appeared to be taking a quiet joy in their surroundings, pausing for frequent glimpses of the Fox river.

Two Weeks of Comfort.

And so it will be for two weeks. A change from the routine; a little while away from old surroundings reminiscent of trouble and discord. Gifts to the Camp Algonquin fund will make possible these vacations and win the grateful thanks of many a mother.

A check for $28.50 from the Thomas A. Rutherford charitable trust, No. 1,879, was received by the fund yesterday, making a total of $406.49.

Contributions to the free ice fund, the other TRIBUNE charity, totaled $43.50. These were $28.50, also from the Rutherford charities; $8 from anonymous; $4 from Sheila; $2 from Mrs. L. J. Strauss, and $1 from "Hinsdale." This gives the ice fund a grand total of $176.60.

Gifts to both funds may be sent to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE. Acknowledgement will be made.

prove an intent to defraud by direct testimony. He said it was necessary to rely upon circumstantial evidence to show the defendant's state of mind regarding the three transactions involved.

It was for the jury to decide, he said, between the different sets of inferences drawn by opposing counsel, from the circumstances. The jury must decide, he added, whether the two sales were bona fide or shams, and whether the management fund item was taxable income, or an actual advance which Mr. Mitchell was obligated to repay. It also must decide, he went on, whether the defendant acted "wilfully" to defraud.

Judge Goddard made it clear that they should regard all the circumstances attending the transactions, such as the facts that Mrs. Mitchell paid no cash, that J. P. Morgan & Co., holders of the stock was not notified, that transfer tax stamps were not affixed, that Mr. Mitchell made special gifts to her to balance her interest payments on the purchase money loan to her, and his repurchase of the stock at the same price he sold it, all in the light of their bearing upon whether his intent was to make a genuine sale. The same jumble applied to the Thornton transaction and to the management fund item, he continued.

Touches on Legal Advice.

As for Mr. Mitchell's contention that he had relied upon legal advice, Judge Goddard instructed the jury that if they found that Mr. Mitchell had fully and honestly laid all the facts before his lawyers, and had followed their advice based upon such information with an honest and lawful intent, they should not find him guilty, even if the legal advice was wrong. On the other hand, he said, if they found that Mr. Mitchell had withheld material facts from his lawyers, he was not entitled to plead his reliance upon legal advice as a valid defense.

Judge Goddard said the defendant had had the right to sell stock for tax loss purposes if the sales were genuine and if there were no agreement or understanding within thirty days to repurchase. He added that the jury was not obliged to accept the defendant's explanation as to his intent to make genuine sales or with respect to treating the management fund item as a loan instead of income.

Judge Goddard said that there was no question that Mr. Mitchell received $666,666.67 from management fund in July, 1929, and that the issue for the jury to decide was "whether this was income, and whether, knowing it to be income, the defendant wilfully left it out" of his tax return.

Refers to Management Fund.

If the jury found that Mr. Mitchell was obligated by the receipt he signed in December, 1929, to repay this money only out of future earnings of the management fund, Judge Goddard said, they must regard it as a part of the defendant's income, regardless of his testimony that he regarded it as an absolute debt.

Judge Goddard reviewed the evidence showing that the government in 1931 investigated and approved the deduction of a management fund item from taxable income in the 1929 return of Stanley A. Russell, a vice president of the National City company. He said that the jury could consider this in the light of information regarding the approval having come to Mr. Mitchell's attention during the three year period when he had the right to file an amended tax return, and in the light of the judge's opinion as to the honesty of Mr. Mitchell's original intent in omitting to report the management fund item as income.

Auto Collision Is Fatal to Mrs. C. T. Trego.

Mrs. Medora Trego, 91 years old, 1326 Asbury avenue, Evanston, was fatally injured last night in a collision between two automobiles at Dempster street and Crawford avenue, Niles Center. She was the widow of Charles T. Trego, for 65 years a member of the Board of Trade, and friend of President Grant. Mr. Trego died in 1927 at the age of 90.

Mrs. Trego was riding in an automobile driven by C. H. Prindiville, her son-in-law, also of the Asbury avenue address, when the car collided with one driven by Stella Jewell of 814 Main street, Evanston. The latter suffered minor injuries. Mrs. Trego was taken to the Evanston hospital, where she died.

Street Car Conductor Killed.

John Kipper, 37 years old, 1023 North Crawford avenue, conductor on a Cermak road street car, was killed late last night by a hit and run automobile as he left his car at Sangamon street and the Burlington railroad crossing to see if the tracks were clear. The automobile, later abandoned, was found to have been stolen from Miss Thelma Stokes, a Detroit school teacher, while she was visiting the World's Fair.

These deaths and four others, including those of two children, increased the 1933 motor toll in Cook county to 454. The other victims:

Patricia Nowlin, 11 years old, 1028 North St. Louis avenue. Fatally injured yesterday in front of her home by an automobile operated by Richard Beckett, 25 years old, 1605 North Rockwell street. Beckett was later booked on a charge of manslaughter.

Frank Zublick, 40 years old, 1460 Milwaukee avenue, was killed and three others were injured last evening when Zublick's car collided with another at 25th and Washington streets, Bellwood. Witnesses told the police that Zublick's failure to stop for a traffic sign caused the accident.

The injured are Conney Whitt, 37 years old, 2106 South 5th avenue, Maywood, a passenger of Zublick; Albert Marshall, 35 years old, 2433 Fillmore street, and Joseph Pivony, 2437 Fillmore street, occupants of the second car.

Benjamin Kasten, 60 years old, 1526 South Kolin avenue, died at St. Luke's hospital of injuries suffered Friday, when he was struck by a Checker cab driven by Fred Hoffman, 2820 Sheffield avenue, at Wabash avenue and Harrison street.

Urge Ban on Swimming in Pit After Drownings

A coroner's jury, investigating the death of Neville Frane, 20 years old, 2733 North 77th avenue, Westwood, who was drowned on Tuesday, returned a verdict of accidental death yesterday. A recommendation was made that an abandoned quarry at North avenue and the Des Plaines river, where Frane lost his life, be barred as a swimming place unless a life guard could be stationed there.

COOL BREEZES SPUR ON ROSS AND CANZONERI

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Barney Ross, one time Golden Gloves champion, and Tony Canzoneri, world's lightweight titleholder, who will fight ten rounds tomorrow night at the Stadium, finished their preparations yesterday with a vote of thanks to the weatherman or whoever was responsible for the order that the wind blow on Chicago from Lake Michigan. Several citizens and not a few visitors had complained of the temperature recently, but none more than the boxers who each afternoon had punched and perspired at Trafton's gymnasium.

Observers who have attempted to name the winner on gymnasium form with hope of picking up a few dollars as reward for their sagacity, have agreed that neither fighter will nave difficulty making the required 135 pounds and that each is in excellent condition.

Some Vote for Draw.

Although ringside and street corner conversations, from this point on, differ, yet there is a similarity in predictions. It seems that either Canzoneri will retain his championship or that Barney Ross will win the championship. However, there are a few cautious prognosticators, who do not wish to be quoted, but are inclined to think that both Canzoneri and Ross will win. In other words, they are voting for a draw.

With the result disposed of, the problem of finances, which interests both the Stadium officials and the fighters, remains. This problem rests with the fans, but the weather also will draw an assist. The officials have joined in the aforementioned vote of thanks for the cool weather. Yesterday's prediction was a crowd of more than 16,000.

Tony May Get $25,000.

Canzoneri's 40 per cent share of the net may be over $25,000 which will be fair wages for 30 minutes of boxing in the second most important fight division. It should recompense Tony for placing his title on the counter, particularly since he has a good chance of claiming it back.

There are unsold tickets in all sections. The Stadium requested that this fact be made known, since persons of undisclosed identity have telephoned with the impression that nearly all the seats were gone.

There has been a great rush of late to liken Barney Ross, Chicago's challenger, to several of the old time stars. Benny Leonard, whose similarity to Ross probably is only in racial antecedents, is the measuring stick of those who brag about having seen all the champions. Dissecting Barney's form and style is an indoor sport which will have no real bearing on his fight with Canzoneri. After all, Barney fights like Barney Ross, and once in the ring, if he gives more than he takes, he'll be the winner.

Jab May Bother Tony.

Strangely enough, Canzoneri, according to the experts, still is Canzoneri. The Leonards, Nelsons and Whites aren't produced as yardsticks, which after all, is a tribute to the jaunty Italian who knocked out Al Singer for the title and then, in defense of his championship, defeated Kid Berg twice [once by a knockout] and Kid Chocolate and Billy Petrolle.

Back in 1929 Sammy Mandell, then the king of the 135 pound class, defeated Tony. If Barney's left jab is in working form tomorrow night, he should be given a chance to outpoint Canzoneri just as Mandell did.

Short Route Helps Ross.

Some have wondered why the championship bout wasn't scheduled for 15 rounds. That the distance is 10 rounds should help Ross. If Barney can't win in ten, he certainly wouldn't do better in 15, for Tony's durability has been proved many times.

LEARNING THE MASHIE SHOT TO THE GREEN IN THE TRIBUNE GOLF SCHOOL

A Tribune golf class attempting to master the difficulties of the approach shot. This photograph was taken at the Pickwick club last evening while similar scenes were being enacted at the other 26 courses of the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association. The association is co-operating with The Tribune in giving free instruction to all the men, women, boys and girls who wish to learn how to play golf. Next week the instructors will pick the best pupils in the various classes. These star pupils will then compete for prizes in contests of form and of medal play. (Story on page 21.)

TUNNEY'S FEUD WITH PRESS IS A BIT EXAGGERATED

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 21.—Now and again there pops into the papers some allusion to a feud which is supposed to have existed between Gene Tunney and the newspaper reporters and to a somewhat less enthusiastic grudge between Jack Sharkey and the fourth estate.

There is no doubt that some of these newspaper men who dealt with Tunney loved him less than little, but I maintain that no newspaper of any importance ever gave any journalist permission to abuse him in its columns and that the matter which passed for abuse consisted of nothing worse than persistent twitting on certain amusing facets of his character, particularly his love of Latin and Greek derivatives.

Another cause of irritation was the exposé of the Boo Boo Hoff document which he tried to explain away with a story which challenged the intelligence of the reporters and which, when he had had time to study the public reaction, he amended several times. Eventually, he abandoned the original explanation altogether and told a new one. But he always resented being found out.

People Want to Know.

The heavyweight championship of the world at that time was regarded as a position of high public trust, somewhat akin to the presidency of the U. S. A., and the incumbent was accorded and accepted honors befitting his distinguished station. Therefore, when the heavyweight champion got his tail caught in a crack it was only natural that editorial comment should ensue. If the name of Mr. Roosevelt had been disclosed on any of the J. P. Morgan preferred lists a little while ago, Mr. Roosevelt would have been similarly criticized and probably much more so.

However, opposed to the hostile comment there would have been a lot of editorial argument in justification of the deal and so, in Tunney's case, the papers took sides. Some held that he was not the kind of young man to have had truck with such as Boo Boo Hoff and Abe Attel. Others dis-

Judges Begin Final Tabulation of All-Star Votes

The polls are closed in the vote on American and National league all star lineups for the Game of the Century at Comiskey Park, July 6, but the judges—the contest department of The Tribune and papers in every section of the country which cooperated in conducting the vote—are still hard at work tabulating the returns. It will be several days before the votes from outlying precincts are received and added to the thousands of selections made earlier by America's baseball fans.

The Tribune will give $500 in cash prizes to the fans who came closest to naming the teams. The first prize of $250 will go to the person who came closest to naming the starting lineups [batting order] and the three pitchers for each team in the order they work. The fan who selected the American league's starting lineup with starting pitchers will receive $100 and a similar prize will be presented for the National league team. Fifty $1 prizes will be distributed among the fans who named the six pitchers.

Yale Beats Harvard, 4-2, to Capture Annual Series

Cambridge, Mass., June 21.—[Special.]—Arthur Rogers held Harvard scoreless today for eight innings and Yale finished with a 4 to 2 victory, winning the annual series in straight games for the first time in recent years. Yale won at New Haven yesterday, 5 to 3.

Fight Decisions

BOHNEN, MAROON STAR, LEADS IN AMATEUR GOLF

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Bob Bohnen, club champion at Midlothian and captain of the University of Chicago golf team, captured the qualifying prize in the opening day's play of the third annual Illinois amateur tournament at Medinah yesterday with a 27 hole score of 111, three over par for the No. 3 course. He shot 18 holes in 37—36—73 in the morning and returned in the afternoon for a 38 on the outgoing nine.

Right behind the Maroon star came towheaded Willie Meike, the reformed Medinah caddy, who surprised the home people last year by sailing through to the finals of the western junior tournament. The amazement registered on that occasion was as nothing to that of yesterday when Willie completed his final nine holes with a score of 33, tieing the record for the outgoing nine on the No. 3 course.

It begins to appear that the fatal bugaboo of No. 3 has finally been licked, for, aside from Willie's performance yesterday, sub-par scores have been turned in this week by Tommy Armour, Harry Cooper, Abe Espinosa, and Sonny Rouse, professionals.

Two Tie for Third.

Meike's 33 gave him a total of 112, for he had staggered considerably on his morning 18. Tied for third place in the field of more than 100 amateurs were Don Armstrong of Aurora and John Gostele of Elgin, each with a 27 hole total of 113. Ed Mauermann, another University of Chicago golfer, came in with 114. Hank Foley of Elmgate followed with 115, and Gus Fetz was next with 116.

Warren Dawson of Green Valley, who made a sweep of the first two Illinois amateur tournaments conducted by the Chicago District Golf association, was not required to qualify, but he will defend his title today.

Warren and the thirty-one low scorers yesterday entered the match play rounds in the championship flight, the first two of which will be held at 18 holes each today. All scorers after yesterday's 31 leaders were bracketed in two flights of 16 players each. These also will start match play in

Cubs Get Only 3 Hits Off Fitzsimmons and Lose, 3-1

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 21.—The New York Giants, after easing up for a day, shot some good pitching at the Cubs again today, with the usual results. The Cubs took it on the chin, 3 to 1, on a diet of three singles, and their lone run was driven in by a double play. Only 28 Cubs faced Freddy Fitzsimmons and not a man was left on base.

Lefty O'Doul supplied the winning run with a homer which led off the sixth inning. A foray in the eighth supplied the Giants' velvet.

It was the Cubs' seventh loss in ten games played with the Giants; their third in the four game series just completed, and their fourth out of five games played on the current road trip.

Regulars Are too Good.

The one run today represented the Cub total in three games here in which they were opposed by first string pitchers. Last Sunday they were licked, 2 to 0, by Parmelee and Monday Schumacher starved them on an allotment of three hits to accomplish a 3 to 0 victory. Yesterday they were able to beat Herman Bell and Glenn Spencer, 5 to 3; Bell and Spencer being gents who rarely get a chance to do any important work for the league leaders.

The hits today were made in the fourth inning by English and Bill Herman, and in the fifth by Demaree. English's was an infield scratch but blossomed into the run that kept the Cubs from taking three goose eggs in the four game set. Woody went to third on Bill Herman's first hit in three days and scored while Bill and Babe Herman were going down in a double play. Demaree led off the fifth with his single and a force play and another double killing promptly nullified its usefulness.

Malone Starts Well.

It was Malone's seventh loss of the year and his fourth in a row, three of the four being due to the sickly stick work of his associates.

The first three innings saw plenty of airtight baseball, with Malone having the advantage, if any, despite the fact that Critz opened the Giant offensive with an infield scratch, the only hit by either team in the first three innings.

After Critz had singled, O'Doul and Ott fanned and Terry lined to Hendrick. In the second inning Vergez and Moore fanned and Mancuso popped to Grimm. Ryan was Malone's fifth strike out victim to start the third.

The first nine Cubs were retired in order, but English stirred up some action when he launched the fourth by caroming a single off Fitzsimmons' glove and going to third on Bill Herman's single to right. Babe Herman hit into a double play, Critz to Ryan to Terry, but English scored while this was being done.

Double Plays Wreck Hopes.

Jurges made a fine stop of O'Doul's grounder to deep short at the outset of the Giant fourth, but had no chance to throw out Lefty. Ott forced O'Doul and Terry flied to Demaree, after which Vergez singled to left center putting Ott on third. Moore singled to right, scoring Ott with the tying run and putting Vergez on third. Mancuso flied to Demaree.

It was one, two, three for the Giants in the fifth and the same for the Cubs in the first of the sixth. In their sixth, however, the Giants took the lead. O'Doul led off with his homer, which hit the upper balustrade in front of the right field stand. It was the winning run. Ott and Terry were infield outs and Vergez fouled to Hartnett.

18 HIT ATTACK SINKS GREGORY, THEN KIMSEY

Two Chicagoans Go as Far as Third.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The White Sox, for the time being, have quit bragging about how they thrive on southpaw pitching. They met up with Earl Whitehill, one of the wrong armed variety yesterday, and the veteran reduced them to such a state of helplessness that they couldn't get one man around to the plate. Meanwhile so many things happened to Paul Gregory and then to Rescuer Chad Kimsey that the Washington Senators almost ran themselves breathless accumulating a 9 to 0 victory in the opener of the series.

The reception tendered Gregory was so strenuous that the battle was decided almost as soon as it started. Four hits, three of them healthy doubles, in the first inning, furnished a fairly accurate hint that the Mississippian was no better than in his two previous starts, neither of which he finished. When the Senators turned loose another salvo in the second Gregory became convinced it was time to quit. From then on Kimsey assimilated the punishment, which against the two men totaled 18 hits for 24 bases.

Two Sox Get to Third.

Whitehill now has the distinction of being the second left hander to trip up the Sox this season, a feat previously accomplished by Vern Gomez of the Yanks. The Senator veteran handled his assignment so effectively that only two runners got as far as third base. This happened first in the opening inning when Haas singled, was forced by Swanson, and Simmons produced his only single of the day. Two were out at the time and Appling couldn't do anything about it. The next to get to third was Hayes who, with one out, singled in the eighth and reached the hot corner on Haas' single and a forceout. Then Simmons flied out.

One of the ringleaders in the assault Gregory and Kimsey couldn't check was Heinie Manush, who has been causing hostile pitchers no end of trouble in his last seven games. Heinie collected three singles and a pass before they could get him out. The three safeties gave him a grand total of 23 hits in his last 31 times at bat. He also tops the league in number of hits delivered and has a record of one or more in 24 consecutive games.

Doubles Floor Gregory.

The base hit shower against Gregory in the first inning began as soon as Myer, the leadoff man, had been disposed of. Manush singled to left and galloped home on Goslin's double to left. Cronin drove a two bagger past Dykes and Goslin scored. A slight improvement on Gregory's part was detected when Schulte flied to Swanson. The disturbance broke out again when Kuhel doubled to center to score Cronin. Appling threw out Bluege.

Before Gregory could be yanked off the job in the second, three more enemy hits were piled up. Sewell opened with a single to center and Whitehill offered the customary sacrifice. Sewell scored on Myer's single to center. The latter stole second and scored on Manush's single. Gregory was taken away and Kimsey completed the inning without further mishap.

Trouble for Kimsey.

Kimsey's effort continued to be a success until the fourth, when one hit was sufficient to furnish the Senators with a run. After two were out Manush walked and dashed around to the plate on Goslin's two bagger into the left field corner. Kimsey yielded two more tallies in the fifth, but wasn't entirely responsible. Schulte singled and Kress fumbled Kuhel's grounder. They scored on a single by Bluege and a double play.

The Senators had a couple of runners on bases in both the seventh and eighth without scoring, but finally caught up with Kimsey in the ninth. Cronin opened with his third two bagger and fourth hit of the afternoon. He went to third on Schulte's infield out, and home on Kuhel's single to right. Sewell also singled before the inning ended, but there was no more run production.

HIDDEN LORE IS CLAIMED AFTER EASY TRIUMPH

BY FRENCH LANE.

He experienced the extreme pleasure of watching his brown colt gallop to an easy victory in the Scooter purse. Then his smiles turned to agony, for immediately after the race was run he saw Hidden Lore led away by a claiming halter.

Mrs. Reilly H. New, whose turf activities are centered in Canada most of the time, took a fancy to the fleet daughter of Theo Cook-Lady Rochester. She deposited $2,000 in the claim box and took the filly away a short time later.

It is possible that Owner Jones made a big mistake when he ran the filly so cheaply. She had made the first start of her career a few days ago and had won with ease at tall odds. This was her second trip to the barrier and she was installed as the odds on favorite.

After trailing the nimble footed Brilliant Lass in the early stages, she came from behind like a good, game thoroughbred and went on to win by three lengths. It was a most impressive performance. She looked to be as capable as 'most any filly that has run here this season, and many horsemen were surprised that she had been entered to be claimed so cheaply.

Hidden Lore ran the five furlongs in 1:00 3-5 and it was a remarkable performance. Soon after the start Diadorius, which was running in front, stumbled and went to his knees, tossing his jockey, Eddie Barnes, into the dust. The accident caused all the others to be jostled about. It slowed up the race considerably, but Brilliant Lass and Hidden Lore came out of the jam in full stride.

Hidden Lore Takes Command.

They went on to stage a merry battle until Hidden Lore decided to take command of the situation soon after the run down the stretch started. From there on to the payoff station Hidden Lore ran away from her rivals. Hidden Lore's price in the mutuels was $3.76.

Lady Rochester, the mother of Hidden Lore, was quite a race horse when she ran the Jones red, white, and blue jacket. Her first offspring was Fair Rochester, which has been holding his own pretty well among the top grade 3 year olds all season. Hidden Lore is a half-sister to Fair Rochester.

Except in a couple of early races, the favorites celebrated a Roman holiday before a crowd of 7,500. The easiest victory of the day was scored by Higher, heavily backed choice from the Audley Farm stable, in the Oriental Claiming purse, a dash at six furlongs.

Higher took the track at the beginning of the race and for six furlongs ran away from his field, leading all the time by from three to six lengths. Jockey Kacala took a snug hold on him in the last furlong, so he wound up by beating Sky Haven by two lengths. Barry, a castoff from Col. Ed R. Bradley's stable, was third.

Higher Returns $6.64.

Higher ran the seven furlongs in 1:25 1-5 and paid $6.64. Possibly he could have neared the track record of 1:22 4-5, held by Indian Runner, if there had been any reason for him to turn on more speed.

During the parade of favorites the stoutly backed Foxland Hall and Annan won the second and third races to complete the daily trouble. The double tickets were worth only $14.58 but it seemed that everybody in the crowd held a winning ticket.

Illinois House Approves Dog Racing, 85-9

Springfield, Ill., June 21.—[Special.]—By a vote of 85 to 9 the Illinois house of representatives tonight passed the Sunderland bill to legalize and regulate dog racing in the state. It goes now to the senate.

The measure provides that licenses would be issued by the department of agriculture and that dog racing could not be conducted more than 165 days in the year. Pari-mutuel or certificate wagering would be allowed and each licensee would be permitted to retain not more than 13 per cent and the breaks as his commission on all money wagered.

A state tax of 10 cents on each admission ticket would be charged and there would be a license tax of 3 per cent of the total wagering payable after each day's racing. The bill passed with a minimum of debate.

LOUGHRAN WINS OVER HAMAS BY SLUGGING IT OUT

New York, June 21.—(AP)—Tommy Loughran, the irrespressible veteran from Philadelphia, staged another comeback tonight to even his score with Steve Hamas. A crowd of 10,000 cheered Loughran's comeback in the final rounds, after it seemed Hamas might repeat the knockout victory of their first meeting.

Loughran's margin was close, at the best little more than a round or two. It was his boxing skill, ring generalship, and sharpshooting punching that brought him victory. Hamas never stopped rushing and flinging his fists from a crouch.

But apparently he was just beginning to fight. He called on new speed in the ninth and tenth, jabbed Hamas' head back and ripped him with both hands, fighting instead of boxing.

SALTIS BEATS TRAMBLIE IN 4TH ATTEMPT

Bud Saltis, north side middleweight, won an eight round decision over Ray Tramblie of Rockford, Ill., last night at the Northwest stadium. Saltis had lost three previous fights with Tramblie and up until the sixth round it appeared as though he would lose No. 4. Then one of Saltis' blows sent Tramblie through the ropes. Ray was dazed from the fall and in the seventh and eighth rounds Saltis piled up a big lead on points.

WAKE LETTER BOX.

DEAR HARVE: Relative to air mail postal rates recently discussed in this column, it is a fair presumption that a second assistant postmaster general with three months' service to his credit would not be well versed in the whys and wherefores of postal rates. Therefore it is only natural that he would miss the point in his explanation of the 8 cents for first ounce and 13 cents for subsequent ounce rates.

The facts are these: Air mail is contracted to private air lines according to the weight of mail handled rather than the number of pieces. The ordinary letter will weigh about 1-3 ounce. That means for every three ounces of run of the mine air mail there are nine letters bringing revenue of 72 cents. On the other hand, a single letter weighing three ounces would bring only 34 cents.

The air line gets the same money for handling the nine letters as it gets for handling the one weighing three ounces. Therefore, as a matter of fact, the rate for the first ounce could be even less than it now is and still make more money for the department than the overweight letter.

Postal Clerk.

At the baseball game of the century, July 6, we fans will be paying our money to see all the skill the pitchers have and all the skill the batsmen can exhibit. This often is prevented by the intentional pass or, what amounts to the same result, the unintentional pass.

Why not, for this game, try the experiment of putting a runner on base for every batsman who has four balls issued to him, but allow the batsman a new beginning at bat?

Steve.

I cannot tell you how it is,
But this is plain to see:
The finite and the Infinite
Are simply God and me.

I am the seeker, God is sought,

The finite seeks the Infinite
To infinitely grow.

I know not how, but I can tell
No other life is true:
The finite seeks the Infinite
And God seeks me and you.

Room with Bath.

Stopping before a neat, cheery but obviously old fashioned hotel in Indiana, a touring motorist of our acquaintance asked the proprietress if he could secure a room with bath. "Certainly," was the reply. "Would you like to see it?"

Inspection revealed a light, well ventilated room. "But where's the bath?" asked the motorist. "Right here," replied the innkeeper, pulling aside a screen before a modern bathtub right in the same room with the bed. Partitions and walls apparently had prevented an addition for installing the tub, but had not thwarted the intention to provide modern accommodations.

Jack Kilbourne and Joe Mendoza to Fight Tonight

Jack Kilbourne, South Chicago middleweight, and Joe Mendoza will meet tonight in an eight round bout at Shewbridge field, 74th and Aberdeen streets. It will be Kilbourne's second appearance here in several months. Last winter Kilbourne boxed nine times in the east, winning all but one. He is a clever boxer with a long reach. Mendoza earned the match through a knockout over Bill Baker at Shewbridge.

Young Corbett, former welterweight champion, is in town for a few days. Upon his return to San Francisco, Cal., he may box Tommy Freeman there on July 17.

Wesley Ramey, Grand Rapids, Mich., lightweight, and Varias Milling will leave for New York Saturday for matches there.

Frankie Battaglia, Winnipeg, Man., 160 pound fighter, arrived yesterday en route to Minneapolis, Minn., where he expects to box within three weeks. Battaglia broke his right thumb while whipping Battling Tracey at Winnipeg several weeks ago. It is healing nicely.

MRS. MOODY AND VINES ADVANCE IN LONDON TOURNEY

LONDON, June 21.—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody and Ellsworth Vines, America's two best players, won their matches today in the London City tennis tournament at the Queen's club. Mrs. Moody, Wimbledon's defending champion, defeated Mrs. E. C. Peters, 6-0, 6-1, in a third round match, having drawn a bye in the first round. Vines whipped David N. Jones, former Columbia university star, now a student at Cambridge, 6-2, 6-2, in another third round match.

Mrs. Dorothy Andrus Burke of Stamford, Conn., who won the London championship last year, defeated Mrs. L. Macready, 6-4, 6-4. Keith Gledhill, who with Vines holds the American doubles title, won from J. Malacek of Austria, 6-1, 5-7, 6-4.

Weight Stars Seek A. A. U. Meet Records

A collection of shot putters and discus throwers, averaging 240 pounds, and of ability that wouldn't have been dreamed of half a dozen years ago, will meet in the 46th annual national A. A. U. track and field games at Soldiers' field on June 30.

Fifty feet in the shot put and 150 feet in the discus were considered prodigious heaves a few years back, but the modern crop of athletes makes the performance of the old timers look feeble. Leading the parade in the shot and discus will be the famous Stanford university quartet, competing for the Olympic club of San Francisco.

This foursome, Laborde, Dunn, Lyman and Gray, all can put the shot well beyond the 50 foot mark and three of them are in the 160 foot class in the discus.

Shot May Go 53 Feet.

The world's record in the shot and discus have been broken so many times in the last two years the record books are far behind. It is more than likely that a mark of 53 feet will be recorded in the shot put.

One of the leading contenders is Jack Torrance, the 265 pound weight thrower, football tackle and basketball center of Louisiana State, who put the 16 pound shot 52 feet 10 inches in the national college games last Saturday. That was two inches farther than the winning mark of Lyman of Stanford in the recent I. C. 4-A games at Cambridge.

Anderson Discus Favorite.

In a dual meet on the coast this spring, the four leading men, Lyman, Dunn and Gray of Stanford and Harper of Southern California, were all over the 51 foot mark.

John Anderson, the former Cornell star, who now competes for the New York A. C., will be favored to repeat his Olympic championship effort in the discus, but Laborde might beat him.

MISSION HILLS, COLUMBIAN PLAN SPECIAL EVENTS

The Grigsby-Grunow company will hold its annual golf tournament on Saturday at the Columbian Country club, on Milwaukee avenue, one mile north of Wheeling. More than 200 golfers are expected to compete in the event. Charles Johnson and F. D. Gates are co-chairmen of the tournament committee.

Mission Hills Country club will hold its annual invitational meet, the Big Parade, on Saturday also, as will Olympic, which will stage its Buffalo Creek Roundup. An eighteen hole afternoon event will feature Mission Hills' Big Parade.

WOJOCEIHOSKI IS VICTOR IN FAIR SHOOT WITH 100

W. Wojoceihoski of Calumet City shot a perfect score of 100 registered targets at 16 yards yesterday to win the New Hampshire day open shooting events of A Century of Progress.

C. M. Spainhour, Chicago, was second with 98. G. B. Batten and H. Gallert, both of Chicago, tied for third with 97.

Only two out of town entrants finished with high scores. They were J. Oliver of Muscatine, Ia., who shot a 94, and W. I. Brookings, St. Louis, whose best was 93.

Today is Wisconsin day.

CHAPMAN LEADS BIG SIX; SIMMONS LOSES 2 POINTS

Ben Chapman's two hits in five times at bat while Al Simmons was connecting only once in four trips to the plate yesterday boosted the Yankee outfielder into undisputed possession of the batting leadership in the American league. Randy Moore was the only other member of the big six, in addition to Chapman, to show a gain. The Braves' outfielder got three hits in two games to boost his average to .342.

MRS. JOHNSON WINS DAILY FEE GOLF TOURNEY

Mrs. L. F. Johnson of Mid-City won the championship of the women's Chicago Daily Fee Golf association yesterday by defeating Mrs. Ann Brunswick of Columbus Park, 6 and 4, in the 36 hole final at Mid-City.

Mrs. Johnson was five up at the end of the morning eighteen holes. She lost the 11th, 12th, and 13th holes in the afternoon round, but rallied with a par to take the match.

Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Josephine Baltrusis of Columbus Park tied for the qualifying medal, with scores of 87 and will meet in a special playoff. Mrs. Baltrusis won the driving contest with a total of 518 yards in three attempts.

HUBBELL PERILS AMERICAN LEAGUE SLUGGERS' HOPES

[This is the ninth of a series of sketches of players who will take part in the game of the century between the National and American league all stars at Comiskey park, July 6.]

The left handed hitters who will carry the load for the American league in the all star battle scheduled for Chicago July 6, probably would be better satisfied if they didn't have to think about Carl Hubbell, the six foot New York Giant southpaw. The elongated Missourian is tough enough for right handed hitters; he's doubly tough for the gentlemen who swing from the wrong side of the plate.

Hubbell, with a rythmic motion, throws a deadly "screw ball" that left handed hitters invariably find isn't there when they swing. And along with this item he can curve 'em and hop through the speed balls with the best of pitchers.

Tigers Impatient,

So Lose a Star.

Hubbell would never have found his way into the National league if the Detroit Tigers hadn't been a bit impatient about his development. A Tiger scout discovered him at Oklahoma City in the Western league during the season of 1925. The scout liked his actions and his "stuff," so recommended accordingly and the prospect was purchased.

The Tigers, instead of hanging on to him for 1926, regarded him as just another southpaw who never would learn control, so shipped him to the Toronto farm for development. He won 7 and lost 7 there in 1926. This wasn't regarded as a noteworthy achievement, especially for a lad trying to pitch his way into the majors, so the next season found him at Decatur, Ill., where he won 14 against 7 defeats. Even this wasn't sufficient to impress the custodians of Detroit's baseball affairs. For the season of 1928 he was released to Beaumont of the Texas league.

Giants Buy Him for Reported $40,000.

At Beaumont in 1928 he piled up 12 victories in a hurry, meanwhile losing 9, but the wins were enough to arouse the interest of the Giants. He was purchased for a reported sum of $40,000, some of it in real money, and told to show up immediately. He did and before the 1928 season closed he had collected 10 major league victories. He lost a half dozen games.

Just to prove that his 1928 work wasn't a flash, Hubbell turned in 18 victories in 1929, 17 in '30, 14 in '31 and 18 in '32. And these winning totals in each season probably would have been boosted considerably if he had had something better than a second division team supporting him.

Sox Start Lyons Against Crowder, Senators Today

Ted Lyons' luck has been none too good of late, but he'll make another attempt today in the second of the White Sox's series with the Senators. Lyons' last win occurred June 9 when he stepped in and pitched the concluding five innings of a 14 inning game won from the Tigers when Luke Appling hit a homer. Since then Lyons has been beaten by both the Tigers and Yankees. Alvin Crowder will be the Washington starter today.

Catcher Charley Berry, who suffered a chipped bone in the tip of his right index finger during Tuesday's game with the Yankees, will be out of action for about a week. The mishap occurred when Lazzeri fouled off one of Sam Jones' pitches in the fifth inning.

Gregory's early rout yesterday was his third in as many starts. There is no accounting for his sudden foldup. On June 14 the Browns tossed him overboard with six runs and five hits in one and two-thirds innings. On June 10 the Tigers knocked him out on 6 runs and 10 hits in seven innings. Yesterday seven hits in one and one-third inning assured his eighth defeat of the season.

Goose Goslin picked up a pair of doubles in four attempts yesterday and then decided he had done enough for one day. He is suffering with a leg injury.

Bob o' Links' Hullabaloo Is Won by Miller

Jimmy Miller of Bob o' Link marched in with a 38—38—74 yesterday which, added to his 73 of Tuesday, gave him low gross honors for the two day annual Hullabaloo golf tournament at Bob o' Link.

Not only did Miller possess the best gross score for 36 holes, but he also captured low net honors from the field of 160 merrymakers. His net count for 36 holes was 147—6—141.

It remained for George Dawson, of the Glen Oak Dawsons, to shoot the only par round of the tournament, his 34—38—72 of yesterday turning the trick. Dawson was in a fine position to crack par figures until his tee shot on the 11th hit a tree and he used up 6 strokes on this par four hole. His 72, coupled with a 77 on the first day, gave him a gross score of 149 for second place.

Third place honors went to Johnny Lehman of Olympia Fields, who turned in a snappy 73 yesterday for a 36 hole score of 151.

The low net foursome was won by E. Gledhill, Bob o' Link; W. Trinkhaus, Edgewater; M. Fessenden, Edgewater, and R. J. Griffin, Olympia Fields. Their net count was 583. Other prize winners were:

TAX SITUATION AIDED BY THESE REFINANCINGS

BY AL CHASE.

How a well managed reorganization may contribute directly to the improvement of the general tax situation is shown in the refinancing of the Patrician Annex apartments, at 111 Fullerton parkway, and the Produce Merchants' Office building, at Racine avenue and 14th place.

In the former property, according to M. A. Rosenthal, vice president of the Straus Service corporation, all taxes to date have been paid and a reserve set up for the payment of the second half of the 1931 taxes and even for the 1932 taxes not yet billed.

In the case of the Produce building the committee was unable to obtain a first mortgage loan. However, funds from the operation of the property up to the time the new corporation took possession have been used to pay over 75 per cent of past due tax balances for 1929 and 1930 and for the full payment of the first half of the 1931 taxes. A small past due tax balance of $3,200 will be paid from the first income available, said Mr. Rosenthal.

Bought at Foreclosure Sale.

The Patrician Annex bond issue was for $850,000, all of which is outstanding. There are $843,000 bonds outstanding of an issue of $925,000 against the Produce Merchants' Office building. Both issues were underwritten by S. W. Straus & Co. New securities are now being distributed to the bondholders of these issues at the depositary, the American National Bank and Trust company.

"In accordance with the plans announced, the bondholders' committees purchased these properties at the foreclosure sales and in each case the sale was confirmed by the court, after which a new corporation was organized," said Mr. Rosenthal.

Gets Income Bond.

"The holder of each certificate of deposit for a $1,000 Patrician Annex bond gets in its place a 5 per cent income bond for $500 secured by a mortgage junior to a small mortgage made to pay taxes and other expenses and in addition a participating certificate for one share of capital stock in the new company.

"In the case of the Produce Merchants' Office building the bondholders under the new setup have become practically the owners of the property and the stock divided among them.

"From all of this it must be evident that in both the Patrician Annex and the Produce Merchants' Office building reorganizations every effort has been made to place each property in the best tax position which it was possible to achieve with the resources available."

Fulton Harwood Brass and Aluminum.

Investors' Guide: I hold $1,500 in Fulton Harwood Brass and Aluminum first mortgage bonds. I wonder if you could obtain some information for me.—H. J. W.

Answer: The following letter from D. M. Coen, receiver, presents a rather dismal picture:

"One hundred and eighty-five thousand dollars of the . . . $150,000 [of bonds] have been deposited with this [Merchants' National] bank of South Bend, Ind.] bank. The writer has been appointed receiver for the sale of the property, but no sale has been possible.

"The plant has been idle for a little more than a year, and was being so wrecked by hoodlums that the equipment has all been sold out under court orders and the funds received applied against a partial payment of taxes. Taxes are now delinquent. There is no income and there is nothing left but the buildings and the ground. The buildings have been damaged to such an extent that a tremendous expense will be required to rehabilitate them. All windows are broken, doors broken off and everything attached to the buildings mutilated.

"This is not a very promising prospect for bondholders, and in the event we obtain a sale bondholders can never receive more than a nominal proportion of their investment."

Berkshire Life Insurance.

Investors' Guide: I would like to be informed of the standing and responsibility of Berkshire Life Insurance company.—D. L. M.

Answer: Berkshire Life Insurance company [Pittsfield, Mass.] was established about 75 years ago. It is purely mutual.

Reserves to secure policies outstanding amounted to $43,489,000 on Dec. 31, 1932. Other liabilities, including $600,000 borrowed money, $218,000 resisted claims and a $100,000 contingency fund, aggregated $4,606,000.

To cover such liabilities the company reported admitted assets of $49,719,000. This included $4,298,000 real estate, which constituted 9 per cent of admitted assets and was about $2,100,000 more than the year before; $18,070,000 mortgages, 36 per cent of assets, decrease of about $2,000,000; $13,968,000 policy loans, 28 per cent; $9,887,000 bonds [amortized values], 20 per cent; $425,000 stocks [market prices], 1 per cent and $621,000 cash, 1 per cent of admitted assets.

Mortality rate of the company is favorable. Expenses are low.

STEEL MILLS AT 50% FIRST TIME IN 2 YEARS

Immediate Delivery Orders Increase.

Steel operations have reached 50 per cent for the first time since April, 1931, announced the Iron Age. The rate last week was 47 per cent. The cause of the increased demand is largely "the piling up of releases against low priced second quarter contracts, as the June 30 deadline draws near," according to the review.

"With steel buyers increasing their specifications and pressing for shipments, mills are beginning to experience difficulty in keeping up with demand, in some cases falling behind on deliveries. These evidences of growing market tension, emphasized by the appearance of a scarcity of skilled labor in certain eastern mills, are reminiscent of conditions which have been conspicuous by their absence since the '20s."

Chicago Up to 50 per Cent.

At Chicago steel operations have advanced from 46 to 50 per cent; at Pittsburgh, 35 to 40; at Buffalo, from 36 to 48; in the valleys, from 50 to 55; in eastern Pennsylvania, from 23 to 26; in the Cleveland-Lorain district, from 63 to 67 per cent.

The Wheeling district is staying on an 85 per cent basis, and the Great Lakes plant at Detroit is running at capacity.

The resumption of more blast furnaces furnishes another index to increasing demand. A steel works blast furnace has been blown in at Chicago and another is scheduled to be lighted next week, according to the Iron Age.

The resumption of two more open hearth furnaces of the Carnegie Steel company brought production in the Youngstown district to 53 per cent of capacity, the highest level in twenty-six months.

The review notes that all of the steel upon which buyers are ordering will not be immediately consumed. Speculative buying has been hampered in general by tonnage limitations in the contracts and by the "unsatisfactory financial standing of many buyers."

See Motor Demand.

Retail demand has forced most motor car builders to use immediately the steel they have placed, and there has been little protective buying in the automobile industry. June motor output is expected to exceed that of May, according to the Iron Age.

"Steel mills still refrain from quoting third quarter except with a stipulation protecting them against increased production costs incident to the national industrial recovery act," observes the review. "Pending the completion of a code by the steel industry and its acceptance at Washington, it is unlikely that quarterly contracting will be resumed."

Orders of the Future.

Four hundred million dollars will be spent on public road projects, for which bids are soon to be asked, recalls the review. The navy's program, on which early action is expected, calls for the construction of thirty-two ships, requiring 66,400 tons of plates, shapes, and bars.

E. T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel corporation, declared yesterday that the steel industry had surmounted the most formidable of its troubles and remarked that especially pronounced gains had come in the lighter lines such as tinplate, sheet steel and strip steel.

Structural steel awards, amounting to 22,800 tons, are the largest with one exception since February, 1933. Lettings of plate work total 19,700 tons.

The Iron Age composite for melting scrap has risen from $9.92 to $9.96 a ton. The pig iron and finished steel composites remain at $15.01 a ton and 1.892 cents a pound.

CANCEL STOCK OPTION TO POWER FIRM OFFICIAL

An option granted to an officer of the Utilities Power and Light corporation to purchase 30,000 shares of common stock and voting trust certificates, representing 30,000 shares of class B stock, was canceled by the directors of the company, the annual report of the company reveals.

The fact is brought out in the letter of certification by F. W. Lafrentz & Co., accountants. The option was canceled subsequent to Dec. 31, 1932, but as of that date, the accountants state. The price at which the option was fixed and the identity of the officer were not disclosed.

Stock issued under the option has been returned to the treasury and directors have authorized its retirement, the accountants add. The accountants' statement is the only reference to the transactions found in the report, which is signed by Harley L. Clarke, president.

Power Output Soars 9.5 Pct. Over Last Year

Electric power production in the United States for the week ended June 17 increased 9.5 per cent and production in the Chicago area 6.0 per cent over output in the parallel week of 1932, it was announced yesterday.

The national gain was the best of seven consecutive weekly advances. The preceding week's advance was computed at 7.4 per cent.

The percentage of increase in output for the Chicago district, which comprises a region within a radius of 50 miles of Chicago, compares with a gain of 8.7 per cent for the period ended June 10, of which no announcement was released last week.

Largest in More Than Year.

For the nation, electricity production amounted to 1,578,101,000 kilowatt hours, according to the Edison Electric institute, against 1,541,713,000 in the preceding week and 1,441,532,000 in the corresponding week of 1932. Last week's aggregate was the largest for any week since that ended Feb. 13, 1932, it was said.

In the Chicago district, output for the week ended June 17 was 91,751,000 kilowatt hours, against 93,375,000 in the preceding week and 86,600,000 in the comparable week of last year.

K. W. H. OUTPUT.

June 10	93,375,000	85,888,000	+8.7
June 3	85,050,000	81,127,000	+4.8

New England Up 18.2 Per Cent.

In New England electricity output showed the largest increase—18.2 per cent—over output for the same week of 1932, compared with 14.5 per cent in the preceding week. On the other hand, in the middle Atlantic region, an increase of 7 per cent revealed a slight recession in comparison with 7.2 per cent for the week ended June 10.

The central industrial region's production advanced 11.9 per cent, compared with 10 per cent in the week before, and that of the southern states, 13.6 per cent, against 10.9 per cent.

The Pacific coast reduced its unfavorable comparison with last year from 5.3 per cent to 1.4 per cent, according to the institute's figures.

N. Y. CENTRAL AND PENNSY LOADINGS AGAIN SURGE UP

Two big eastern systems yesterday reported large increases in car loadings. The New York Central handled 97,146 cars in the week ended June 17, compared with 92,238 in the preceding week and 81,425 in the like period of 1932. This was a record for 1933 and was also the largest gain over a year ago since traffic started moving upward.

The Pennsylvania handled 93,390 cars in the week of June 17, compared with 89,899 in the preceding week and 80,868 in the like period last year. Norfolk and Western handled 21,816 cars, compared with 15,987 a year ago.

Loadings handled by the St. Louis terminal totaled 34,828 cars, compared with 34,225 cars in the like period of 1932. St. Louis and San Francisco loadings totaled 13,093 cars, compared with 12,364 in 1932.

I. C. ELECTRIC TRAIN TRAVEL INCREASED BY VISITORS TO FAIR

Traffic on the Illinois Central's electrified suburban service has been greatly increased by the Century of Progress, according to L. A. Downs, president of the road.

"More than 2,100,000 passengers were carried by our electric trains in the twenty-three days from May 27 to and including June 19," Mr. Downs said. "Of these fully 600,000 were carried to and from the Century of Progress exposition. The suburban traffic handled during the first fifteen days of June showed an increase of 32 per cent over that for the first fifteen days of May and an increase of 23 per cent over the same period last year."

Mr. Downs said the ten cent fare put into effect between all exposition stations and Randolph street on the north and Grand Crossing and Stony Island avenue on the south has been popular with world's fair patrons. Mr. Downs added that the world's fair service has been developed as a unit, without disturbing the regular suburban service.

R. Thompson, passenger traffic manager of the North Western, said yesterday that inbound traffic on that road has jumped 80 per cent on the major trains as compared with the first three weeks of the preceding month. He asserted that trains from Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Colorado, and Omaha have had a 102 per cent increase in traffic, indicating the nation-wide interest in the fair.

COTTON SPINNING IN MAY HIGHEST SINCE FALL OF '29

Washington, D. C., June 21.—(AP)—Cotton spinning operations during May struck their fastest pace since October, 1929, reflecting a revival of buying and increased demand. The census bureau announced today that during the month United States mills operated an aggregate of 8,309,664,722 spindle hours. In October, 1929, the number of hours was 9,005,849,000.

Since 1929 the number of spindles in place has dropped from about 34,000,000 to 30,959,216 as of May 31. Partly as a result of that, operations were carried on at a higher per cent of capacity on a single shift basis than at any time since the bureau began keeping records in August, 1921.

Mills operated at 112.3 per cent of capacity during May, based on an activity of 8.96 hours per day. The average number of spindles operated during the month on a single shift basis was 34,778,658.

PUBLIC SERVICE OF NEW JERSEY EARNINGS RISE

Public Service Corporation of New Jersey and subsidiaries report for May, 1933, net income from operations totaling $3,499,942, against $3,258,750 in May, 1932, an increase of $241,192.

The balance available for dividends and surplus for May amounted to $2,288,202, compared with $2,073,817 in May, 1932, an increase of $214,385. Gross earnings for May were $9,364,706, against $10,259,167 in May, 1932.

For the twelve months ended May 31, 1933, says the preliminary statement, gross earnings were $119,736,757, against $133,145,318 for the preceding year; net income from operations, $41,682,671, against $44,757,490, and balance for dividends and surplus, $26,768,193, against $30,393,510.

NEW YORK BANKS CUT TIME DEPOSIT RATE TO ½ PCT.

Member banks of the New York Clearing house tomorrow will reduce the interest rate on time deposits to one-quarter of 1 per cent from one-half of 1 per cent.

Mutual savings banks will continue to draw one-quarter of 1 per cent on balances, but interest will cease on all other classes of demand deposits, in accordance with the terms of the Glass-Steagall banking bill.

Similar reductions for Chicago were under consideration last night by officers of the Chicago clearing house association. It was reported that the Chicago rates would be altered to match the new lower rates in New York.

Dun & Bradstreet Weekly Food Index at High Mark

The weekly food index of Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., rose to $1.89 as of June 30. For the three preceding weeks the index remained at $1.87. The current number is higher than any week of 1932 or 1933 to date.

Bankers Think GuaranteeLaw Bad—or Worse

BY HOWARD WOOD.

There are those who think the guaranty scheme is very bad and likely to lead to serious trouble the next time a severe strain is put upon the banking system of the nation.

Then there are those who are a little more optimistic and believe that the guaranty scheme is so bad, indeed, that long before the next serious depression puts it to the test it will have been repealed.

* *

Bankers whose institutions have been soundly managed raise two principal objections to the guaranty. In the first place, they say, it never has worked and never will. And in the second place, it places a premium on bad management and robs the stockholders of properly managed banks for the benefit of depositors in loosely run banks over whose indiscretions they have no control, but the cost of which they must pay.

Deposit guaranty schemes have been tried before and have failed. Eight states, most of them in the tier from North Dakota down to Oklahoma, have tried and failed to carry out guaranty of deposits.

* *

In North Dakota the experiment was such a flop that five or six years ago it was estimated that with the maximum assessment that could be levied at that time it would take 108 years to pay off obligations. Taking into consideration the banks that have since folded up in North Dakota it would probably require 10 or 12 centuries to pay off, provided the guaranty fund were still in operation, which it is not.

New York state tried a "safety fund" system before the civil war. Hard times came along and broke the fund.

* *

"Banks in the New England and middle Atlantic states hold 61.5 per cent of all the deposits in the country," he says. "Of all the failures which have taken place in the 12 year period, 1921-'22, only 18.69 per cent have occurred in these sections.

"In the rest of the country which holds 38.5 per cent of the deposits 81.31 per cent of the failures in this period took place.

"Assuming that the insurance scheme contained in the Glass bill had been in effect during the five year period, 1928-'32, $6.20 of every $10.00 which solvent banks were able to call net profits would have been required to maintain the insurance fund."

ALABAMA PUT ON GREAT LAKES PASSENGER RUN

Operation of steamship passenger service between Chicago and the principal ports on the Michigan shore will be resumed June 30, when the Gartland Steamship company puts the steamship Alabama back into service.

The Alabama, a veteran of the Lake Michigan passenger service, was formerly operated by the Goodrich Steamship company. The bondholders of the company foreclosed on the company's eight ships this year and the Goodrich name, familiar to shippers for seventy-six years, passed out of existence as a factor in the shipping world.

The Gartland company will operate the Alabama for the bondholders. Daily service will be maintained between Chicago and Muskegon and other points on the Michigan shore. The company resumed freight service across the lake June 1.

MEAT INDUSTRY BOARD TO OPEN MEETING TODAY

Leaders in the meat industry will attend the annual meeting of the National Live Stock and Meat board opening today at the Blackstone hotel.

A report on the year's research and educational work of the board will be made by R. C. Pollock, secretary and general manager.

Among the speakers of the three day session will be E. W. Sheets, chief of the bureau of animal husbandry, United States department of agriculture, and A. D. White of Chicago, chairman of the meat exhibit committee of A Century of Progress. Charles D. Carey of Cheyenne, Wyo., is chairman of the board.

EDISON UTILITY CUTS DIVIDEND TO $4 ANNUALLY

Others Also to Make Reductions.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Directors of the Commonwealth Edison company yesterday voted a quarterly dividend of $1 a share, a cut of 20 per cent from the rate in force for the last year. Similar reductions will be voted today or tomorrow in the dividends of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company and the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois.

James Simpson, chairman of the Edison company, said that the cut was made to offset the loss of revenue resulting from the voluntary 3 per cent reduction in electrical utility rates.

May Cut Rates More.

At the same time he stated that the company is prepared to make further voluntary cuts in electric rates when the gross annual revenues of the company again exceed $75,000,000. Revenues are currently running around $70,000,000 on an annual basis, he said.

The further reduction will be made, Mr. Simpson said, "provided taxes and operating expenses do not show any substantial increase over the present margin."

For each additional $1,000,000 of revenue above the $75,000,000 figure the company is ready to cut another $250,000 from the present rate. This would continue until revenues reached $80,000,000.

Gross Revenue Declines.

"The gross revenue for 1933 is running on an annual basis of about $70,000,000," Mr. Simpson said. "This is substantially less than for the preceding year. The aggregate of all forms of taxation, federal, state, and local, is estimated to be substantially higher than in any prior year. These facts, coupled with the reduction in rates, presently effective, left the board of directors, in order to maintain the company's present sound basis, no alternative other than to reduce the dividend rates."

The aggregate reduction of $2,000,000 annually accepted by the company is represented for the most part by $1,500,000 cut which the company will shoulder as the result of the transfer of the 3 per cent federal tax on electrical sales from consumer to producer.

The $1 dividend voted yesterday is payable Aug. 1 to stockholders of record July 15. Adoption of the new $5 rate marks the second cut in dividends since the retirement of the Insull management a year ago. For several years prior to August last year the company paid at the rate of $8 annually. At that time the Simpson management adopted a $5 rate which was in effect until yesterday.

PICKLE PACKERS PREPARING FOR POORER PICKING

A new danger confronts the American people—a possibility of a pickle shortage before Oct. 1, when a new crop will be harvested.

The prediction that pickle lovers may have to control themselves was made yesterday by J. E. Mitchell, secretary of the National Pickle Packers' association, meeting in annual convention at the Palmer house.

"Better business conditions, accompanied by the return of beer, have caused an upturn in pickles," he said. "They are the traditional appetizers that go with the sandwiches that go with the beer."

During April and May sales by packers increased by 60 per cent over the corresponding months of 1932, with prices 10 per cent higher than a year ago. Acreage planted to pickle cucumbers this year was 21.8 per cent under the six year average, according to association reports, which also showed that the April-May sales were 438,705 bushels.

Burgemeister Brewing Stock Offer Announced

Public offering of another brewing stock issue was announced yesterday. The offering consists of 80,000 shares of $5 convertible preferred stock of the Burgemeister Brewing company of Warsaw, Ind. William R. Stuart & Co. and Eldred and Reynolds, Quincy, Ill., are marketing the issue. The firm was recently acquired by a group of Chicagoans, including Henry L. Balaban, former assistant United States district attorney, and Robert E. Neeley.

Sales of Autos in June to Be Best of Year

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 21.—June sales of automobiles will be the highest of the year, according to reports from General Motors and Chrysler.

General Motors sales are running from 10 to 15 per cent higher than in May and double those of June, 1932. Indications point to sales of 100,000 units to dealers by the end of the month, bringing distribution for the second quarter to a total in the neighborhood of 285,000 units.

Sales of Cadillacs and La Salles in the first ten days of this month showed a 45 per cent gain over the corresponding period in May and 27 per cent over the first ten days of June a year ago. The higher priced Buick models showed a gain of 10.3 per cent over the first ten days in May and the lower priced models held closely to the May levels.

Last week the Chrysler corporation broke all retail sales records for the last seven years and dealers delivered each day more than $1,000,000 worth of Plymouth, Dodge, Desoto and Chrysler automobiles. The Plymouth division of the corporation alone has a schedule calling for the production of 40,000 cars. The highest record ever made.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 21.—The dollar displayed resistance in foreign exchange trading today, but weakened toward the close after a day of erratic movements. The uncertainty came from further confused reports from abroad on the outlook for temporary stabilization.

Sterling, after dropping 3 cents in the forenoon, rallied to close at $4.18½, up 2¾ cents on the day. French francs dropped four points in the early trading, but also regained the loss and finished at .0484¾, or 4¾ points higher on the day. At that price the dollar was valued at 80.82 cents in terms of gold.

Guilders gained 20 points to 49.45 cents; Belgas, 19 points, to 17.19 cents, and Swiss francs, 10 points, to 23.70 cents. The German mark was 20 points higher at 29.30 cents, and the Italian lira 4 points dearer at 6.45 cents.

Although the market here continued to receive intimations from abroad that plans were on foot for a European stabilization program apart from the United States or that hopes were still entertained that within two or three weeks the United States would change is stand on stabilization, no clearer view of the prospects was available here. Bankers said that business in exchanges was not large.

WALLACE TELLS PROGRAM UNDER PROCESSING ACT

Hopes for Not "Too Many Mistakes."

Secretary of Agriculture H. A. Wallace last night invaded the combined camps of the grain trade, the meat packers and the processors of grains and in an hour's extemporaneous talk explained the program that he is attempting to carry out under the new agricultural adjustment act.

The occasion was a dinner of the Grain Market Analysts club. Present were 750 board of trade members, executives of Chicago meat packing companies and traders in agricultural products.

Explaining that he thought he had been invited to a small private party and that he had prepared no address, Secretary Wallace said he had decided to seize the opportunity to explain the new plan of agricultural economy to the very people who might be expected to be least in sympathy with it, in the hope of winning their coöperation.

Expect to Make Mistakes.

"We are bound to make mistakes in carrying out our program," he said. "We only hope that we don't make too many. At any rate we expect criticism and we will welcome it because it may help us develop a sound workable plan of action."

The efforts of the department during the next few months, he said, would be devoted toward working out successfully the processing tax—land leasing scheme of relief for cotton and wheat. Some attention, he added, will probably be given in the near future to tobacco and there may be an attempt to evolve a plan to aid milk producers. No attempt, however, will be made to apply the limitation of production idea to hogs and corn during the current crop year.

Whether hogs and corn would be taken up next year, he said, would depend upon the demand for such action from the corn belt.

Why the Need for Relief.

The necessity for doing something to aid the grain raiser, Secretary Wallace said, arose from the fact that in the face of declining demand for grain intensive farming has increased production, and at the same time the closing of export markets has backed up the surplus.

"Nature," he said, "has curtailed the corn crop for three years. This year's crop promises to be particularly small as a result of floods and droughts. We cannot, however, depend upon this protection indefinitely."

Planned economy in agriculture, Secretary Wallace said, had become

Wheat Advances Over 2 Cents a Bushel.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Fears of another hot wave over the American and Canadian northwest, where the spring wheat yield is now regarded as hanging in the balance, started prices soaring yesterday and the bulge did not culminate until the market closed. New high levels for the September and December deliveries were established for the season to date, with the former touching 80¼ cents, as wave after wave of general buying came into the pit.

Immense selling orders were encountered around 79 cents for the September wheat future, but the offerings were finally absorbed and the close was at the top figures of the day to a fraction under. Net gains were 2 to 2⅜ cents, with July finishing at 77¾ to 77⅞ cents, equaling the best price of the season, while September was 80⅛ to 80¼ cents, and December, 82⅝ to 82¾ cents.

Spring Wheat Loss Heavy.

Sensational claims of damage to the spring wheat crop were indicated in the American and Canadian government weekly summaries. The former claimed small grain crops in the eastern half of South Dakota were practically a total failure.

The loss in wheat in the American northwest is expected to occur largely in the sections where the grain was stubbled in, and 40 to 50 per cent of the total area estimated at around 18,000,000 acres in the four leading states is believed to have been seeded in this manner without farmers going to the expense and trouble of plowing the land.

Scattered showers were reported yesterday on both sides of the international line, but only 10 points in the four leading states and the three Canadian provinces showed precipitation of as much as one quarter of an inch or more. The heaviest was in sections where wheat is no longer a big crop.

Texas Buying Wheat.

Texas mills, unable to secure cash wheat in sufficient volume from the new crop, which is estimated at less than 17,000,000 bushels, or about 50 per cent of normal, have started to draw on Kansas City for supplies.

The record heat and dry weather also were responsible for soaring prices of corn and other grains yesterday, with September and December corn and oats and all deliveries of rye selling at new highs for the season. Corn jumped nearly 3 cents from Tuesday's finish, with the December selling at 56⅝ cents at the extreme, while oats advanced 1⅝ cents, and rye 2¾ cents at the extreme.

Net gains on corn for the day were 1⅝ to 2¾ cents, with July at 47¾ to 48 cents; September, 52 to 52¼ cents, and December at 56¼ to 56¼ cents at the last. Oats gained 1⅛ to 1½ cents, with July closing at 33 cents and September, 34⅝ to 34¾ cents, while rye was 1⅞ to 2¾ cents higher. Barley closed 2¼ to 2½ cents higher.

DROUGHT HITS CROPS

A record heat and drought wave embraces around 200,000,000 acres or more of corn, wheat, oats, rye, and barley, which extend from the northern limits of farm lands in Canada to the Gulf of Mexico.

Normally the crops of the five leading grains in the sections which have been experiencing temperatures of 90 degrees and over for nearly three weeks, with practically no moisture, aggregate more than 5,000,000,000 bushels of grain.

Inestimable damage to wheat, oats, rye, and barley is officially reported to have occurred, especially during the last two weeks, and the end of the crop deterioration was not in sight yesterday as the weather forecast indicated another heat wave was developing in the northwest and only scattered showers were anticipated.

Makes a Desert.

The record breaking drought which developed in the southwest last summer made a practical desert out of parts of Texas, western Oklahoma, and Kansas this year and the governor of the latter state late last week sent out a call for assistance from the American Red Cross to help farmers in twenty-four counties.

A winter wheat crop of not materially over 300,000,000 bushels may be harvested this year, according to the expression of one of the leading local experts. This compares with the record breaking harvest of 787,000,000 bushels in 1931. The spring wheat crop is estimated at 250,000,000 bushels and the present carryover at 350,000 bushels.

The United States is now face to face with a situation as far as wheat supplies are concerned that it has not been confronted with during the experience of the present generation. Normally around 625,000,000 bushels of wheat are required by the country, although during the last two years the actual disappearance has been close to 750,000,000 bushels owing to abnormally heavy feeding of this grain to livestock.

So far there have been comparatively few actual complaints of damage to the corn crop from the dry and hot weather, but the official returns yesterday indicated that a general soaking rain was now needed.

HUNDRED OBJECT TO ABOLISHING U. S. CROP NEWS

Washington, June 21.—(AP)—One governor, several members of congress, and almost a hundred private citizens have protested to the department of agriculture against the discontinuance of the market news service.

Governor Herring of Iowa said elimination of the activity "leaves the farmer without the protection of disinterested, authoritative, and complete information regarding his own business."

"Economies are needed, but the decision seems too drastic," he said.

The administration today withdrew, temporarily, at least, its plan to decrease by 25 per cent the department's agriculture expenditures for cooperative extension work, vocational education and rehabilitation, experiment stations, and endowment of colleges.

BUTTER AND EGGS EASY

Butter and egg futures eased on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, butter closing unchanged to ¾c lower, and eggs unchanged to ½c lower. Both markets were firm at the opening but profit taking and new selling developed in eggs and the market dropped ⅝c. Buying improved later, however, and caused a rally. The four markets stored 2,900 cases more than last year. November butter opened higher despite an overnight storage report decidedly bearish in tone. Selling came out within a short time and the market drifted lower. Sales: Butter, 58 cars; eggs, 93 cars. Deliveries: Butter, 2 cars. Prices follow:

LATE BUYING IN LARD SENDS PRICES HIGHER

Traders in lard ignored the weakness in the hog market and with grains higher there was good general buying and prices advanced. The close was 2½ cents higher on the active nearby deliveries but unchanged for the distant months. Cash lard was 2½ higher on regular at $6.05, loose $5.40, and leaf unchanged at $5.37½.

July bellies were unchanged and September 12½ cents net lower, cash prices were also steady at $7.00. Pork loins were firm at 6½ to 8½c. Prices follow:

WALLACE TELLS PROGRAM UNDER PROCESSING ACT

Hopes "We Don't Make Too Many Mistakes."

"Those of you," he warned, "who have waged the battle so furiously for less government interference in business can easily get to a place where your choice will be either communism or some form of Hitlerism. I urge you prayerfully to consider these things.

Supporting Surplus Acres.

"These unusual powers have been given the department of agriculture under the agricultural adjustment act because after the war we stumbled along, thinking that because we were a creditor nation we could go on producing and exporting blindly. Our financial men lent money abroad and we thought we could maintain 40 million surplus acres. The thing blew up as soon as we stopped lending money abroad.

"Now that prices have gone up a little there is a temptation for you to think we're back at the old game.

"This thing, however, is a mere flash in the pan unless you face the facts—that there is a changed relationship with European nations and we have 40 million surplus acres.

"My friend, Bernard Snow, over there," he said, nodding to the latter, will raise the possibility of reciprocal tariffs. I'd like to believe in that, but I am forced to ask what we shall import from other nations.

Problem of Surplus Acres.

"Our dilemma is whether to retire the surplus acres from production or find a market for the surplus products. The way out must furnish a satisfactory standard of living for people back in the country, on whose buying power the prosperity of Chicago so strongly depends."

Secretary Wallace repeatedly emphasized the experimental nature of his plan of attack. He explained that, although no program had been adopted for hogs and corn, a number of possible schemes had been considered. One such plan was to tax all animal products and use the proceeds to retire corn land from production. Another was to foster the use of corn alcohol as motor fuel, building a large number of small corn alcohol plants.

In an interview after the dinner Secretary Wallace said that the department of agriculture was watching the Chicago milk situation closely, with the idea of finding a pattern for aid to milk producers.

"We may be able to decide whether all producers or only the recalcitrant ones should be licensed," he said.

He urged the grain dealers and meat packers to use their influence to foster the production of better grades and qualities of farm products.

U. S. MAY DUMP WHEAT

In his informal address before the annual convention of the Millers' National federation in the afternoon Mr. Wallace said that it was "conceivable that the United States might resort to dumping" its exportable wheat in the event the pending economic parley in London failed to bring about an understanding between nations. The surplus might be sold abroad at as little as 20 cents a bushel, he said, while the domestice price was held at $1 under provisions of the t

OILS ADVANCE 1 TO 3 POINTS IN STOCK MARKET

General List Irregularly Higher at Close.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 21.—Oil shares led on advance in the final hour of today's dealings on the New York Stock Exchange when the group sprinted forward for gains of 1 to nearly 3 points. The demand for some of the erstwhile trading favorites of the division, like Standard of New Jersey, Houston and Atlantic Refining, was spirited. Blocks of 1,000 to 10,000 shares came out with a frequency that made tape watchers wonder what it was all about.

No official explanation of the sudden burst of activity in this long dormant corner of the market was forthcoming but traders were "guessing" that motorists were due to pay the freight in increased gasoline and oil prices beginning shortly. Crude and gas rates have been boosted slightly in various sections during the last week or so.

Entitled to Recognition.

Brokers have been insisting for some time that the petroleum issues were not receiving the recognition they were entitled to on the score of the move taken to eradicate cut throat competition from the industry under operation of the industrial control legislation.

A jump of 2 cents a bushel in wheat, failure of the dollar to hold its opening gain against sterling and better prices for cotton, and some other commodities also helped brighten the picture and the whole list tied onto oils for a little flourish of activity that had no trouble in passing for a rally. Recoveries of from a fraction to a point or more from the lows of the day were scored by issues throughout the list, with the result that the closing tables showed a slight irregular improvement over those of yesterday.

News Is Encouraging.

Midweek industrial news was generally of an encouraging nature, including, as it did, an indication of another large gain over the preceding week in railroad car loadings, an increase in electric power output for the seventh successive week, and a further rise in steel operations to 50 per cent of capacity.

Up to the awakening of the oils, however, the trading fraternity had shown little appreciation of the news grist. Outside of a little spurt of activity in the so-called "repeal" stocks—due to the overnight news of the repeal victories in New Hampshire, Connecticut, and Iowa—the market was sluggish and generally inclined to stick to a rut.

The buying of the liquor issues was short lived, but while it lasted it served to boost National Distillers, the acknowledged leader of the group, some 4 points above its previous close and to better the rating of such issues as Industrial Alcohol, Crown Cork, and Owens-Illinois Glass.

Rails Show Advance.

Rails firmed up in response to figures showing a continuation of traffic gains, and the utilities were braced by the power output figures. Gains in both groups, however, were modest, for the most part.

In the textile group, Celanese was again a trading favorite and added 3 points to its gains of yesterday. Various specialties showed evidence of determined sponsorship.

Reports indicating that the current month will prove the biggest June in four years for the automobile industry attracted some attention to the motor shares.

The farm implements had a good day, Case rising more than 3 points.

WOOL MARKETS

BOSTON, Mass., June 21.—Fair sales continued in the Boston wool market today, with prices very firm and the trend steadily upward. Foreign markets were higher and by raising the import partly they permitted domestic prices to rise further without encouraging heavy importations.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, June 21.—(AP)—Worsted and cotton yarns are scarce for quick delivery and mills are closely sold up. Prices were firm today with an advancing tendency. Cotton goods and other fabrics met active demand for immediate shipment with few offerings available. Burlaps have moved up sharply this week on a rise in exchange. Late business is held back until the industrial recovery act begins to operate.

CASE OF NERVES SEEN DEVELOPING IN HOG MARKET

Prices Ease as Traders Eye Farm Plans.

The hog market seems to be developing a case of nerves under the strain of suspense awaiting new developments in Washington regarding price fixing, taxes and production plans. This evidently has become the outstanding factor in the trade. Prices have been seesawing for two weeks, gaining one day and declining the next without getting far in either direction. Anticipating news that some expect to be bullish, some buyers have been persistently on the buying side, but most of the packers are anxious to just mark time until things are settled one way or another.

The gains scored on Tuesday's session were rubbed out yesterday, bringing the bulk of sales back to the low spot of last week, which was about the lowest point since early in May. Losses of 5 to 15 cents were registered during the day. The average declined 10 cents to $4.45, being only 5 cents above the lowest daily average since May 11. Top sales dropped 10 cents.

A Good Cleanup.

While trading progressed slowly most of the day, there was a thorough cleanup before the session ended with only about 3,000 holdovers in the pens at the close. Sellers attempted to check the decline, but with hot weather and liberal supplies causing some congestion in fresh pork there was nothing on which to base demands.

Receipts at Chicago for the month to date total 467,000. This compares with 305,107 for the same period in 1932, indicating the big increase in the volume of pork being handled by packers.

Cattle receipts fell short yesterday and prices surged upward. Gains of 15 to 25 cents were recorded in most of the good grades. Plainer classes predominated and were slower to respond to the influence of lighter total offerings. Almost 100 cattle averaging 1,043 to 1,099 pounds topped the market at $7.

Butcher Stock Uneven.

Prime 1,362 pound beeves reached $6.90 top for this weight, while $6.50 was paid for 1,523 pound steers. The bulk of the crop of steers in the pens cashed within a range of $5.25 to $6.40. Butcher stock showed more unevenness, grassy cows and heifers showing a weaker trend in places, while good fat grain fed stock strengthened, closing as much as 15 to 25 cents above the previous session.

The first Oregon range lambs of the season arrived on a rising market yesterday and sold at $7.50 to $7.65. There were nine carloads of them and little sort was necessary. The first range lambs of the season are coming in good flesh and are meeting a ready sale. Prices were mostly 15 to 25 cents above the preceding session. Closely sorted native lambs to packers reached $7.75 near the close.

Learn Auto Mechanics, Elec. Refrigeration, Welding, Electricity, Aviation, Machinist trade or Tool and Die, 7 floors of shops 000 and more yearly. All start on the same fair basis. They have come from all occupations, trades, businesses, professions. Yet every man among the thousands succeeding in this work put in the hours and the honest effort that must be invested in order to win. Do your work as we train you to do it, and not as you imagine it ought to be done, and stick to it as we teach, and you will steadily improve your income from a possible $110 to $175 the first month on up into the higher brackets!

You don't invest or buy anything here. Our superior product, known and endorsed worldwide, our fruitful instruction and our great resources, are put squarely back of you. We show preference for men not under 25 or over 46, in good health, and with home responsibilities. We expect them to furnish a few character references. Past experience amounts to little. We are now in our fourth consecutive record sales year and the vast volume of good will back of us insures success for any man who comes in with the opportunity that now exists and is available! Here are some current Chicago earnings, and these are but a few. We could fill a column with brief references to the success of our local force:

E. K. made $61 in one day—$42 another—$20 29 a third day—$123.29 in three days —and it looks like a splendid week for him. H. H. drew $106 for his week's work. T. T. made $41.50 in a single day—and a new man, R. W., his first day, made over $40. Another new man, R. B., made over $20 his first day out. L. F. realized better than $60 the past week, and the past three days J. B. has made $47 and last week made over $60. In his first month he made nearly about $600. In the 11th day of the month in this business, he will average around $75 a week. E. T. J., his first day this week, made $60.

J. T. N. realized $48.60 in one day—C. W. $74.30 in a single day. J. H.'s day's income was $45 monthly. D. D. made $40 his first day in the field. In 4 days L. D. made $118.50. J. E., his first week, made $48, and B. P. made $45 in one day.

J. H. made $24 in a single day, and other day's earnings were $24.50 for T. L., $23.75 for H. W., $25 for H. K., $23.75 for T. $23.50 for R. H. and $22.50 for M. J. A new man, F. J., has made $73 the past week.

These men were formerly construction engineers, building contractors, tool and die makers, clerks, salesmen, manufacturers, and so on; in fact, like other Electrolux [not refrigerator] men nationally and internationally, they represent a cross-section of human activity, all with no prior experience in this line, in which we lead the world.

If you learn this business as we teach you, and apply yourself as faithfully as any employer would expect, you can name your income, get raises as often as you seriously wish them, buy the things your family and you desire and lay away money. Other men are doing that and more. You can be depression-proof and 100% independent. If like record dresses; must be able to dress windows. Pleasant person; state age, sal; exp. Money can be made by the right men who promptly apply themselves to our business. We have some wonderful opportunities right now for men in Oak Park, Forest Park, River Forest, Elmhurst, Bellwood, Lombard, Naperville, Downers Grove, Hinsdale, La Grange and other western suburbs.

TRADES THAT PAY.

Learn Auto Mechanics, Elec. Refrigeration, Welding, Electricity, Aviation, Machinist trade or Tool and Die, 7 floors of shops 000 and more yearly. All start on the same fair basis. They have come from all occupations, trades, businesses, professions. Yet every man among the thousands succeeding in this work put in the hours and the honest effort that must be invested in order to win. Do your work as we train you to do it, and not as you imagine it ought to be done, and stick to it as we teach, and you will steadily improve your income from a possible $110 to $175 the first month on up into the higher brackets!

You don't invest or buy anything here. Our superior product, known and endorsed worldwide, our fruitful instruction and our great resources, are put squarely back of you. We show preference for men not under 25 or over 46, in good health, and with home responsibilities. We expect them to furnish a few character references. Past experience amounts to little. We are now in our fourth consecutive record sales year and the vast volume of good will back of us insures success for any man who comes in with the opportunity that now exists and is available! Here are some current Chicago earnings, and these are but a few. We could fill a column with brief references to the success of our local force:

E. K. made $61 in one day—$42 another—$20 29 a third day—$123.29 in three days —and it looks like a splendid week for him. H. H. drew $106 for his week's work. T. T. made $41.50 in a single day—and a new man, R. W., his first day, made over $40. Another new man, R. B., made over $20 his first day out. L. F. realized better than $60 the past week, and the past three days J. B. has made $47 and last week made over $60. In his first month he made nearly about $600. In the 11th day of the month in this business, he will average around $75 a week. E. T. J., his first day this week, made $60.

J. T. N. realized $48.60 in one day—C. W. $74.30 in a single day. J. H.'s day's income was $45 monthly. D. D. made $40 his first day in the field. In 4 days L. D. made $118.50. J. E., his first week, made $48, and B. P. made $45 in one day.

J. H. made $24 in a single day, and other day's earnings were $24.50 for T. L., $23.75 for H. W., $25 for H. K., $23.75 for T. $23.50 for R. H. and $22.50 for M. J. A new man, F. J.,
